130,000 BRITISH BROUGHT HOME FROM FLANDERS

Rescue from Trap Still Goes On.

A SOUTHEAST PORT IN ENGLAND, May 31 (AP).—Dead tired, aching for home, the men of the B. E. F poured on into England tonight, adding chapter after chapter to their epic.

From big liners to tiny boats, a great armada brought them home, poured them onto troop trains and went back, under the fire of German guns and bombers, for more.

About 130,000 troops of the British expeditionary force have been brought over the tortured channel ferry routes from Flanders, it was unofficially estimated tonight. This figure was exclusive of the rescue of French and Belgian troops, thousands of whom also were landed in England. But one of the soldiers said: "Thousands more were massed at the Dunkirk wharves waiting for ships."

Two-thirds Rescued Are British.

Reliable sources said about three-fourths of the troops returned to England are British, of which there were originally 175,000 in Flanders.

On the station platforms along the way to London stood the anguished wives and wide-eyed children of the B. E. F. They were waiting, too, with icy dread, for the casualty lists.

In London, when they opened one compartment today they found a British officer, dead, his own pistol beside him.

From this port even the fishing boats and trim little holiday motor craft went across the channel and came back, loaded with soldiers.

Navy, Air Force on Guard.

The navy and the air force stayed grimly on guard.

Across the channel the sun gleamed on the white shore of France and the green fields beyond.

The black plume of smoke from a huge fire, burning near Dunkirk, mounted the sky.

The men who landed told stories of fighting fiercely only a few hours previously.

"It is an inferno over there; a hell made by man," said one artillery-man.

"The Germans asked for a truce to bury their dead after a 36 hour barrage had held up their advance.

"We replied: 'There's no truce.' And we gave them another seven hours of barrage."

British Shelled on Wharves.

Another soldier said the Germans shelled the British on the Dunkirk wharves with long-range guns. "There were some killed," he added.

Every sort of a story was told of the new German strategy of war. Here was one told by a Tommy:

"We found 10,000 almost perfect counterfeit 10 franc notes on one plane that we brought down. Parachute troops are being given this money to disorganize French finances."

Another Tommy told what happened to parachute troops in Flanders:

"I have seen German corpses landing with as many as 50 bullets in them," he said. "They were killed long before they reached the ground."

Thru the lush green countryside of England, idyllic in the first flush of summer, sped train after train of the mud-stained men. At wayside stations they were deluged with fruit, cigarets, tea, cookies.

Waiting Women Surround Troops.

The waiting women surrounded the soldiers, plied them with soft drinks, acted as postmen for hastily scribbled postcards to wives and sweethearts.

On one platform a 6 year old girl sprang into the arms of a grimy soldier—her brother, unheard from for six weeks.

Many of the men limped until they saw a sympathetic eye upon them; then they straightened fiercely.

Chaplains straight from the front and women of the Auxiliary Territorial Services came back with the fighters.

One white haired vicar praised the discipline of the men on the bomb-

ALLIES BATTLE NEAR DUNKIRK; COVER RETREAT

Flood Waters Slow Nazi Advance.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—Battered allied troops tonight continued to pour thru Dunkirk in their historic retreat from the fields of Flanders, won by the army of Adolf Hitler.

The flight from the decimated port was protected by a curtain of shell fire from allied warships in the channel and by the rising floodwaters which poured thru locks opened by the French. Thus Dunkirk, pounded for days by big German guns and bombs, now is surrounded by the same marshy land that encompassed it 20 centuries ago.

Water Checks Germans.

German infantrymen advancing upon the city were checked by the water, which averaged a foot and a half around the city, and German mechanized units farther out in the country found the going harder.

Above Dunkirk, keeping constant vigil over the retreating armies, hovered swarms of allied warplanes. This plane patrol, combined with the antiaircraft fire of naval vessels, has made the air above Dunkirk "literally forbidden" to Nazi aviators, a French military spokesman declared. In addition weather conditions hampered efforts of the German air force to launch wide scale attacks.

Remnants of two badly battered divisions of Gen. Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux fought their way into Dunkirk today. They were muddy and weary from two weeks of savage punishment. These forces until a few days ago had held the peak of the triangle into which the Germans had driven the allies early in the Flanders battle.

Walls of Roaring Tanks.

To fight their way to Dunkirk Gen. Prioux's men made themseves the center of a great protective box of men and steel, its four walls formed by roaring tanks. The troops advanced inside this box to their goal. [Gen. Prioux himself has been declared by the Germans to be their captive.]

Others of the French forces trapped in Flanders were less fortunate, however. These unlucky ones were moving in retreat in another bloody rectangle which earlier had been reported holding firm under the assaults of the greatest mechanized German army ever to take the field.

Food Dropped from Planes.

French airmen, defying German antiaircraft fire and the low visibility, dropped both food and munitions to those of their compatriots still struggling to reach Dunkirk.

In fighting east and west of Dunkirk, allied troops fought off German attacks, but nonetheless the allied sea front was reduced somewhat, running from west of Dunkirk to Nieuport.

The eastern wall of the escape corridor was held by part of the British army and one French division along the Yser canal line. The defense line runs approximately from Lombaertzyde thru Nieuport, passes eastward to the vicinity of Dixmude and then descends in the direction of Ypres. The western wall where the British have been reinforced by several French formations and French mechanized units runs from the coast west of Dunkirk clear to the western end of the line of mounts near Cassel. It descends to the west of Bergues but veers off round Cassel where the Germans yesterday took the mount of the same name.

British Down 12 Planes.

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—The air ministry tonight announced that Royal Air Force planes during the day had destroyed 12 German aircraft and damaged three others while losing only one plane.

It also announced that "many direct bomb hits" were registered on German troop concentrations.

British Channel Islanders Made Eligible for Army

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—Men of the channel islands, heretofore liable to military service outside their islands only for the task of rescuing the king in the event of his capture by an enemy, now may be enlisted in the British armed forces under the national service bill.

Launch Ship; Strike Halts 6

Kearny, N. J., May 31 [Special].—Negotiations were deadlocked tonight in a strike of 8,000 workers at the plant of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company here which halted work on six United States warships.

The walkout, which began last midnight, caused complete stoppage of construction on two cruisers and four destroyers, all included in the country's rush defense program. Three cargo ships and two tankers also are affected. The strikers are members of local 16 of the Industrial Union of Maritime Shipworkers of America, a C. I. O. organization.

The strike apparently came without warning. L. H. Korndoff, president of the shipbuilding company, said he was amazed to learn the union had rejected an agreement which previously had been "accepted by both sides."

Ignore Leaders' Advice.

The strike also was voted by the rank and file of the union against the advice of its leaders, according to John Dempsey, president of the local. The union leaders had urged that negotiations be opened for a contract to replace the one that expired Wednesday night.

Dempsey said the strikers demanded a union shop, a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, and an annual week vacation with pay. The company's offer of an increase of 2½ to 4 cents an hour was rejected.

Following day long conferences of company and union officials at which no agreement was reached, John Green, national president of the striking union, said the discussions would be resumed tomorrow. He said "the company flatly refused to consider the salient points in dispute."

Federal Mediator at Scene.

In Washington Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced that P. W Chappell, a federal mediator, has been in Kearny for several days. John R. Steelman, chief of the labor department's conciliation service, said Chappell would continue discussions with both sides. Steelman predicted an early adjustment of the dispute.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison said in Washington: "We cannot afford to have trouble of this sort in these times."

Also in Washington Representative E. E. Cox [D., Ga.] declared such a strike "is tantamount to treason." Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] introduced a bill to require employés in plants producing defense materials to sign contracts with their employers that they would not strike.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 31 (AP)—The $65,000,000 battleship Washington will be launched at the Philadelphia navy yard tomorrow—two weeks before schedule and amid the most elaborate precautions since the world war to guard an American warship's secrets.

Virginia Marshall. [Assoc. Press Wirephoto.]

Sixteen hundred tons larger than any American battleship in operation, the 35,000 ton Washington is the first capital ship addition to the United States fleet in 19 years and the first of 68 warships the navy is rushing to completion.

Originally scheduled for June 15, the launching was pushed ahead by hiring extra labor and putting aside other naval shipbuilding and repair.

Air Photographs Barred.

As the Washington's 750 foot hulk slides into the Delaware river, two blimps from the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., will circle overhead to ward off any unauthorized air views. Photographing the battleship from the air has been made punishable by a $10,000 federal fine.

Coast guard vessels, Philadelphia harbor police boats, and Pennsylvania navigation commission tugs have orders to patrol the river for four hours and bar all shipping for 2 miles up and down stream from the navy yard. New Jersey state troopers will be ranged along the opposite shore.

Girl to Christen Ship.

Fifteen year old Virginia Marshall, great-great-great-granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall, will christen the Washington in honor of her home state.

Heading the list of dignitaries who, with an estimated 35,000 accredited spectators, will watch dark eyed Virginia smash a bottle of champagne on the gray prow are: Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lewis Compton, Chairman David I. Walsh of the senate naval affairs committee, Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval affairs committee, Rear Admiral W. G. Dubose, and Rear Admiral Ben Morell, chief of civil engineers.

U. S. Warship Is Rushing to South America

[Copyright: 1940: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—The fast 10,000 ton United States cruiser Quincy, carrying two fighting planes, is rushing tonight toward the east coast of South America on what the navy tersely announced as a "good will cruise." In other official circles, however, it was reported that the Quincy is on a special mission of aiding several countries, if necessary, in combatting "fifth column" activities.

The Quincy's first stop will be Rio de Janeiro, it was announced, but it is believed that the cruiser may proceed to Montevideo, where Uruguayan officials are reported to be alarmed over organized Nazi activities, and President Alfredo Baldomir has sent to congress a bill modifying constitutional provisions dealing with the freedom of assembly.

Battleships' Trip Canceled.

A projected cruise to Rio de Janeiro by three battleships, the New York, the Texas, and the Arkansas, was canceled coincidentally with the announcement of the Quincy's sailing orders. While no official reason for the cancellation was given, it was believed possible here that the Quincy better suited the needs of the situation, being one of the navy's newer ships and extremely fast.

The navy department asserted tonight that the Quincy's full itinerary was uncertain. Because of the cruiser's speed, it is capable of being shifted quickly from one possible trouble spot to another. It is understood that developments will determine the course of its voyage.

In official circles, it was said that President Roosevelt himself consulted with state and navy department officials before the vessel was dispatched post-haste on its mission.

Brazilian Nazis Feared.

It has been reported that diplomatic circles in Uruguay felt there might be a Nazi "fifth column" invasion from southern Brazil. Official circles denied this and also denied that Uruguay has requested assistance of any kind from any other government. It was recalled, nevertheless, that during the world war, when Uruguay feared a similar invasion by Germans in Brazil, it asked Argentina for help.

Parts of Brazil have large German populations, and the presence in Brazil of about 25 German commercial airplanes, piloted by Germans, has caused considerable uneasiness.

FRENCH MOP UP ABBEVILLE SECTOR; TAKE BRIDGEHEAD

Hitler Is Expected to Smash Next at Heart of France.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 31.—With the battle of Flanders completed except for mopping up work, authoritative sources in Berlin tonight said they expected the triumphant German army to strike next at the French southern armies along the Somme and Aisne rivers.

Simultaneously with a German communique reporting that the army of Flanders now "was free for new tasks," responsible Germans said that "we have given the French people nine months' time to disassociate themselves from their war monger government. They have lost their last chance."

Fortify Channel Coast.

Several regiments of naval artillery have been rushed to the Dutch, Belgian, and portions of the French coasts, which are now held by the Germans. This fact was taken as evidence that the Germans will try to use their heavy artillery to shell the English channel coast, control all movements on the channel, and keep Britain jittery. In the world war German long range guns shot as far as 75 miles, and it is assumed that their range has been increased in recent years.

The presence of these powerful guns on the channel coast, besides giving the English cause for concern, will enable the German army to start action in other directions.

Speculate on Italy.

Possible entrance of Italy into the war on Germany's side continued to inspire lively speculation. It was implied that the disclosure of Italy's part might come from a conference to which Fuehrer Hitler hastily summoned Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels at western front headquarters.

Hitler today received the new Italian ambassador, Dino Alfieri, at his western front headquarters. Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop also was present.

If the Germans decide to attack the French southern army, such an assault will probably come at one of two points. The first is along the coast in the direction of Rouen and Le Havre.

Point in Schlieffen Plan.

This operation would be in complete accordance with the famous Schlieffen plan, which provided that the German right wing should break thru Belgium to the coast of Flanders and thence along the French channel coast to the south until the German forces stood west of Paris.

The other point at which the Germans might start a drive on Paris is from the Sedan region. This operation, the Germans say, would be "the Schlieffen plan on a reduced scale." A southward push from the Sedan-Montmedy region would turn, if successful, the Maginot line from the north.

Should drives on both wings be successful, Paris would be encircled.

The German war communique to-

BULLETIN.

New York, June 1, Saturday (AP).—A British Broadcasting corporation announcement heard this morning by NBC said "at least one Belgian army corps still is fighting with the allies." The announcement quoted "well informed circles in Paris" as saying the force was commanded by the former commander of the Liege district, who had refused to accept King Leopold III.'s order to surrender.

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—French tanks supporting a second British expeditionary force being formed in France pounded at the Germans along the Somme front tonight.

They mopped up the Abbeville sector and reported they had regained unbroken command south of the Somme.

The action on the Somme was mentioned by the French command's night communique only as "a certain activity," and with the secrecy that customarily surrounds the start of major allied movements.

Take Hundreds of Prisoners.

The Abbeville bridgehead was taken, but the capture of the town itself—lying to the north of the river—was not claimed. It remained in no man's land. Hundreds of Nazi prisoners and a mass of German war material were declared seized.

More than 20 tons of bombs were dropped by two flights of French bombers in heavy attacks on German concentrations north of the Somme and German antiaircraft batteries and other objectives near Abbeville.

The tanks which led the allied attack were mostly medium weights of 23 tons. They were reported to have ridden rough shod over the German antitank nests and to have broken up the last of the German bridgeheads on the south side of the river.

Puts Nazi Losses at 500,000.

The semiofficial Telefrance agency declared that since May 10, when the Nazis invaded the Low Countries, they had lost half a million men—a figure which the agency asserted "finds itself written in authentic German documents."

Italian journalists started leaving Paris today. A ministry of information official said that while this did not mean inevitable war with Italy it was possible that the Italians would enter within a few days.

HOLD ON AISNE LINE

BY H. TAYLOR HENRY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 31 (AP).—Strongly entrenched French divisions, supported by heavy tanks and artillery, tonight were holding the line of the Aisne river against steady German attempts to open the Marne plain from the northeast.

While shells screamed overhead and German planes flew low, I visited the important Rethel sector, about 100 miles from Paris.

The general commanding the division holding the sector told me how his troops had established and held for four days a bridgehead at Rethel to cover the withdrawal of the rest of the army to the strong line south of the Aisne.

Germans Halted on Aisne.

It was the defense of this bridgehead which, in a large measure, stopped the Germans from forcing the passage of the Aisne at the same time they were racing for the channel ports.

So sure were the Nazis of the crossing that a truckload of Germans returning from leave, and captured in the outskirts of Rethel, had received orders to rejoin their units elsewhere.

The situation here on the extreme right flank of the northern front which forms the link with the Maginot line now is comparatively calm.

Behind the lines, except for bombed towns, there is an almost overpowering feeling of peace and quiet which is only accentuated by the constant dull booming of artillery. Herds of milch cows and goats wander thru the deserted towns. But far behind the lines the bombing planes have spread their devastation.

WINDSORS ARRIVE AT ESTATE IN FRANCE TO SPEND DUKE'S LEAVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—The duke and duchess of Windsor have reached their estate near Cap d' Antibes, France, where they will stay for an indefinite period, friends of the couple revealed today. Some of their friends had expressed fears that the former British king was with the allied armies in Flanders.

The duke and duchess, who had been separated by their war work, spent last week together at Biarritz and were entertained by members of British colonies at nearby resorts. The duke, who had been on leave, then returned to Paris and the duchess reportedly left for their chateau on the Riviera.

At the outbreak of the war the duke was given a major general's rank and he is serving as a British liaison officer. The duchess had been cooperating with relief units sending packages to soldiers at the front.

EXPECT GERMANS TO LAUNCH DRIVE AGAINST FRANCE

Nazis Mop Up in Flanders Battlefields.

day said that the mass of the French 1st, 7th, and 9th armies is "annihilated or captured." The remaining parts of the British expeditionary force, however, still are offering resistance on a narrow strip along the coast. This strip, the Germans declared, extends some 25 miles along the coast, in the Dunkirk area. Its depth is only six miles, the Germans asserted.

Other Forces Wiped Out.

Other British forces which were encircled near Cassel and which tried to push their way north to Dunkirk were "annihilated" the Germans said.

During the day the Germans claimed one allied destroyer was sunk off the Belgian coast by a dashing torpedo boat.

Undoubtedly, the unfavorable flying weather prevailing helped the British withdraw their forces. Aviation activities were greatly restricted, with the Germans reporting the shooting down of only five allied airplanes. The Germans admitted the loss of two planes.

The Germans are wondering how many allied troops succeeded in crossing the English channel within the last 48 hours. Neutral observers hold that "if 150,000 of the troops trapped in Flanders and Artois succeeded in reaching England, the position of the British Isles is not as precarious as the Germans describe it."

The German Reply.

To this the Germans counter that the number of allied troops which managed to escape their ring of steel and iron is less than 150,000 because "all the big forts were smashed by German bombs."

The number of prisoners, guns and other war materials captured in the huge battle is expected to be known tomorrow.

New financial regulations issued by the Danish government provide that all Danes and persons living in Denmark must turn over all their minted and unminted gold to the national government as well as their foreign currencies and foreign stocks. Denmark now is under German control.

BILL PROPOSES BARRING ALIENS AS PUBLISHERS

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—Representative Robert F. Rich [R., Pa.] today proposed that United States citizenship be made a prerequisite to "owning, publishing, or editing" any periodical, pamphlet, newspaper, or other publication.

He introduced legislation to accomplish this by providing deportation, imprisonment and fines for aliens violating the requirement.

Under the bill, editors and publishers of foreign fiction and non-fiction and foreign non-fiction publishing houses outside this country could obtain permission to distribute their publications within the United States by submitting proofs to the secretary of state. That official could reject them, however, on the ground that they were detrimental to the United States.

Launch Two American Destroyers

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The destroyers Nicholson (left) and Wilkes taking to water at Boston, Mass., yesterday. The vessels were built side by side in drydock and were launched by letting in water to float them. Here the twins, which cost $5,500,000 each, are being backed into the harbor.

AMERICANS JAM IRISH TOWN AS LINER ARRIVES

Over 1,200 Seek to Get Passage Home.

GALWAY, Ireland, May 31 (AP).—The United States liner President Roosevelt arrived here late tonight to take more than 1,200 Americans back home and out of the dangers of war.

The ship anchored about two miles off shore to avoid the comparatively shallow water in the harbor. The Americans' luggage, 80 tons of it, was put aboard.

The Roosevelt will sail shortly after noon Saturday.

Special trains were run up from Dublin and more were due tomorrow morning, bringing refugees including film notables, wives of diplomats, business men, teachers, and children—by the scores.

Set Up Extra Quarters.

As the crowds swelled, to the delight of the townsfolk who canceled the regular Friday half-holiday to sell their wares to the over-monied among the Americans, it became apparent that the refugee ship sent over at the request of President Roosevelt would have to carry more passengers than anticipated.

To meet the appeals of the additional Americans, the ship had extra berth accommodations ready and cots in the public rooms.

Extra police precautions were in evidence around the customs pens where the Americans had their luggage examined.

Buy Souvenirs.

The Galway folk profited enormously and figured their loss of holiday well compensated, the reason being that after the Americans were told they could take no more currency than £20 [about $64] out of the country, they jammed into shops to turn extra money into linens and laces and other souvenirs of the old sod.

Every hotel, practically all private residences and even public halls are equipped with cots and other bedding to care for the rush of Americans fleeing the war zone. Hostelries which nearly closed last week because of the scarcity of tourists thankfully put on extra help.

Every dining room in town was filled by groups of well dressed Americans. They gathered at street corners and the strange talk of the people from the great nation across the sea seemed a magnet for Irish folk who spoke just to hear the American speech. Here in Galway county the Irish speak with a brogue Americans love to hear, so it is a 50-50 proposition.

Galway never saw anything quite like it, but it is not complaining. Many debts will be paid with the cash left here by the Americans, some of whom have been residents of Britain for 15 and 20 years.

Two Ready Earlier

Boston, Mass., May 31 (AP).—Two new 1,630 ton destroyers, the U. S. S. Nicholson and the U. S. S. Wilkes, were christened today at the Boston navy yard. The warships are expected to develop 38 knots. The vessels, which cost approximately $5,500,000 each, brought to a total of four the number of similar type craft completed at the yard in the past month.

Mrs. S. A. Bathrick, of Everett, Mass., sponsored the Nicholson, named in honor of her great great grandfather, Capt. Samuel Nicholson, the first commander of the historic frigate Constitution.

The Wilkes was named for Rear Admiral Charles Wilkes, a civil war hero. The craft was christened by a granddaughter, Mrs. Henry D. Styer, of Coronado, Cal.

HUNGARIAN CHIEF SAYS NAZIS WILL WIN WAR SOON

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 31 (AP).—Premier Count Paul Teleki declared today that the German army's "great victories have made it highly probable that the war will end in a short time."

The Hungarian premier said the army command now would release some reservists for farm work.

Interviewed in the lobby of parliament, he said Hungary had helped "our German and Italian friends by our self-discipline and quiet to keep peace in the Balkans and on the Danube."

WHY DID HITLER WAIT 8 MONTHS? WRITER EXPLAINS

Needed Time to Solidify Internal Forces.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, May 31.—Germany's answer to the universal question and reasons for her inactivity of the first eight months and the delayed attack of the war are beginning to be revealed with far more accuracy than was previously possible to determine.

While the history of the great conflict remains for future students to unfold, informed sources now have access to facts and statements of individual members of the inner circle that clarify to some extent the momentous events of the last few months. The two reasons for Germany's apparent outward calm in the face of the allies' blockade and economic war were internal politics and the weather.

Hitler's First Task.

While it is not possible to draw a fine dividing line between these opposing cliques, they may be listed roughly as the conservative army, substantial business leaders, and organizers and leaders of the fifth columnists. The fifth column work was headed by the GSP [secret police].

Both the conservative army and the business leaders were against war. Fuehrer Adolf Hitler knew full well that his first task was to unify his forces. So long as he was slipping little nations into the reich with no sacrifice of men and physical assets no faults could be found with his piloting.

Crisis Rises Too Soon.

The invasion of Poland was the straw breaking the camel's back, and produced a crisis before Hitler was ready to risk his future and the future of Germany in a major war. Additional time was necessary to unify his forces and strengthen his fortification. So far as essential military equipment and basic supply sources were concerned, everything was what one would expect from the results of a great industrial nation working feverishly on seven years of war preparations.

Nothing was lacking in the actual war machine except minor rough spots and lack of coördination always found in newly completed undertakings. These were discovered in Poland, and the time following the Polish invasion was welcomed for correcting the deficiencies discovered. Principal among those were the improvement of bombsights and the perfection of air communications for better coördination of air and ground forces.

Perfect Harmony Required.

A blitzkrieg is possible only when all components are functioning perfectly and in harmony. The Polish campaign and its complete success not only revealed faults in the great military machine, but also gave Hitler the additional strength to unify his forces to meet political strife. Opposition to him by individuals was treated similarly.

Conservative army generals acquiesced or were passed over. Industrial leaders were told to fish or cut bait. Some barely beat the firing squad to the border, and a few were too slow for the GSP.

While these necessary internal corrections were being effected, time was playing directly into Germany's hands. Hitler was fully aware that the allies possessed that great weakness in human progress of not profiting by other people's mistakes. He knew England and France would take the attitude that they were different from Poland and that "it can't happen here." He knew also from his fifth column reports exactly what they were doing and what they would not take up until he struck.

Wait for Good Weather.

Weather plays an all important rôle in launching a successful blitzkrieg. The general staff knew all about the terrain and natural obstacles to overcome in the attack, which was worked out carefully far in advance. The army leaders were insistent in demanding a wait for good weather to decrease the chances of a wet spring neutralizing the speed of the mechanized units. The success of a lightning attack, after everything is in order, depends entirely on the speed with which it is carried out.

The allies and the world were entirely ignorant of the power of Germany's war machine. No matter how effective a war weapon becomes, the defense against it can be, and always is, devised. But the creation of these defenses takes time, and any bad weather would work directly in favor of the allies. Consequently, the German general staff was playing for time during the winter months.

Public Feeling Aroused.

In addition, the bad weather in Berlin, the food and coal shortage, the blackouts, were all in favor of Hitler's politics to arouse public feeling to a war fever heat. The thought of a war of attrition was never considered by Germany. A nation depending on imports for food and possessing no navy is in no position to wage a lengthy conflict.

Again the activities of the fifth column played an important rôle in encouraging the static war and delaying the showdown. With the world in the economic state it is in today, a fifth column leader in Berlin remarked to a friend: "Give me a little time and I'll capture a democratic country without an army."

Reports crossing the border here now about the battle events to date maintain that many cases of unjustifiable or inconceivable weakness were found in the democracies' defenses.

BELGIANS RESENT FRENCH CHARGES KING IS A TRAITOR

Hold Leopold Guilty Only of Failure as General.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—King Leopold is a genefal who made an unpardonable error of judgment. This is the view held in the highest responsible Belgian circles here. According to Belgian leaders, there is no reason to call him a treacherous king or a "felon king," as charged in practically every French newspaper.

From the highest possible source, I learn that Belgians have a decided objection to the campaign being carried on to besmirch Leopold's name and make him appear before history in company with Judas or Benedict Arnold.

See No Action to Depose Him.

Hence, there is practically no chance that the Belgian rump parliament now meeting at Limoges, which today condemned his surrender to the Germany army, will take any action to depose either him or the dynasty. The expectation is that when Belgium is restored, king and parliament will resume normal relations and start in again where they left off.

This parliament meeting today is described as "semi-official." Its task is to organize a provisional government and provide for a new Belgian army in France. Authority is in the hand of Premier Hubert Pierlot and the council of ministers since Leopold, altho not deposed, has been proclaimed without authority as being in the hands of the enemy and not being a free agent.

Heartbroken Over Surrender.

The relatively indulgent view of Leopold held by these Belgians here does not keep them from being heartbroken over the surrender of the army. They take consolation in the report that some Belgian units refused to obey the order and continued fighting.

Belgians in high position, including the prime minister, are, however, thoroly angry with Leopold. In the last conversations between him and Pierlot and other cabinet members—of which I today got an accurate and authoritative account—Leopold was urged to turn over his powers as commander in chief of the army to Chief of Staff Gen. Michiels or any other general and accompany the cabinet to France.

Premier Pierlot pointed out to Leopold that his function was double as chief of the army and as chief of the state. While appreciating his reasons for wanting to remain with the soldiers, Pierlot represented that it would be extremely unfortunate for him to fall into the hands of the enemy.

King Remains Obdurate.

Leopold remained obdurate on this question and that is the first count his cabinet holds against him. It was emphasized to me that the question of surrender was never raised because Pierlot and the others considered it a purely military matter in which they should not interfere. They admitted among themselves that on account of the precarious position of the army, surrender might be desirable or even necessary.

The next count against Leopold is that he failed to notify the allied commander in Belgium, Gen. Georges Blanchard, of his decision to surrender [four lines censored].

For the surrender itself, responsible opinion is that it was probably necessary. Otherwise, the army of 300,000 men would have been annihilated. This sacrifice, it is believed, would have done little or nothing to save Belgium.

Prominent Belgian jurists now here are divided in opinion as to whether the king was within his legal rights in dispensing with a minister's signature to the capitulation. As military chief he was never expected to submit his decisions to the ministers. The majority opinion among the jurists is, however, that he was in the wrong and violated the constitution because the capitulation was more than a purely military act.

It meant surrendering civil administration to the enemy also and this, in the jurists' opinion, should have been countersigned.

[In Berlin an authorized German source said Leopold is a prisoner of war as the active commander in chief of the Belgian army and as such he probably will not be permitted to name a new Belgian government. The spokesman said the fact he was the army commander has nothing to do with his status as king.]

My informants say there are a variety of personal and other explanations for Leopold's determination to stay with the army. He is a descendant of the Bavarian Wittelsbachs, a family which included the mad king of Bavaria, Ludwig II. Altho he gives little sign of being neurotic, Leopold is stubborn to an almost morbid degree.

A King's Fixed Idea.

One of his fixed ideas for years has been that on no conditions should Belgian soldiers fight on any soil but their own. This may explain his refusal to come to France, where he would have had to take his place at the head of a Belgian army fighting in France.

Leopold also was under certain influences described as "unfortunate." One of them was the Socialist politician Henri de Man, an opportunist devoured by ambition who has long thought he ought to be prime minister. He undoubtedly urged Leopold to remain, with the idea that Leopold would appoint him prime minister in a new government.

Another Strong Influence.

Another strong influence on Leopold was his military adviser, Gen. Van Overstraeten, who held no active command. This general, I am informed, is thoroly and openly anti-French which it was pointed out to me, is not the same thing by a long way as being pro-German.

As in all dramatic events of this kind, it has been mentioned in the Paris press that there is a woman in the case—a tall, dazzling Nordic blonde. There is or has been such a woman in Leopold's life, but he has not seen her for months and it was well known she had no political opinions and never tried to have any influence over Leopold's public life.

SWISS ORGANIZE DEFENSE MOVES IN MINUTE DETAIL

Plan Transportation of Battle Refugees.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, May 31.—Additional efforts are being exerted by Switzerland for the care of the population in case of an emergency. The army staff has designated a number of places or parts of bigger places or cities for which the evacuation of all the inhabitants is planned.

The preparations are made for every detail, such as transportation and new quarters for such populations. The army staff reserves the right to give orders for or against evacuation in any particular case.

Profit by War Experience.

Under certain circumstances it may be more advantageous for the people to remain at home than to run the risk of being attacked by the enemy on the way to a new residence. The army staff will take all circumstances into consideration and give those orders that will best serve the population as well as the army.

The Swiss are profiting by the experiences of refugees on the western front. Reports from Belgium state that German mechanized units mingled with the fleeing inhabitants, making it impossible for the allied defense to attack them.

Spurn One Way Guarantees.

In commenting on a report that France is seeking an alliance with Switzerland guaranteeing her freedom from invasion, the local press states definitely today that one way guarantees from any power of group of powers are out of the question under any circumstances as long as Switzerland is not attacked by a foreign army.

"All foreign countries know that as well as we do and there is no use discussing it," press reports say.

HITLER BITES GRANITE, BRITAIN TOLD; ADVISED TO KEEP UP COURAGE

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, assured radio listeners tonight that Adolf Hitler is "biting on granite" and told them there "is no need to be downhearted."

"The enemy beats on our very gates with his mailed fist," declared Greenwood, Laborite member of Prime Minister Churchill's war cabinet.

"We have suffered grievous losses. We have inflicted greater losses on the enemy. Our power in the field, on the seas and in the air waxes as his wanes. Our economic resources expand as his are eaten up. Our economic stranglehold makes it more and more difficult for him to replace his weapons of war."

A hint of a new call on the services of civilians in the British war effort was given when Greenwood told the nation we "must face far reaching changes."

"More and more," he said, "we shall all become active combatants in the war, serving the national cause in different ways."

GRIM GRAVEYARD OF TANKS SHOWS GERMANS' POWER

Ruins of Towns, Rolling Forts Mark Sedan Drive.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, May 31 (AP).—Thru fields pockmarked with shell craters and little towns where fire finished what powder did not destroy, I returned to the battlefront today.

A 65 mile wide graveyard of shell torn tanks between Sedan and Maubeuge told a story of destruction by dive bombers and armor piercing ammunition.

It was along this stretch of Belgian-French frontier that Germany punched thru French defenses two weeks ago with the feint toward Paris that veered into a death trap salient to the sea.

There was every indication that the French were taken by surprise, altho one reliable source said the French had advance word of the plan to drive a wedge at Sedan.

Sedan a Pathetic Ruin.

It was suggested that the French high command either disregarded this—firm in the belief that the 1914 strategy of a barn door swing down thru Belgium would be followed again—or did not expect a drive in such force.

The wreckage of the once quiet countryside shows the fighting in the gap was terrific. Sedan has sagged into pathetic ruin. Maubeuge was badly bombed and shelled. Charleville is the same.

Everywhere is the twisted wreckage of tanks. Some are upside down. Others are telescoped in heaps as if hurled against each other with terrific fury. Some plunged thru the walls of houses, then were buried by the débris. Bullet holes penetrated armor several inches thick. Many tanks were blasted to pieces by bombs.

Again we realized what weapons the Stuka dive bombers are. The turret of one huge French tank had been blown completely off by a bomb while the rest of this fortress on caterpillars was hurled upside down into a gutter.

Rather surprising was the number of allied baby tanks scattered among the huge fortresses on treads. Apparently in France, as in Belgium, German air superiority decided the issue. Allied tanks alone availed nothing against the combined German air, tank, and artillery attack.

Nazis Fight Like Indians.

Another impression gained was that of the individual work done by the smallest German infantry units following closely behind and under the cover of tanks.

Eyewitnesses agree that the Germans moved and jumped like the Indians of old, always seeking cover and seldom exposing themselves until quite ready for a pantherlike leap at the enemy.

Then they would hurl bunched hand grenades at enemy tanks, one or several infantrymen aiming at the caterpillar mechanism while others would aim at the slits in the armor plate behind which the driver sat.

Burned out tanks spoke eloquently of the effectiveness of this German mode of attack.

GEN. GASTON BILLOTTE KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT AT FRONT

Gen. Gaston Billotte.

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—Gen. Gaston Billotte, former military governor of Paris, was killed in an automobile accident three days ago while commanding a group of armies in the field, it was announced today. No details were given.

Gen. Billotte, 66 years old, was born at Strasbourg. He was graduated from the French military academy, St. Cyr, in 1896. After fighting in the world war, he became in 1926 commander of the French war college.

He went to Poland in 1920 with a French military mission which directed the Polish fight against the bolsheviks.

PLAN 'LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE' TO FIGHT GERMANS

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—A "LaFayette escadrille of 1940" soon will be created with American flyers and money to fight for France, Humbert J. Clemente, commander of the Paris American Legion post, announced today. It will be the successor to the famous American air squadron of the world war.

Meanwhile, press reports said that French pilots in nine American-made Curtiss planes had held off a wave of 42 German Heinkels attempting to bomb a railway station. The French were said to have brought down six of the Germans as against a loss of two of their own.

21 BRITISH FLYERS FIGHT 80 GERMAN PLANES; DOWN 12

Duel in Lead Filled Sky to Save Flanders Army.

WITH ROYAL AIR FORCE COMMAND, Somewhere in England, May 31 (AP).—[Passed by air ministry censor.]—A dozen British flyers today told how in a lead-filled sky over Dunkirk they shot down 12 German planes altho outnumbered 80 to 21.

The British said they lost but one plane.

The battle saw four score Nazi Heinkels and Messerschmitts ranged against the R. A. F.'s small force of Hurricanes and Defiants.

Some of the victorious British pilots and their machine gunners belong to a squadron which in four days was credited with downing 53 German planes.

One Youth Downs Eight in Day.

The men in this noted squadron maintain that Britain's new two-man, four-gun fighter plane can lick its weight in Messerschmitts anywhere, any time.

One youthful pilot, called "Cookie," shot down eight German planes last Wednesday. He got another Thursday.

These pilots for several days have been protecting the road of fire to the sea thru which the allied forces are fleeing Flanders to the English channel.

Discussing the technical differences in British planes, "Cookie" recounted a battle in which the Germans lost 38 planes while engaging British firing from power-driven turret ships.

"Those Jerries don't seem to be able to tell us from Hurricanes," said "Cookie." [Hurricanes fire forward.]

"They come alongside us, or as we say, 'on the beam,' and the gunner lets go. It was like knocking apples off a tree."

21 Planes Hunt Down 40.

Today's battle of the 21 against 80 began when the 21 British planes sought and found the 40 Heinkel bombers that had been harassing ground troops.

"Just after we found them," a pilot said, "we were attacked from above by 40 more Messerschmitts, the best plane they have.

"In the running battle we shot down 12 enemy planes. They fell in flames. We saw three more wobble and spin out of line.

"We didn't chase them. You don't in this war."

The flyers related their experiences at their base where, 10 minutes after they returned from patrol duty over Dunkirk, they were sipping tea and lolling in deck chairs.

"Knocking Down Five for One."

One pilot remarked that "Jerry," the enemy, "never goes for us unless he's got bloody good odds in his favor." He added, "I think we are knocking down five for every one we lose, putting two out of action for every one their factories can produce."

The pilot who said this is a senior officer, holder of several medals and citations.

He emphasized that single combat "business" is avoided as much as possible.

"We fly in box formation," he explained, "and heaven help the man who loses it. I call the youngsters back when they stray. It might be one of Jerry's decoys he's chasing. They're good at that."

Emphasizes Need for Planes.

He emphasized, as did all England tonight, that "we need ships and more ships."

The base at which the airmen told their stories is referred to jokingly as "the halfway house between life and death." Three thousand planes have been serviced and refueled here in the last three weeks.

As the planes return from patrol, the occupants, young, easy and confident, clamber out and start swapping stories. They wear yellow life jackets which they call "Mae Wests."

Water, Shells Flown to Calais.

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—How the Royal Air Force parachuted supplies, including desperately needed water and ammunition, to the allied garrison during the siege of Calais was told by the air ministry tonight.

"Water was taken first," the ministry said. "Each aircraft was loaded with two containers fitted into the bomb rack. The containers each carried 10 gallons, and were fitted with parachutes that opened automatically.

"Just as dawn was breaking two sorties each of 10 aircraft left. They were approaching Calais. The town was in flames. Smoke to some extent obscured the target.

"As they passed over the Citadel the pilots came down as low as 50 feet to make sure of their aim."

Later in the day, the air ministry related, more aircraft, including protecting bombers took ammunition and grenades to Calais.

'NIGHT CHASER' PLANE ADDED TO NAZIS' WEAPONS

BERLIN, May 31 (AP).—The German high command today mentioned a new piece of equipment in the formidable catalog of German weapons—the "night chaser," or "night hunter." Just what qualities the plane possesses were kept secret, but daily communique said one shot down a British machine on a night raid over southern Holstein.

Kirk, U. S. Envoy in Berlin, Will Return for Vacation

Washington, D. C., May 31 [Special].—Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires in Berlin, who is now in Rome, will return to this country soon for a short vacation, it was said today. He is expected to return by clipper plane from Lisbon. Donald R. Heath, first secretary of the embassy, will be chargé d'affaires at Berlin in his absence. Kirk started for the United States once before and had gone as far as Munich, when Germany invaded the Low Countries and he returned to his post.

Old War Operation Modernized

Artist's conception of square surrounded by roaring tanks which trapped French divisions used to fight their way thru encircling enemies and escape to the coast of the English channel.

The square as it was used in the time of Napoleon nearly a century and a half ago. It usually was employed on a terrain where it was difficult to deploy troops in a line.

ROARING TANKS REVIVE ANCIENT HOLLOW SQUARE

Trapped French Use Alexander's Tactics.

Word from Flanders that two French divisions had fought their way thru encircling enemies to the channel coast yesterday in the form of a square surrounded by roaring tanks indicated that a military operation almost as old as history had been successfully adapted to modern warfare.

The square, or carré, originally was used as an offensive force to deliver shock. The phalanx of Alexander the Great was sometimes four sided. The Macedonians were ranged 20 to 60 deep, altho the initial shock was delivered by the first three rows, equipped with 18 foot pikes.

Used by Gustavus Adolphus.

Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, a student of the tactics of Caesar and Hannibal, who had borrowed the square from Alexander, adapted the formation. He used it as a means of protecting his musketeers, who required from three to five minutes to reload. Cavalry surrounding the square rode down the enemy during the period of reloading, then retreated to the square.

The writings of Folard, a European strategist, brought the carré into general use during the 18th century as a tactical operation.

Napoleon used it with effect, particularly in the battle of the Pyramids in 1798, when it proved its worth against the Egyptian cavalry.

Seldom a Complete Operation.

The carré was seldom used as a complete operation. Alexander used only part of his troops in the phalanx, and when the enemy was disorganized, his line troops joined the battle. Generally the formation was employed on part of a field where terrain made it difficult to deploy troops in a line. It was used to buttress a weak flank, strengthen the center when it was isolated by woods or a hill, or to take advantage of ground.

Later it was utilized as a defensive formation when a body of troops was outnumbered or surrounded, or when opposing a cavalry charge. The Spanish, after being surrounded by the French under Conde at Rocroy in 1643, adopted a square formation, but the French smashed the square.

Artillery at Corners.

In many cases ranks 20 to 40 deep, with stores, supplies, reserve artillery, and wounded in the center, and with artillery at the corners to give flanking fire, guarded a retreat.

Over uneven ground, or against an enemy superior in numbers and frequently accompanied by horse, the hollow square developed by the British in colonial wars of the 19th century proved effective.

When fire power became the determining factor in battle, the carré was deemed obsolete. In the new war of mobility, however, where tanks and mechanized equipment deliver the same shock provided by cavalry or the phalanx in the past, the carré may be used extensively. The French have demonstrated its effectiveness against fronts which in mechanized warfare may be anywhere.

100,000 MORE MEN WILL BE ADDED TO ARMY IN INDIA

SIMLA, India, May 31 (AP).—Gen. Sir Robert Cassels, British commander in chief in India, announced today 100,000 additional men would be enrolled in the Indian army and that the Indian air force would be quadrupled.

Gen. Cassels said the present situation in France indicated a definite danger of a spreading of the war which "might mean India would cease to enjoy immunity from enemy action."

The new Indian army formations, the general added, would include motorized and mechanized units. The army now includes about 240,000 native troops, including reserves, and 57,000 British troops. What part of this strength has been retained in India has not been disclosed. Some Indian troops have been sent to France, Palestine, and Egypt.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA SIGN UP JUGO-SLAVIA TO NEW TRADE PACTS

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 31 (AP).—Bonds between Jugo-Slavia and soviet Russia were drawn tighter in private conferences today between Regent Prince Paul and Soviet Minister Vasily Lavrentiev after formal ratification of the Russian-Jugo-Slav trade agreement.

Meanwhile, another trade pact was signed with Germany assuring the reich half of Jugo-Slavia's total exports. This is ten times as much as will be sent to Russia during the next year.

Belief was expressed here that the danger of attack if Italy enters the war has been lessened by the pacts. The Balkan entente economic conference opening here tomorrow was not expected to accomplish much in increasing trade between the members—Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL IN N. Y. RIPS AXIS PACT AND QUITS

New York, May 31 [Special].—Geoffredo Pantaleoni, for many years head of the Italian tourist information office here, resigned today and denounced the alliance between Hitler of Germany and Mussolini of Italy as a "one-way ride" which will end in disaster for Italy.

Pantaleoni, who disclosed that he had taken out his first American citizenship papers, explained in a formal statement that, altho for years in the tourist office he had promoted travel and good will, "the time has now come for me to step down lest I betray my conscience and my ideals."

"Italian officialdom has already been seduced by promises of riches and visions of territorial booty," he said. "Italian publications here and abroad have been giving full encouragement to the spread of Goebbels' propaganda.

"It is my firm belief that if Hitler wins this war with Italy's aid, that he will turn on his ally and completely dominate her."

METER READERS SUGGESTED AS COUNTERSPIES

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—The men who read gas, electric, and water meters would be used as a counter-espionage force against "fifth columns," under a plan proposed today by a special committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

"Sources of information as to fifth column activities," said the committee chairman, E. T. Drew, "are available not only from company records but thru the assistance of employés of the companies who are familiar with the reputation and habits of citizens in their community. The federal bureau of investigation, as well as the army and navy intelligence can, thru this procedure, obtain ready access to such information."

The association voted to aid the government in preventing sabotage of electric, water, and other supply lines.

HOLD 2 TROTSKY BODYGUARDS; 2 OTHERS FREED

MEXICO CITY, May 31 (AP).—Two secretary-bodyguards of Leon Trotsky were released tonight after 48 hours questioning in connection with the unsuccessful machine-gun attack on the Russian exile last Friday.

Two others, including a former Trotsky bodyguard, still were held. Tartly dismissing suggestions that he himself might have arranged the attack, Trotsky said he believed the detention of members of his staff might have been inspired by a police belief in such a theory.

Trotsky said he was "compelled to be pessimistic" about the fate of Sheldon Harte of New York, one of his secretaries abducted by the attackers who swept down on his home in suburban Coyoacan with machine guns blazing.

Armada Returns to Save More from Trap.

blasted beaches across the channel. There, he said, they hid in the dunes until rescue came.

The women of the "ATS," like the soldiers, showed the strain of sleepless nights under constant fire and air raids.

One story of these air raids and what they do to a man came from a British officer:

"I had six hours sleep in 72, and when the bombing was at its worst I spent hours lying in ditches, with my teeth clenched and my fingers wedged in my ears, my face buried in the weeds.

"During the last four days we marched miles under incessant bombing and finished up with a 10 mile trek along a rough beach before we got to the boats."

Most of the men coming back were in their early twenties, but there were a few bemedalled war veterans, morose and silent.

With them, too, were French and the Belgians—those men of Leopold who wouldn't stop fighting when he told them to stop.

Salvage Gun, Down 2 Planes.

One officer who fought thru the lowlands campaign told how his soldiers salvaged a machine gun and ammunition from a German bomber shot down by the R. A. F. and used the gun to bring down two German planes. The gun was mounted on a motorcycle sidecar and taken along on the retreat to the sea.

"Two days later," the officer related, "we were bombed at dawn by a Heinkel [German bomber]. We had with us a trooper who was an expert shot. Using the German machine gun he brought the Heinkel down. . . .

"When we were about to embark, the enemy had been bombing the quayside trying to get our small boat. Just at dusk the last German plane brought down one of our fighters. The British pilot jumped with his parachute and . . . when the German plane circled low over the sheds where we were sheltered, we got in a burst of machine gun fire that brought him down as well."

Cry for More Airplanes.

An infantryman, asked what he thought of the course of the war, exclaimed, "We are going to win this bloody war!"

An artilleryman said, "As long as it ends soon, we are satisfied."

As the Tommies returned, England echoed their cry, "For God's sake give us for airplanes."

The sensational plucking of troops from the French shore and transporting them across the channel is being accomplished despite an infestation of spies, incessant bombing, midget torpedo boat activity, and a land assault into which the Germans flung much of their might.

Returning Tommies declared Nazi losses in Flanders were five times as great as those of the allies.

More Troops in Action.

The men carried all the equipment they could salvage. "We left the heavy stuff behind," one said. Some of the men carried captured German weapons as souvenirs. The returning troops will be rested before going into any new action.

While England welcomed its Flanders survivors it became generally known that with the withdrawal of northern troops, more and more British expeditionary force soldiers are going into another action in France below the Somme river.

The "fifth column" drive was pushed with greater intensity after British military circles today said areas thru which allied forces retreated from France were "riddled with spies."

"It seemed that if army headquarters moved into a house—even if one of a row—it could be guaranteed that that house would be bombed," one spokesman said.

Briton Warns Chile to Bar Submarines from Her Ports

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 31 (AP).—British Ambassador Sir Charles Bentinck was reported today to have advised the Chilean government that any call by German submarines at Chile's ports would be deemed "inconvenient." Informed sources said Chile assured Sir Charles she would maintain her neutrality.

MUSSOLINI KEEPS ALLIES GUESSING ON ISSUE OF WAR

Press Claims Empires Rejected Demands.

ROME, May 31 (AP).—Italy kept Britain and France guessing again today.

But the fact that she is going to strike was emphasized by the leading Italian foreign affairs commentary, Internationali Relazioni, which declared in an editorial to be published on Saturday:

"France and Britain have rejected the demands of the Italian people; these demands will be enforced by arms. . . . The Italian people will fight the French and British enemy with extreme determination to complete victory."

Authoritative Fascists disclaimed any intention of striking first against Greece, aligned with the allies thru a mutual assistance pact, but there was a big "if" to this disclaimer.

Threatens Balkans.

Any allied move toward Salonika, Greek port used as a naval base by the allies in the world war, or Greek partisanship toward Britain and France would bring the Italian army piling down thru the Balkans, Italy warned.

[Another Rome dispatch reported Mussolini yesterday declined to permit American Ambassador William Phillips to present personally a message from President Roosevelt. There was no mention of the note's contents.]

The visit of Dino Alfieri, new Italian ambassador to Germany, to Adolf Hitler's western front headquarters indicated to most observers the two governments were working in close harmony in their plans for what they hope will be the final overthrow of the British and French empires.

[A Berlin dispatch said Germany would watch Italy's action as a friendly power with "extreme calm."]

Private motorists in Italy today enjoyed their last day of automobile driving. Tomorrow their vehicles will be halted for a lack of gasoline permits.

Ration Laundry Soap.

The Fascist government also announced the rationing of laundry soap beginning tomorrow. The monthly allowance will be 200 grams, the equivalent of seven ounces, for each person. Coffee and sugar already are regulated.

A number of American women and children left for Genoa tonight to board the liner Manhattan, scheduled to sail for the United States tomorrow.

Ends Blockade Talks.

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—British doubt that Italy will enter the war on Germany's side was largely removed today by Premier Mussolini's veto of further negotiations with Britain for adjustment of allied contraband control in the Mediterranean.

The only doubt left in the minds of diplomatic observers is just when Italy will line up with Germany.

There are some who believe Italy will plunge into the war within a few days, perhaps over the week-end. Others take the view that Mussolini will wait two or three weeks, perhaps opening first with a peace gesture.

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—An official announcement today said that a new defense regulation forbids use or possession of radio receiving sets in automobiles. All such installations must be dismantled by June 2, the decree stated.

SPANISH PAPERS DEMAND RETURN OF GIBRALTAR

Act as Britain's New Envoy Nears Madrid.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID May 31.—Spain regards Gibraltar as Spanish territory and wants its return, according to statements published in all Madrid newspapers today. The statements were printed on the eve of the arrival of Sir Samuel Hoare, new ambassador from England, who is supposed to be entrusted with special offers from London to the Spanish government.

The opening gun was fired by Manuel Aznar, well known journalist, in the Falangist [Spanish Fascist] organ, "Arriba." He declared: "We Spaniards know and say and shout with perfect unanimity that Gibraltar belongs to us. All that which remains in Gibraltar under a flag that is not Spanish does us injury which we cannot, should not, and do not want to conceal."

British Rule of Straits Hit.

The Aznar article was reproduced in whole or in part on the front pages of other Madrid newspapers, while "Informaciones" ran a similar editorial, declaring, "England denies us the sovereignty of our straits and territorial integrity." It added that Spain should be friendly with any country, including France, which separates itself from England.

The timing of these expressions suggests Hoare will be confronted with a major diplomatic problem on his arrival.

There are other signs that Madrid is to be the setting for much diplomatic activity in coming days. The first was the speedy arrival here of the new French ambassador, Renom de la Baume, with instructions to cement the good feelings between France and Spain, which had been restored by his predecessor, Marshal Henri Petain.

Stress Friendship with Italy.

Reports that Alexander W. Weddell, American ambassador to Spain, will return to Madrid early next week bearing special instructions from President Roosevelt could not be confirmed here.

Spain is currently celebrating "Augustan week" in commemoration of Emperor Caesar Augustus and this has been made the occasion to stress Italo-Spanish friendship. The main ceremonies were held in Saragossa. The city has received a statue of the emperor from Premier Mussolini.

Today's ceremonies at Saragossa closed with the singing of the Fascist and Spanish hymns and shouts of "long live Italy" which were led by Ramon Serrano Suner, brother-in-law of Gen. Francisco Franco.

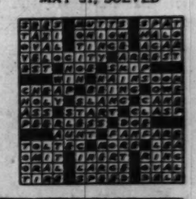
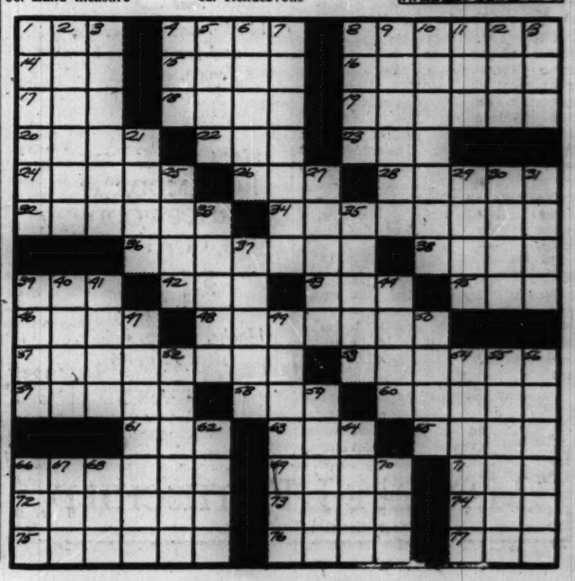
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, MAY 31, SOLVED





HIT ROOSEVELT'S PLEA FOR POWER TO CALL TROOPS

Want Congress on Guard; Favor Extra Billion.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Reception of President Roosevelt's supplemental national defense message on Capitol hill today indicated strong opposition to his request for authority to call the National Guard and the regular army and navy reserves into active service.

The reaction left no doubt that congress speedily will vote the additional funds of more than 1 billion dollars Mr. Roosevelt recommended for the army and navy, but the request for peacetime mobilization powers sounded to many members, both Republicans and Democrats, like a project to exercise war dictatorship authority, tho America is not at war.

The latter proposal produced a chorus of demands for congress to remain in session continuously "during this war hysteria."

Shocking, Vanderberg Says.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] read the passage of the President's speech relating to the National Guard and called it shocking.

"It sounds to me like a request for power to order at least partial mobilization on the strength of executive authority," Vandenberg told the senate. "I submit that if we are that close to emergency this congress had better stay in session continuously and exercise its own constitutional authority with respect to mobilization."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], replying to Vandenberg, took the position that "congress owes it to the people of this country to stay in session during this hysteria that is going on about the war in Europe."

Wheeler Opposes Such Power.

"Not only that," Wheeler said, "but I do not want to give the power to any President in the absence of congress to mobilize the army or anything else and take away the power that rightfully rests with the congress of the United States. My sympathies are with the allies, but I do not favor getting this country into the war, or sending American boys across the waters. Some persons have suggested that we should turn our navy and our airplanes over to the allies. Of course when we do that it is a declaration of war."

Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] said he was "utterly amazed to find in the President's message a request that congress delegate to him the authority to call out the National Guard and the military reserves to safeguard the national defense.

Power Vested in Congress.

"The war making powers in this country, even for defense, rest with congress, and if such an emergency as the President is thinking about really exists or is likely to exist it is the duty of congress to remain in session continuously. We cannot accomplish a defense program in this country if we are to have an excited leadership in the White House."

Senator Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] also demanded that congress remain in session continuously. "There is no hysteria in congress, and that is all the more reason why we should hold the fort," Wiley said.

Wiley's colleague, Senator Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.], said the National Guard undoubtedly needed training but that he opposed "unalterably any blanket authority to call it into service."

Some Republican leaders agreed that the National Guard should receive more training but wanted to know more about Mr. Roosevelt's purpose in seeking authority to mobilize it. One of these was Senator Henry Cabot Lodge [R., Mass.], a reserve captain and a member of the military appropriations subcommittee.

Favors Stronger Guard.

Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the house, said he was glad to see that Mr. Roosevelt recommended particular attention for the National Guard. "It is very important that that branch be brought up to a high state of efficiency," Martin said.

Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] indorsed the President's proposal. "If we have to use our regular army to police adjacent shores that may come under our protection due to the events in Europe, it can readily be seen that the guard and the reserve would be needed at home," he said.

The war department took official cognizance of the opposition in congress to the mobilization proposal. Secretary Harry H. Woodring issued a statement disclaiming any present intention of calling the National Guard into active service. Woodring said the department wished to avoid such a necessity but that a more serious emergency might require it.

225,000 Men in Guard.

There are in the National Guard 15,000 officers and 225,000 enlisted men. Under present law the President must have consent of the governors to call it out in peacetime. In the organized army reserve there are 117,000 officers and 3,000 enlisted men. In the regular army reserve there are 35,000 enlisted men with records of prior service. In the naval reserve there are 14,660 officers and 40,240 enlisted men. In the marine corps reserve 1,407 officers and 10,429 enlisted men.

The President said that only such portion of the National Guard and reserves would be called into active service as is deemed necessary for the purpose. When called into active service these units would be equipped as rapidly as possible and trained for war.

Doubles Emergency Fund.

The supplementary appropriation requested would double the emergency fund asked by the President on May 16 to strengthen the national defense. Together with 2 billion dollars being appropriated for the regular expense of maintenance of the army and navy the national defense program now calls for an outlay of nearly 4½ billions in the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

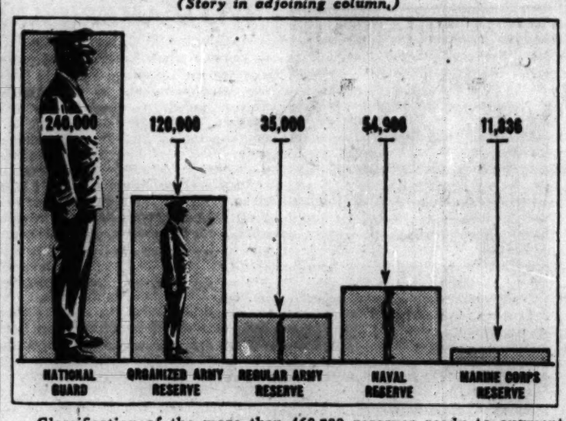
The President indicated that the request for additional funds has been occasioned by "the use of aviation and mechanized equipment" in the irresistible drive of the Nazis thru Belgium and by "possible consequences of further developments."

In this manner Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that in the last two weeks the army high command has awakened to the need of the heavy tanks and other mechanized equipment such as used by the German army and of more powerful antitank guns and other weapons to combat such equipment.

Mr. Roosevelt did not detail the proposed expenditure of the supplemental billion dollars, stating that the war and navy departments would present the specific proposals to the committees of congress.

Reserves for Fighting Forces

(Story in adjoining column.)



Classification of the more than 460,000 reserves ready to augment the United States army, navy, and marine corps in event of a national emergency.

President's Defense Message

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31 (AP).—The text of President Roosevelt's defense message to congress follows:

"The almost incredible events of the last two weeks in the European conflict, particularly as a result of the use of aviation and mechanized equipment, together with the possible consequences of further developments, necessitate another enlargement of our military program.

"No individual, no group can clearly foretell the future. As long, however, as a possibility exists that not one continent or two continents but all continents may become involved in a world-wide war, reasonable precaution demands that American defense be made more certain.

Ask More Defense Material.

"An investigation into manufacturing resources since my message of May 16, to determine the practicability of placing additional orders with industry for special material, both to provide an early expansion of existing production facilities and to obtain increased quantities of the special weapons concerned, has caused the war and navy departments to submit to me an urgent and new recommendation that increased appropriations and authorizations for the national defense be made before the adjournment of the present congress.

"Over and beyond the acquisition of this actual material is the evident requirement for the immediate creation of additional productiton facilities to meet possible future emergencies as well as present deficiencies in the making of munitions, such as guns, ammunition, and fire control equipment. These facilities require a long time to create and to reach quantity production. The increased gravity of the situation indicates that action should be taken without delay.

"The problem of defending our national institutions and territorial integrity is no longer a problem for men equipped simply with an indomitable determination. Modern defense requires that this determination be supported by the highly developed machinery of our industrial productive capacity.

Must Train Youth.

"The expansion of our defense program makes it necessary that we undertake immediately the training and retraining of our people, and especially our young people, for employment in industry and in service in the army and navy.

"The requirements of industry and the expanded armed forces for persons with experience in mechanical and manual fields are obviously going to be great. We do not have such trained persons in the number that will be required for the tasks that lie ahead of us if our defense is to be assured. We have, therefore, the task of training a large number in the skills and semiskills required by modern production in industry and by a highly mechanized defense force in the army and navy.

"A primary consideration in the training of skills must be, not the existing distribution of workers among skilled fields, but the distribution that would be required if our industrial machine and our defensive forces were fully mobilized.

Must Use Latent Abilities.

"In the national effort for defense upon which we are now engaged it is imperative that we make full and effective use of the mighty capacities that lie in our population. Here as yet undeveloped lie the ability and the strength needed in the building up of our armaments to provide a sure industrial foundation for the meeting of any and all defense requirements.

"Without the full development of these skills our national defense will be less than it must be in the critical days which lie ahead. Without the full contribution of our people our defense cannot attain the invulnerability which the nation demands and which we are determined it shall have.

"The one most obvious lesson of the present war in Europe is the value of the factor of speed. There is definite danger in waiting to order the complete equipping and training of armies after a war begins.

"Therefore, I suggest the speedy enlargement of the program for equipping and training in the light of our defense needs.

Asks for Proposals.

"I have instructed the representatives of the war and navy departments and also the representatives of the several agencies dealing with the training of young men for noncombatant services to make available to the appropriate committees of the congress the plans and proposals which they have laid before me.

"These plans call for immediate appropriations to carry forward congressional decisions in bills already pending, for immediate appropriations to add to the program, and for authorization to enter into contracts which it will take some time to complete.

"There is a specific recommendation I would make in concluding this message, that before adjournment this congress grant me the authority to call into active service such portion of the National Guard as may be deemed necessary to maintain our position of neutrality and to safeguard the national defense, this to include authority to call into active service the necessary reserve personnel.

"The amounts involved are large—over a billion dollars—but I believe that for national safety the needs are urgent."

AIR LINE PILOTS ALSO HAVE BEEN TOLD: BE READY

Reveal Orders to Members of Naval Reserve.

New York, May 31 [Special].—Considerable surprise was created here tonight by a revelation, after President Roosevelt's message asking congress for power to call the National Guard and organized reserve into service, that airline pilots, mechanics, and aviation personnel who are members of the naval reserve already had been notified to hold themselves in readiness.

In an official notice received several days ago, it became known at the New York City airport, naval reservists were informed that their value to the national defense might rest in their continuing the functions of the nation's air transportation system. It was added, however, that those who might be spared from the civil life duties should be prepared to report for duty if called.

Signed by Boston Commandant.

The notice received by American Airlines and Canadian Colonial Airway personnel was signed by Capt. John T. Nelson, commanding officer of the 1st naval district, with headquarters at the Boston navy yard.

Capt. Nelson's order stated that "in the event of a general mobilization and depending on the extent of the military effort" only those airline employés in the naval reserve would be called "who can be spared without seriously disrupting the air transportation of the nation."

NO ORDERS HERE.

Capt. Edward A. Evers, commander of the 9th naval reserve district, said last night that the naval reserve forces in Chicago had received no orders to hold themselves in readiness for a call to duty.

He added that between 40 and 50 members of the reserve had voluntarily joined training classes in the navy in the past month.

200 YEAR RISE OF PRUSSIAN MIGHT HAILED IN VIENNA

VIENNA, May 31.—Germany's decisive victories in Flanders coincided with the 200th anniversary today of what is generally considered the founding of her rise to power under Prussian leadership.

Exactly two centuries ago Frederick the Great succeeded his father, Frederick William I. to the Prussian throne and set the course which except for a few setbacks Germany's leaders have followed consistently and victoriously.

Apropos of the anniversary, Vienna's historians in newspaper articles today paid tribute not only to Frederick but also to his father. Between the lines there was seen a hint Adolf Hitler has successfully employed the best policies of both Prussian kings.

New York, May 3 [Special].—The American Export liner Exeter brought $4,000,000 in gold bullion and 110 passengers to Jersey City today after a 56 day voyage to Mediterranean ports. The gold was put aboard at Genoa, but the only explanation available was the stamping "from the international settlement" on the boxes in which it was contained.

Italians in Switzerland Ordered to Return Home

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, May 31 (AP).—The newspaper Gazette de Lausanne reported tonight many Italians who had lived in Switzerland for years have received telegraphic orders from the Italian government to come home. The Italian legation in Berne said it had no knowledge of a general recall, altho "some" Italians might be summoned for military training periods.

NAZIS BLAST FOE FROM ROAD'S END TOWN IN NORWAY

Sink British Cruiser Near Narvik.

STOCKHOLM, May 31 (AP).—German troops shoved into Bodo, Norway, end of the road north, today, after bombing its defenders out of town.

Other German units fought desperately along a railroad thru the mountains near Narvik, 118 miles northwest of Bodo, to keep a line of retreat open to the nearby Swedish frontier. The allies captured Narvik earlier this week after a long siege.

In a communique dated somewhere in Norway, the Norwegian army headquarters reported capture of several hundred Germans driven east from Narvik and said others fled in civilian clothes.

A Norwegian spokesman said Bodo was abandoned after systematic bombing which "virtually wiped the city off the map." Norwegian soldiers fell back into the roadless mountains north of the city to block any attempt to break thru toward Narvik.

Norwegian sources said the allies were steadily widening their hold around Narvik.

Cruiser Goes Down.

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—The admiralty today announced the loss of the British antiaircraft cruiser Curlew.

The 4,290 ton ship was sunk as a result "of a bombing attack some days ago off the north coast of Norway," the announcement said. Four officers and five sailors were lost.

The Curlew had a normal complement of 400, which probably was increased to 450 in wartime.

Second Cruiser Lost.

The Curlew, specially armed with 10 four inch antiaircraft guns and machine guns, was the second British cruiser admitted lost in this sector of the war. The first was the Effingham, sunk after striking a rock in Norwegian waters.

A list of casualties in the sinking of the destroyer Glowworm by the Germans in a battle off Norway on April 8 disclosed today that seven officers, 105 British seamen, and three Maltese seamen were missing and presumed to be dead.

Poles Take Prisoners.

PARIS, May 30.—A Polish general staff communique today said that the Polish Alpine brigade in the Narvik battle had captured many prisoners and taken a great amount of war material, including anti-tank guns, mortars and machine guns. German losses, wounded and killed, were estimated at 200.

50 Killed in Ship Blast.

OSLO, Norway, May 31 (AP).—Dispatches from Bergen said 50 persons were killed today when the coastal steamer Jadarland, 1,000 tons, sank after an explosion near Haugesund.

BRIG. GEN. PROSSER NAMED TO COMMAND SIXTH NEW DIVISION

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—The war department announced today the creation of a 6th "streamlined" division with headquarters at Fort Benning, Ga. Brig. Gen. Walter E. Prosser was assigned to command it. The new unit, designated the 4th division, was set up in anticipation of an immediate increase of 15,000 men in the strength of the regular army.

Brig. Gen. Prosser.

Gen. Prosser is on duty now with the infantry section of the 6th division, which has just completed maneuvers with the 3d army in Louisiana. His permanent station has been at Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo.

The army set out last week to expand its regular forces by 15,000 men by July 1, while enlisting nearly half as many additional men as replacements. By Oct. 1, under plans submitted to congress, it is hoped to add about 38,000 others, raising the regulars to their full authorized peace time strength of 280,000.

1ST MASS ROUND TRIP FLIGHT FROM HAWAII TO MANILA PLANNED

HONOLULU, May 31 (AP).—The navy soon will stage the first mass round trip flight ever attempted between Hawaii and Manila, it was learned today.

Either 14 or 15 flying boats of navy squadron VP-26 will take off from Pearl harbor next Tuesday for Manila to relieve squadron VP-21 on neutrality patrol duty.

After a stop over of several days, the personnel of squadron VP-26 will return the VP-21 planes to Hawaii to be overhauled.

The flight will follow the Pan-American Clipper route for nearly 5,000 miles. At least four guard ships will operate along the route.

JAPANESE PLAN CLOSER CONTROL OF NEWS, OPINION

TOKIO, May 31.—Plans for closer official control of news and opinion have made considerable headway. According to some reports an official propaganda department may be created, but authorities meantime are aiming at the formation of a supervisory organ to coördinate and control the news.

The Domei news agency, which now exercises a practical monopoly of home and foreign news agency services, is reported drafting a plan. Domei, it is understood, wants to retain its dominant position by proposing changes which will give it greater official standing, but authorities are said to prefer control thru the publications section of the home office.

Judging from experience during the China war, there is no urgent need for stronger information control, but officials are thought to be preparing in advance for critical occasions which may arise before the China war is concluded.

BOMB DROPPED INTO ITS FUNNEL SINKS WARSHIP

LONDON, May 31 (AP).—A bomb dropped perfectly into the funnel of a British warship exploded in the interior and sank the vessel, a reliable source said today. Naval men said the odds against such a hit are millions to one. Nothing was said about the identity of the ship. Three British destroyers have been sunk recently, however.

The Foot Still Is War's Most Important Weapon!

San Diego, Cal., May 31 (AP).—The human foot still is the most important instrument in warfare, Dr. O. Gottlieb, Los Angeles orthopedic surgeon, told the California Association of Chiropodists today. "No airplane, tank, battleship, or parachute jumper will ever be able to conquer a territory unless the marching soldier completes the occupation," he said. A corn or a bunion can be just as disabling as a bullet, he added.

Official of Banned Red Paper Faces Trial for Life in Paris

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—Robert Blache, former official of the banned communist newspaper "Humanité," and 32 other members of a secret ring were arrested today for distributing communist tracts. They were held for trial by military tribunals. Eleven of the group, including Blache, will face the death penalty if convicted.

CITY'S CIVILIAN FLYERS SET UP DEFENSE CORPS

Plan Washington Appeal for Training.

Civilian airplane pilots of the Chicago area last night constituted themselves as a secondary defense unit and offered to coöperate with military and naval forces in obtaining advanced training as a background for their greater usefulness in event of war.

About 200 pilots, holding licenses ranging from private to transport, attended a spirited meeting in the Hotel Sherman on call of Robert Morrow and Arthur La Pointe Jr., who became leaders of the group.

Washington Delegation Planned.

After creation of a committee composed of representatives from the various classifications of pilots present, as well as flyers from most of the airports in this vicinity, Morrow said the committee undoubtedly would send a delegation to Washington to make the group's position known to the army, the navy, and the Civil Aeronautics authority.

A representative of the CAA, Norvel Richardson, came in for criticism from the floor during the course of the meeting, which opened with a speech by La Pointe in which he charged that the administration in Washington had neglected the private pilots and that the CAA had ignored them.

"Fifty thousand pilots are to be trained," La Pointe said, "and all of us are wondering where we stand in this program. If a national emergency arose all of us would be valuable, and many of you are far better trained now than were pilots who were sent to the war in '17. You must demand that this pilot training include you, so you can have the benefits of it in case of an emergency."

Advises Flyers on Action.

Richardson advised the group to ask itself how it could best help the army and the navy and then present a program along those lines.

"Does the government want us, or doesn't it?" a voice demanded. "Why do we have to ask?"

"Well, I can tell you this: there are plans for a civilian reserve," Richardson told the crowd. "But how you will fit into it I don't know. Until there is some plan for your use I don't see why we should give you additional training."

"Let's go to Washington and find some one to push our training program thru," Morrow proposed, and selection of a committee began.

LEGION HEAD SAYS U. S. WAR ENTRY WOULD BE ERROR

Entry of the United States into the present European war would be not only a grave error but a futile, dangerous gesture, Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, said yesterday. He spoke at a luncheon of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman.

Kelly said this country is not half prepared to defend itself. Moral influence or backing, he declared, would have no effect on 70 ton war tanks or diving bombing planes. Our foreign policy should be one of practical measures, he added.

Kelly also warned against subversive groups plotting against the government.

"These ism inciters have become firmly entrenched in the last decade," he said. "For years this country has been the subject of undeclared war by subversive groups."

Each Legion post thruout the country, he said, has a good idea of those engaged in such work in its community. This information will be turned over to government agents for action, he said.

WIFE OF BROKER REPORTS HOLDUP BY TAXI DRIVER

A taxicab ride that ended in robbery was reported to police last night by Mrs. Eleanor Carbery Vose, wife of Charles Redfield Vose, a wealthy New York insurance broker. She and her husband are staying at the Blackstone hotel.

They became separated in a downtown bar, and Mrs. Vose hired a cab at Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard and directed the driver to take her to the hotel. Instead, she said, he forced her to hand over an emerald ring, valued at $1,200; a diamond ring, costing $300; a wrist watch and an inexpensive set of pearls, totally valued at $55, and $16 in cash. Then the driver put her out of the cab, she said. He had no gun.

Mrs. Vose returned to her hotel in another cab, met her husband, and went to the Central police station. There she drew a profile sketch of the taxi driver-bandit. The stolen jewelry is insured. Her husband four years ago figured in a breach of promise suit in New York, and was assessed $40,000 in favor of the plaintiff, Valerie Huff, a dancer.

PURGE POLITICS FROM DEFENSE, DEWEY REPEATS

Says Publicity Wins Some Changes.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—The free press and strong opposition of the Republican party prevented President Roosevelt from making mere subordinates of members of his new defense commission, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey declared today.

Dewey, a leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, made the statement at a press conference. He expressed hopes the President would take further steps to remove the huge task of national defense "entirely from political control."

"The President is to be congratulated on the change of his position, announced yesterday, with regard to the national defense commission," said Dewey.

Taken from Under Cabinet.

"Last week the President announced thru his secretary and again announced in person on Tuesday, that the experts on the commission were to be subordinate to the New Deal cabinet. Yesterday, in response to public demand, he reserved this position and stated that the defense commission would not be subordinate to the cabinet, but would be responsible directly to the President.

"This is a hopeful sign and is progress in the right direction. Much remains to be done.

"The all important function of a free press and a strong and articulate opposition party has just had an important demonstration. It has changed the announced course of preparations for the national defense.

"Now we can hope that the President will continue to listen and will take the further steps necessary to remove this enormous job entirely from political control."

Returns from Campaign.

Dewey returned yesterday from a campaign tour thru the south and will take the stump again next week in West Virginia and North Carolina. He said he had not decided yet who would present his name to the Republican national convention a month from now in Philadelphia. His headquarters here will move to Philadelphia in 10 days.

The prosecutor was asked about the move on foot by his forces to oust from office the unfriendly national committeeman from New York state, Kenneth Simpson, before the convention.

"That is for the delegates to determine," replied Dewey.

Simpson's disaffection is expected to cut into the Dewey strength on the New York delegation. However, the prosecutor's advisers decided recently they wanted to fight out in the open rather than having Simpson working behind Deweys' back.

Dewey expressed his satisfaction over the results of his recent southern swing. He pointed to newspaper dispatches stating that seven of the 13 delegates from Alabama had declared themselves for Dewey. It is known the Dewey camp also claims 12 delegates from North Carolina and at least three from Louisiana.

FORMER CALEDONIA MERCHANT DIES.

Caledonia, Ill., May 31 [Special].—Harold F. Sweeney, 43 years old, who formerly operated a barber shop and general store here, died today while on a business trip thru Oklahoma. He had been living recently in Kansas City, Mo. Funeral services and burial will be held at Belvidere Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Williams leaving the hotel with their belongings.

Nearly 300 persons were driven to the street shortly before dark last evening when fire attacked the two upper floors of the four story Mayflower apartment hotel at 6125 Kenwood avenue.

The escape of the guests was effected without injury, because of prompt warnings by hotel employés and the additional fact that the fire, starting on the roof, burned downward and worked against entrapment. Several guests were helped from their rooms. One, Miss Margaret Sullivan, a cripple, was carried out by J. A. Pasch, the hotel manager.

The fire spread rapidly, and for a time threatened adjoining buildings. Damage was estimated at $50,000. One fireman, James Mullen, of Truck 16, was slightly injured. A spectator, John MacQuarrie, 65, of 6229 Drexel avenue, died of a heart attack.

One of the hotel guests, a woman refugee from Hungary, was later befriended by Henry Morgenthau, son of the secretary of the treasury. At his request federal agents searched her damaged room and recovered some foreign money. The woman was taken to International house for the night. Her name was not learned.

WILLKIE WILL MAKE SPEECH IN ST. LOUIS ON NEXT THURSDAY

New York, May 31 [Special].—Following a swing thru the west, Wendell L. Willkie, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, will return to St. Louis on June 6 to speak, it was announced today.

From the office of Russell W. Davenport, came an announcement that the Brooklyn Young Republican club had indorsed Willkie more than 2 to 1 over Thomas E. Dewey, Manhattan district attorney. There are now 300 Willkie clubs in 35 states, Davenport reported, and 40,000 volunteer workers are pushing the Willkie-for-President campaign thruout the country.

Oren Root Jr., founder of the People's Committee for Willkie, said he has been deluged with petitions signed all over the country by Willkie admirers. At his headquarters, there are three volunteer tabulators who are unable to keep up with the tally, he said. He has established 71 clubs thruout the country with 100 more in process of formation.

ORPHANAGE BOYS PLAY WAR GAME; RESULT: 1 DEAD

A game of war ended in tragedy last evening on the grounds of the Guardian Angel orphanage at 2001 Devon avenue. The players were Wilfredo Aqueros and Claudio Garcia, Mexicans; William Smith and Harold Johnson, each 16 years old, and inmates of the home. They divided into allies and Nazis.

Their weapons were simulated spears—thin metal rods with sharp ends, used in the orphanage greenhouse. They threw the spears about. One—hurled by the Garcia boy—struck the Aqueros boy in the left temple. He was killed instantly.

DEFENSE FISCAL JUGGLING DENIED BY MORGENTHAU

He Urges Speedy Action on New Tax Bill.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Charges that the Roosevelt administration is using the national defense program to extricate itself from a dangerous financial position caused by prolonged New Deal spending were denied today by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Morgenthau appeared before the house ways and means committee to support the bill to raise 3 billion dollars in new taxes over a five year period and to lift the statutory debt limit from 45 billions to 48 billions.

The treasury head testified that the extraordinary requirements for national defense proposed by President Roosevelt would completely exhaust the treasury's borrowing power by next Feb. 28 and leave a dangerously low working balance of $600,000,000.

Republicans Raise Question.

Republican members of the committee asked whether the treasury would not be in equally bad shape some time in 1941 even if no emergency defense spending had been proposed.

Morgenthau, after consultation with Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel Bell, said that on Jan. 1, 1942, ordinary administration expenditures would have brought the national debt within 314 millions of the 45 billion limit and left a working balance of only 749 millions in the treasury.

"Then you are making this national defense emergency the vehicle for increasing the debt limit and providing revenue to meet the increased expenses of the government," commented Representative Thomas A. Jenkins [R., O.].

"I don't agree with you," said Morgenthau.

Extra Billion Omitted.

The secretary's statement regarding the depletion of the treasury by the end of next February did not take into account the President's latest demands for more than one billion dollars for military and naval expenditures sent to congress today. That proposal would exhaust the treasury's borrowing power before the end of this year, it was estimated.

Representative Jenkins and other minority members sought to obtain from Morgenthau an explanation of the circumstances behind Mr. Roosevelt's sudden decision between Tuesday and Thursday of this week to ask for an extra billion dollars in addition to the 3 billion 300 millions now in the process of appropriation by congress.

"That's White House business," Morgenthau answered, "and I cannot discuss it. When we discussed this tax bill last Tuesday I was not aware that an extra billion dollars was to be asked."

Believes Public Willing.

Morgenthau declared the American people are not only willing but eager to pay the new taxes involved in the pending bill which will yield an estimated $656,000,000 a year for the next five years to pay for 3 billion dollars in "national defense bonds" to be issued by the treasury.

On the basis of appropriation bills passed and pending, the deficit for the fiscal year 1941 will amount to 3 billion 703 million dollars, Morgenthau testified. Adding the more than a billion dollars asked by Mr. Roosevelt today will put the government in the position of spending nearly 5 billions more in the next fiscal year than its income.

Morgenthau pleaded for quick passage of the tax and debt-raising measure. He added that he was agreeable to congress working out a general revision of the tax problem later.

Mrs. Helen Hastings, 1053 West 58th street, and her son Dennis with clerk at county building yesterday to pay taxes. Women who had small children with them were pushed ahead of others in rush.

More than 10,000 taxpayers jammed the county treasurer's office on the first floor of the county building yesterday in a last minute rush to pay their 1939 tax bills.

Treasurer John Toman warned that today is the final day to pay 1939 bills without penalty. He reminded taxpayers that he will keep his office open until 4 p. m. to receive payments. Late payments are penalized 1 per cent for each month or part of a month they are overdue. Bills paid by mail will escape penalties if postmarked before midnight tonight.

Yesterday's receipts soared to a record high for this year for a single day, amounting to $6,710,878, compared with $3,812,453 on the corresponding day last year.

This brought the total 1939 collections thru last night to $45,237,678, or 19 per cent below the comparable total of $55,252,359 last year. Before yesterday's receipts were counted collections were running 25 per cent lower than for last year.

BRITISH REMOVE 21 BAGS OF MAIL FROM CLIPPER

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 31 (AP).—Twenty-one bags of mail, nine of them from Germany, were removed today from the westbound Pan-American Yankee Clipper which landed here with Rosemary Kennedy, daughter of Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to London, and several other Americans aboard. It was said that the Belgian royal children, contrary to rumor, were not on the Clipper.

Bad weather was given as the cause for the landing. The big flying boats abandoned regular stops here several weeks ago after British officials began removing mail from them.

The Clipper will leave for New York tomorrow.

23 U. S. VESSELS LEAVE WAR ZONE WITH AMERICANS

Washington, D. C., May 31 [Special].—Twenty-three American passenger and freight ships are en route from the Mediterranean to the United States loaded to capacity with passengers, the state department announced today. The state department today cautioned belligerents against molesting or delaying these vessels.

They are the liners President Harrison, bound from Port Said to New York; the Exchorda and the Excambion, from the eastern Mediterranean and Italian ports to New York, and 20 freighters from Black sea and eastern Mediterranean ports carrying from 10 to 20 passengers each.

The liner Manhattan will sail from Genoa tomorrow bound for New York with a full emergency passenger list and then, the department said, very few, if any, Americans who desire to return to the United States will remain in Italy, the Balkans, or the Levant.

After the Manhattan sails, Americans in Italy and Switzerland desiring to return home have been instructed to proceed to Bordeaux, where they may board the Washington which is due there from New York on June 4.

The liner Roosevelt was due tonight at Galway, Ireland, where she will take on passengers from the British Isles and leave immediately on the return voyage.

FRENCH CHARGE TREASON LED TO NAZI SUCCESSES

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—A French military spokesman declared tonight that the German military successes were "directly due to treason."

He spoke of an incident, in which only one officer knew how to blow up a bridge over which the Nazi forces were able to cross the Albert canal fortifications in Belgium, as "distinctly unmilitary."

"It is unbelievable" that no one under that officer's command of 50 men knew how to blow up the bridge, the spokesman said, adding:

"Anyway, the French soldiers who attributed the German advances to the French high command mistakes now know where to place the blame."

SUICIDE REVEALS STATE WORKER'S SALES TAX FRAUD

Levies Collected, but Not Entered on Books.

Springfield, Ill., May 31 [Special].—A sales tax scandal, involving the fleecing of numerous central Illinois business men, was disclosed today at an inquest into the suicide of William Ross Nicholas, a bookkeeper in the sales tax division of the state finance department.

Evidence presented to a Sangamon county coroner's jury showed Nicholas' superiors had known he was operating a tax auditing scheme, that they had warned him to stop, and that they were aware he had continued the practice.

Found Dead in Tavern.

He was alleged to have collected about $2,000 in sales taxes which he hadn't turned over to the state. On May 14, the day after he had been questioned about some of the payments, he was found shot to death in a tavern south of this city. The coroner's jury held he committed suicide.

The disclosure of Nicholas' defalcation added weight to the request made upon Gov. Henry Horner last Tuesday that he appear before the house committee investigating waste and corruption in his administration and give aid in exposing sales tax irregularities.

In the formal request for his appearance, which the governor curtly turned down, Representative Clinton Searle [R., Rock Island], chairman of the committee, wrote:

"There has come to the attention of the committee evidence of the existence of a 'sales tax fix ring,' resulting in a serious drainage in state revenues. We had intended to ask your cooperation in exposing and clearing up this situation."

System Offered for Sale.

Altho Searle said today he did not know then of the Nicholas matter, the new development added point to the demand for an official airing of activities in some of the departmental divisions presided over by Finance Director Samuel L. Nudelman, head of the governor's cabinet.

Nicholas, in addition to his employment by the state, solicited business men—particularly tavern keepers and gasoline station operators—to buy a bookkeeping system for computing their sales tax.

In selling his system, Nicholas promised periodically to audit the purchasers' books and to tell them how much they owed the state in sales taxes. This he did and merchants frequently paid him money, $1,975 of which he pocketed, according to evidence presented at the inquest.

Warned to Stop Activities.

Coroner W. L. Dragoo read a letter from G. T. Gaskins, supervisor of the sales tax division, in which the latter wrote that Nicholas and a man named Henry Johannameyer had been warned to halt their activities.

Nicholas promised to stop, Gaskins said, but it was recently disclosed that he was continuing his activities. A new investigation was being made at the time of his death.

Edward R. McCann, operator of a Springfield tavern, testified at the inquest that Nicholas had audited his sales tax books for more than a year. He said he had receipts showing he had paid Nicholas $132 in taxes, but no returns for this amount were made to the finance department.

Bad Check Cashed.

John Heffron, bartender in the tavern where Nicholas shot himself, said Nicholas agreed to pay a $15 sales tax assessment against the tavern in settlement of a bad check the bookkeeper had cashed there, but the tax was never paid.

Contradicting the belief of merchants that in paying the taxes to Nicholas they were turning them over to an accredited representative of the sales tax division, Supervisor Gaskins asserted that they are still liable for the amount the bookkeeper pocketed.

"The department has always instructed taxpayers to make all remittances payable only to the department of finance," he said.

Among businesses said to have paid their taxes to Nicholas, and to still owe the assessments are: Capitol Way inn, $220; Fisher's market, $410; Eleanor Danner tavern, $15; East Side Club tavern, $151; Elkhorn tavern, $15; Twin Pine inn, $52, and Starlight tavern, $32.

HUNT 2 FORMER SCALISE AIDS IN UNION INQUIRIES

Two workers in the Chicago headquarters of the Building Service Employés' International union were being sought yesterday thruout the middle west. They are accused of evading New York and Chicago grand jury investigations of the union's ousted president, George Scalise, ex-convict and pander.

Paul David.

The two are Paul B. David, secretary-treasurer of the union, and Kenneth Ashley, who are sought as key witnesses in both inquiries. Scalise is in jail in New York unable to supply bond on indictments charging him with extortion, larceny, embezzlement, and forgery in connection with union funds. State's Attorney Courtney is presenting evidence to the Cook county grand jury concerning the alleged theft of thousands of dollars from the union treasury.

David was to have gone before the New York grand jury on May 20 and Ashley was to have appeared Monday. Neither appeared, however, and both have disappeared from Chicago.

REDS' SCHEDULED RADIO BROADCAST CAUSES PROTEST

Censorship Urged in Senate; Ban Sought.

Washington, D. C., May 31 [Special].—A scheduled broadcast Sunday of the American Communist party's convention proceedings brought a proposal in the senate today th certain discretionary powers of censorship be given radio chains and a demand from a former congressman that communists be barred from the nation's radio lanes.

Amendment of the 1934 communications act to permit broadcasting companies some discretionary censorship powers in the matter of extending their facilities to political candidates was suggested by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.].

"The present law was drafted so as to preserve the right of free speech in the United States, and to see to it that each candidate for public office had a right to express his views, whether we agreed with them or not," Senator Wheeler said.

"I think that the law probably should be changed, because of the fact that it perhaps goes too far in this respect. It goes so far as to make it impossible for a broadcaster to censor a statement even if it contains libelous matter."

O'Connor Seeks Injunction.

Senator Wheeler's statement was made during debate on the proposed transfer of the bureau of immigration and naturalization to the department of justice. He mentioned the controversy precipitated today by the protests of former representative John J. O'Connor of New York against the scheduled broadcast of the communist party's convention.

In New York City former Congressman O'Connor applied to the state Supreme court for an injunction to restrain the major radio systems from broadcasting the convention proceedings. He charged the communist party is 'a direct and admitted agent of soviet Russia" and a fifth column group.

Before seeking the injunction, the former congressman, one of the victims of President Roosevelt's purge 18 months ago, telegraphed the Federal Communications commission urging it to take action. The commission replied, however, that it was without authority to intercede.

Powers Are Limited.

Under the law, the FCC may intervene to rule off the air only lotteries and persons uttering obscene, indecent, or profane language. It is expressly forbidden to censor radio communications, or to make any rule or regulation interfering with the right of free speech by radio.

Meanwhile, the communist convention, in its second day, received reports that the party in this country had contributed $18,000 in the last two years, including $5,000 in the last six months, to the communist party in Germany to aid "in its fight against the Hitler régime."

The convention also was formally notified that in 1939, a total of 196 communist newspapers were published and circulated in every major American city, an increase from 82 in 1938.

KEYHOLE PEEPER GIVES COIN THIEF A 60 DAY STARE

For three weeks, off and on, Rudolph W. Brokopp, a special inspector for the elevated lines, peered thru a keyhole, waiting to trap the thief who was looting coin boxes in the station washroom at Quincy and Wells streets. Last Monday, thru his spyhole, Brokopp said he saw Frank Fagala, 31 years old, open a coin box with a key and remove the money. Yesterday Fagala, who once worked in a slot machine factory, pleaded guilty to petty larceny, and was sentenced to by Municipal Judge Charles S. Dougherty to 60 days in the Bridewell.

City Does Right Well with 50c Race Bets; Nets $1,512

The city collected $1,512 during May by the simple expedient of sending plain clothes policemen out to place 50 cent bets with bookmakers. The bookmakers were then brought to court on a charge of registering the bets and were fined by Municipal Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Racket court. A total of 112 pleaded guilty.

POLICE SEIZE 8 CYCLISTS WITH NOISY EXHAUSTS

Warn All Vehicles Must Have Good Mufflers.

BY HAL FOUST.

Eight riders of noisy motorcycles received arrest tickets in two days of a campaign being conducted by Capt. David Flynn, head of the police traffic division, he announced last night. They were charged with violating the city ordinance requiring an efficient muffler in constant operation on all motor vehicles in Chicago.

Capt. David Flynn.

The summonses are returnable in the Cafeteria court with a $2 fine.

"The public does not have to tolerate thundering exhausts from these motor wheels," said the captain. "All of our cycle policemen and safety patrol crews have been instructed to issue summonses for all violations of the muffler ordinance that they note while performing their other duties.

"Compliance with the ordinance requires more than a semblance of a muffler. It must be a muffler in good condition, not one with the insides blown out by backfiring. Cutouts must not be used."

The defendants and the locations of their alleged offenses are as follows:

Milton Gervais, 4727 Lake Park avenue, at 39th street and South Chicago avenue.

Blaine Elliott, 844 Madison street, at 67th and Morgan streets.

James Waschunas, 5025 South Keeler avenue, at Archer and Keeler avenues.

Forest Parker, 406 South boulevard, Evanston, at Addison street and Ashland avenue.

William Gengenworth, 533 South Winchester avenue, at Western avenue and 79th street.

John Meschick, 5543 South Peoria street, at Madison street and Sacramento boulevard.

Marion Swanson, 5543 South Peoria street, at 57th street and Racine avenue.

Attilio Pirrotta, 9158 Greenwood avenue, at State and Washington streets.

Capt. Flynn said his men are also arresting drivers of passenger automobiles and of trucks that do not have proper mufflers.

EVASIVE GAMING PROBE WITNESS GETS 6 MONTHS

Stuart Solomon Brown, accused by the government of operating a currency exchange thru which members of the Johnson - Skidmore gambling syndicate cleared large checks, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward to six months in jail for contempt of court.

Stuart S. Brown.

William Goldstein, former personal attorney for William R. Skidmore, alleged fixer for the syndicate, was acquitted on the same charge. The charges were placed against Goldstein and Brown as a result of testimony before the grand jury, which indicted Skidmore, Johnson, reputed syndicate head, and numerous underlings on charges of income tax evasion. The judge described Brown as an untruthful and evasive witness.

ALTERED COURT RECORD BARED IN LIQUOR HEARING

Alteration of the records of Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green to show a straight "not guilty" finding on a petty larceny charge against a tavern owner was disclosed yesterday at a hearing of the city liquor commission. Three months ago the judge's order on the same case read, "It appearing to the court the defendant has made restitution of $120 in open court, he is discharged except as to time served."

The tavern owner is Harry Brodsky, part owner of a tavern at 1031 South Wabash avenue. On Feb. 24 Judge Green sentenced Brodsky to the Bridewell on a complaint from a customer that he had lost $120 in the tavern. After serving two days, Brodsky appeared before Judge Green and made restitution.

His appearance before the commission yesterday was made in an appeal for a 1940 liquor license which had been denied him because of the revocation of his 1939 license following the customer's complaint. The commission took the case under advise ment.

BRICKER PAUSES IN CITY ON WAY TO GOVERNORS' MEET

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio stopped in Chicago yesterday morning between trains, en route to Duluth, Minn., to attend the 1940 National Governors' conference. Gov. Bricker said he favors an adequate and reasonable national defense program. He added that this subject probably will not be taken up officially at the governors' conference, because of its national character. The meeting, which runs from tomorrow thru Tuesday, will be devoted chiefly to internal affairs of state administration, Gov. Bricker said. He was arcompanied by Mrs. Bricker; his secretary, Donald C. Powers, and Mrs. Powers.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1940 Traffic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an urban superhighway.

2 FREIGHT TRAINS MANGLE AN AUTO; 1 HURT, 3 ESCAPE

Victim Trapped Inside; Others Leap Clear.

One man was injured and three others escaped unhurt yesterday when their automobile was struck by two freight trains of the Elgin, Joliet, and Eastern railroad where three tracks cross East End avenue in Chicago Heights.

The automobile, north bound, crossed two tracks and then smashed into the side of a west bound freight train on the north tracks. It bounced back in the path of an east bound train on the center track.

Three Jump Clear.

Henry Peerbolte, 24 years old, of Momence, the driver, his brother, John, and Wilmer Wilkening of Crete jumped clear of the wreckage. Another Peerbolte brother, Joseph, 20, trapped inside, was injured seriously when the second freight train struck the mangled car and tossed it to one side. He was taken to the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights.

Gust Bookedis, 55, of 944 North Michigan avenue, a chef, was injured fatally as he crossed Rush street at Walton street. According to the report of East Chicago avenue police, Mrs. Marie B. Johnson, 1209 Astor street, whose car struck Bookedis, was instructed to attend the inquest today.

Anton Szymanski, 27, 9160 Harbor avenue, was killed when his truck, loaded with cement, overturned after striking a viaduct in the 9900 block of Ewing avenue.

Harry A. Gilbert, 51 years old, 1714 North Lawndale avenue, a WPA worker, was killed by a car at Lawndale and North avenues. The driver was Edward Willigan, 48, of 1741 North Albany avenue.

An unidentified man, about 60 years old, who was struck by a hit and run car in front of 1244 Bosworth avenue, died early today in the county hospital. Shortly before his death police seized Tony La Rocco, 18, of 1474 Erie street, as the alleged driver. He was named by Stanley Szczygiel, 20, of 1360 Chestnut street, who was in the car, and who stayed with the injured man until police arrived.

Injured as Car Overturns.

Leroy Dornburg, 26, of 716 South Oakley boulevard, was injured when he swerved his automobile to avoid collision with another car on Lake Shore drive at North avenue. The car rolled down an embankment, turned over several times, and snapped off a lamp post. Dornburg was taken to Passavant hospital.

Clifford Mischke, 18, died in the Alexian Brothers hospital of injuries suffered Wednesday when he was struck by a truck while riding his bicycle near his home at 2427 Clybourn avenue.

Sixty-nine persons lost their lives in Cook county automobile accidents during May, statistics compiled by the coroner's office showed at 5 p. m. yesterday. This was an increase of 25 over the toll for the same period last year.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 350 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 270 were killed in Chicago, where 8,929 were injured in the same period.

COURT ENJOINS UNION CZARDOM BY CAPONE GANG

Grab of Bartender Funds Forbidden by Writ.

Judge George Fred Rush.

A temporary injunction restraining gangsters, who were lieutenants of Al Capone in his heyday of crime, from looting the treasury of the Bartenders and Beverage Dispensers union, Local 278, or coercing or ousting members of the union was issued yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush in Circuit court.

The order was granted after the judge heard charges that Louis Romano, union president, is working with the Capone hoodlums to obtain czarlike control of the union and to misappropriate its funds. Assets of the union treasury are estimated at $125,000 and its annual revenue from dues and assessments is $250,000. The union holds an A. F. of L. charter.

The injunction was obtained by George McLane, business agent of the union; his brother, Michael, and his brother-in-law, William Salvatore. Their 32 page petition made sensational allegations of the manner in which the Capone syndicate muscled into the union.

One Man Stand Described.

The order was issued without notice to the defendants when Attorney A. C. Lewis, counsel for the plaintiffs, said any delay would be prejudicial to his clients and might deprive them of their union membership.

"George McLane is the only man who stands between the Capone syndicate and the looting of the union funds," Lewis said.

"It seems to me," said Judge Rush, "that George McLane allowed the gang to get into the union and now wants the court to get it out. But maybe he has reformed and really wants to save the union. The temporary injunction will issue."

Romano refused to discuss the injunction or the charges last night.

"We'll see whether they can prove anything in court," he said.

Fight Planned on Writ.

He announced he had engaged Attorney Harold Levy to defend him and that an answer to the suit or a motion to dissolve the injunction will be filed next week.

The immediate effect of the injunction, in addition to tying up the union funds, will be to prevent the plaintiffs' expulsion from the union. Michael McLane and Salvatore had been ordered to appear at the union offices, 10 North Clark street, Monday afternoon for a hearing on charges brought by Romano.

Michael McLane was accused of being an informer for a newspaper, the charge being based on his getting a pass to the Chicago Stadium from a reporter. Salvatore was accused of misusing influence acquired thru union connections, the charge growing out of his brief employment as a whisky salesman after he lost his job as assistant business agent for the union.

Charges Called Technicalities.

George McLane is under what amounts to union suspension because of publicity given Romano's scheme to charge each of the 4,800 members of the union $10 a year for hospitalization whether or not they need it. The three plaintiffs asserted these charges were technicalities by which Romano hoped to purge the McLane faction from the union.

The injunction restrains any interference with George McLane's duties as business agent and the filing of any charges against the plaintiffs until there has been an election of union officers under court supervision. It also prevents Romano from acting under dictatorial by-laws promulgated May 6 which would give him power to appoint a committee to investigate eligibility of candidates for union office.

Nitti Named in Plea for Writ.

Defendants, in addition to Romano, who is described as a Capone appointee, include James Crowley, secretary treasurer of the union, and Tom Panton, business representative; Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, boss gangster of the syndicate; Murray Humphreys, next in line to Nitti in syndicate affairs, and Paul Ricca, Louis [Little New York] Campagna, and a "Fred Evans."

The other defendants are Charles Youpel, Frank Conboy, Otto Murer, John Butler, and W. M. McTaffe, union members appointed by Romano to hear the charges against Salvatore and Michael McLane.

The petition said George McLane, who is 50 years old, has been business representative of the local union for 28 years and was vice president of the international from 1934 to 1938, inclusive. His salary as business representative is $200 a week.

Gang's History Described.

Then the petition described the history of the Capone gang and how labor unions appealed to the gang as a lucrative field for activity.

"The reputations of members of the gang as criminals and murderers were such that union officials and members were terrified at their approach and afraid to resist their demands," the petition said.

"The Capone syndicate was the originator of the now famous Hitler policy of disposing separately of each person who interfered with its designs. The syndicate owns, operates, and manages or controls numerous taverns, bars, and night clubs in and around Chicago.

"When the bartenders' union attempted to organize these places in 1934 and 1935 many pickets and business agents were slugged and various members of the union received threats."

In March, 1935, the bill continued, George McLane received a telephone call from a syndicate emissary demanding $500 from the union, and later another emissary visited him and repeated the demand. McLane said he had no authority to pay the money and "thereupon said emissary told the plaintiff the syndicate would come and take the organization over," the bill said.

"On the following Tuesday," the bill said, "McLane received a call to come to the Capri restaurant, 123 North Clark street. There he found Nitti, Ricca, and Campagna. These three told him he must put Louis Romano on the pay roll of the union 'or else.' By 'or else' the plaintiff understood he would be killed if he refused to comply with the order.

Hired as Business Agent.

"These three likewise promised that when Romano was put on the pay roll the sluggings would stop and picketed bars would sign up. The plaintiff was terrified and coerced by said threats, fearing violence or death if he failed to comply. He did, by virtue of said coercion, hire Romano as a business agent. The sluggings and threats stopped."

Robert Starchi, former president of the union, died in September, 1938. McLane again was called to the restaurant, the bill said, and Humphreys and Evans ordered him to appoint Romano as president. McLane and the union trustees then were coerced into naming Romano to the post.

On Aug. 4, 1939, the bill said, Evans and Humphreys told McLane he would only be nominal business representative, that they were taking over the union, and that McLane would get orders from Romano. McLane left the state for three months, according to the bill, when Romano, Evans, and Humphreys told him "it would be much safer if he took a long vacation."

Rule Over Board Cited.

The bill further stated that, if Romano succeeded in ousting the McLanes and Salvatore, their appeal would have to be to the local joint board but they would have little chance as Romano also is head of this organization.

"An appeal to the international union [headquarters in Cincinnati, O.] likewise would be unavailing," the bill said. "Since Romano has been president of the local joint board it has made costly presents to the secretary and two of the vice presidents of the international union, the presents consisting of wrist watches, diamond rings, and the like.

"The international can exercise no control over the local union and has no method of enforcing its judgments and decisions, except by revocation of the charter of the local, and such revocation would not in any manner deter the defendants from carrying out their predetermined course of conduct.

Officers' Fears Told.

"The local union, without affiliation with the international, can function as much to the advantage of said defendants and the Capone syndicate as if affiliated therewith and the plaintiffs further aver that the president [Edward Flore of Buffalo, N. Y.] and other international union officials are, in the same manner as the local union members, intimidated by said defendants and syndicate and would be fearful to act against their express desires and interests."

McLane named the recipients of gifts from the joint board as Hugo Ernest of Cincinnati, the secretary, and Al Kilday of Minneapolis, Minn., and Ed Miller of Kansas City, Mo., vice presidents.

McLane further alleged that syndicate gangsters have frequented the neighborhood of his home at 2911 Lunt avenue and have had him shadowed. He has not gone to his office for fear his life was in danger, McLane said.

Tavern Coercion Charged.

"Plaintiffs further represent," the bill went on, "that the Capone syndicate either manufactures or controls distribution of various brands of beer, whisky, and other beverages, and thru its control of the union is attempting to force and is forcing various proprietors of taverns and bars to use said liquors in preference to other brands preferred by said dispensers, and that the syndicate is reaping enormous profits therefrom.

"Plaintiffs represent that the Capone syndicate has control of the union treasury and of dues and assessments; that its purpose is to loot the treasury and appropriate the funds for itself; that McLane has been the one barrier which has prevented complete looting of the treasury; that, notwithstanding efforts and vigilance of McLane, he believes large sums have been misappropriated by the syndicate from the union treasury."

In addition to the relief granted by the temporary injunction the bill asks a permanent injunction along the same lines, a full accounting of the union funds, appointment of a receiver, and an election of officers under court supervision. As the defendants never worked as bartenders and are not members in good standing of the union, they would be barred from voting in such an election.

Writ Forbids Gangsters to Draw Union Funds

Louis (Little New York) Campagna (left), Frank (the Enforcer) Nitti (center), and Murray Humphreys, among group forbidden to draw funds of bartenders' union or to coerce or oust the members. The injunction was issued yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush in the Circuit court.

Louis [Little New York] Campagna was one of Al Capone's original bodyguards, has a long string of gang affiliations and has been arrested many times for questioning in gang activities. In 1936 he was one of the hoodlums investigated in connection with the murders of State Representatives John M. Bolton and Albert J. Prignano. Campagna was close to Nitti in the revival of the Capone gang to control rackets. The word was out in 1936 that an O. K. was necessary from Nitti and Campagna for entrance into the rackets.

Frank Nitti is regarded as the boss and the brains of the latter day Capone syndicate. He was the finance minister and murder agent of the gang even while Al Capone was in power. In 1930 he was sent to Leavenworth penitentiary for 18 months for income tax evasion.

In 1932, after his release, he was shot in an encounter with police. He has been arrested several times in recent years for questioning on the revival of the Capone syndicate to control gambling, prostitution, and other rackets.

Murray Humphreys has long been a gangland figure and has had a hand in many labor rackets. After Al Capone was sent to the penitentiary, Humphreys bore the title of Public Enemy No. 1.

In 1939, Steve Sumner, then secretary of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, said that he had paid Humphreys $50,000 to ransom Robert G. Fitchie, then president of the union, from a kidnaping in 1931.

In 1934 Humphreys pleaded guilty to income tax evasion and was fined $5,000 and served 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary.

CHASES FUGITIVE FOR 20,000 MILES —AND LOSES HIM

New York, May 31 [Special].—After chasing a fugitive from the United States to Paraguay and from there to France, Leo C. Fennelly, assistant United States attorney, was forced today to report that his quarry had escaped by joining the French Foreign Legion.

The chase, a saga of 20,000 miles, took Fennelly past the scuttled pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee in Montevideo harbor and finally to Paris two days before the German army invaded the Netherlands and Belgium.

The object of his search was Philip De Ronde, 58 year old soldier of fortune, indicted with Wallace and George S. Groves, New York financiers, on mail fraud charges more than a year ago. De Ronde first skipped to Paraguay. When Fennelly followed, and had De Ronde's passport canceled, De Ronde obtained an appointment as an honorary consular attaché and fled to Paris. Fennelly could do nothing until counsel for the Groves brothers obtained court permission to conduct an examination of De Ronde in Paris. All arrangements had been made, Fennelly said, when the German Blitzkrieg broke in full force, and every body concerned except De Ronde scampered back to America.

RALPH CAPONE FREED; SAYS HE'S HONEST PEDDLER

Ralph Capone made an illicit fortune not so long ago helping Brother Al peddle beer and booze. But times have changed—we have Ralph's word for it—and now he makes an honest living peddling the products of Waukesha Water, Inc., 116 West Hubbard street.

This was what Ralph told Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, and Capt. Daniel Gilbert when they questioned him yesterday after his arrest Thursday as a suspicious character. Capone, who served a prison term for income tax evasion, said he knew nothing about slot machines or Edward Vogel, reputed syndicate boss of this business, a matter in which the state's attorney is interested.

Crowley told George Bieber, Capone's lawyer, there was no need to seek Ralph's release by habeas corpus, because the state's attorney was turning him out. Which was done.

WOMAN HELD UP AT STOPLIGHT IS SHOT BY BANDIT

Two women were held up and one was accidentally shot early today in a kidnap-robbery at Lake and La Salle streets. They were Mrs. Marge Birney, 31 years old, and Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, 25, both of 913 Gordon terrace.

As Mrs. Birney stopped her car for a light two young men forced their way into the machine. As they did so the pistol of one of them was discharged and the bullet tore thru Mrs. Birney's left arm. The bandit apologized, saying the shooting was accidental.

The hoodlums took the women's purses, containing a small amount of money, and ejected them from the car at Congress street and Winchester avenue. Mrs. Birney was given medical aid at the county hospital. Her husband, Larry Birney, is a bartender employed in Wisconsin.

GOVERNOR RIVERS TELLS FEDERAL AGENTS: GET OUT!

Accuses Investigators of Smearing Him.

Atlanta, Ga., May 31 [Special].—Federal snoopers will henceforth be barred from the Georgia capitol, Gov. E. D. Rivers declared today in a statement in which he accused United States Attorney Lawrence Camp of conducting a smear campaign against his administration.

The governor's charges followed the return of federal indictments yesterday against his personal friend, John W. Greer Jr., clerk of the state house of representatives, and Dr. Hiram W. Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Asphalt Companies Accused.

The two men and three large asphalt producing firms were indicted at Rome, Ga., on charges of conspiring to monopolize trade and fix prices in the sale of asphalt to the state highway department.

In assailing Camp, who obtained the indictments, Gov. Rivers said he viewed the indictment of Greer as malicious persecution. He declared he would "expose in all its naked ugliness the use of the powers of the district attorney for sinister political purposes."

"Federal snoopers have swarmed offices at the state capitol in recent weeks and have likewise combed the state," Rivers asserted. "Their very questions and actions reflect their obvious effort to smear.

"Nothing to Conceal."

"Despite the fact they have no legal right to invade the state departments in the manney they did, I have had them treated courteously because we have nothing to conceal. But patience with these political tactics has ceased to be a virtue, and they will no longer be tolerated while I am governor."

The governor said he would serve as Greer's attorney. In addition to his job as legislative clerk, Greer publishes the Cordele Dispatch and the Ed Rivers Weekly.

Greer and Evans were indicted on eight counts charging mail fraud violation of federal antitrust statutes. The three asphalt firms were not accused in the fraud indictment, but were named in the antitrust charges.

The Three Companies.

The firms are the Shell Oil Company, Inc., of St. Louis, Mo.; the American Bitumuls company of San Francisco, Cal., and the Emulsified Asphalt Refining company of Charleston, S. C.

The government charged that during 1937 and 1938 the state of Georgia bought nearly four and a half million gallons of emulsified asphalt from firms owned or represented by Evans, and that the former Ku Klux Klan leader received a commission on every gallon so bought.

The state paid $456,427 for the asphalt, the government alleged, $90,000 more than would have been the case had there been competitive and independent bidding. Greer was accused of refusing to notify qualified bidders of proposed purchases by the state and of suppressing any independent bids offered.

Boy, 14, Slays His Father During Domestic Quarrel

Saginaw, Mich., May 31 (AP).—Assistant Prosecutor Roland F. Montgomery said today 14 year old Lewis Manning admitted killing his father with a pistol purchased from a playmate for 15 cents. The father, John Manning, 49, a foundry worker, died in a hospital after he was struck by two bullets. Montgomery said the youth told him the shooting followed a quarrel between the parents in which Lewis took his mother's part. Lewis told the prosecutor he intended only to frighten his father.

The W-G-N Symphonic Hour, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune, tomorrow night will offer as a special feature "The Pageant of America," a dramatic-musical presentation highlighting the great achievements and glorious heritage of the nation.

Pat O'Brien, who recently starred in the role of Father Duffy in the Warner Brothers' picture, "The Fighting 69th," and who plays the leading role in Warner Brothers' forthcoming "The Life of Knute Rockne," will be the narrator. He will be supported by a cast of Chicago's best radio actors who will re-create milestones in America's history.

The musical portion of the hour will be presented by Miss Marion Claire, Chicago's lovely soprano, and the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber.

A sequel to the "Ballad for Americans," broadcast May 19 on the Symphonic Hour, "The Pageant of America" is the creation of William A. Bacher, who directs production of the Symphonic Hour and the Chicago Theater of the Air.

ANNENBERG MAY PAY 8 MILLION IN INCOME TAX CASE

Report Tentative Accord with Government.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Terms of a tentative settlement in the largest civil income tax suit ever filed against an individual—involving reported arrangements for Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, to pay $8,000,000—were disclosed here today by the department of justice.

It was reported that Annenberg is considering settling the total government claims of $9,000,000 in taxes, interest, and penalties, which have been levied against Annenberg, his corporations, and co-defendants in the income tax indictments pending in Chicago, for approximately $8,000,000.

The agreement, it was explained, is only tentative. To become binding it must be signed by Annenberg and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., who were not present when the supposed settlement was reached.

Arranged at Conference.

This agreement, according to the justice department, was arranged at a conference attended by Annenberg's lawyer, Weymouth Kirkland of Chicago; Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue; J. P. Wenchel, chief counsel for the revenue department, and Samuel O. Clark Jr., an assistant attorney general. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson declined to comment on the reported settlement.

Agreement on the civil claim paves the way for another act in the government's long campaign to break up Annenberg's far flung racing news empire. This will take place Wednesday in the federal District court in Chicago.

There Annenberg will appear before Judge James H. Wilkerson to be sentenced on his plea of guilty to evading $1,217,296 in income taxes for 1936, one count among a total alleging evasion of $5,548,384 in taxes, penalties, and interest, for the years 1933 to 1936, inclusive. With taxes alleged due from his corporations, the government's total claim amounted to $9,000,000.

Enters Plea of Guilty.

Annenberg pleaded guilty on April 23. He was joined in this plea by a co-defendant, Joseph Hafner, who admitted his guilt in aiding Annenberg in the 1936 evasion. Each faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

At the time Annenberg pleaded guilty, Attorney Kirkland disclosed his client's intention to settle all of the civil tax claims. In return the government agreed to drop the remaining income indictments involving Annenberg and Hafner.

Today, as part of the settlement, it was announced that the district attorney in Chicago has been notified to dismiss all income charges against 10 defendants, regarded as minor figures in the case. They included Annenberg's son, Walter, heir to the remnants of his father's vast empire.

Prepare to Push Case.

Prosecution of five other defendants, described as "major," is expected to proceed as soon as Annenberg has been sentenced. This group includes Arnold W. Kruse, head of the Cecelia company, the Annenberg holding company; his son, Lester A. Kruse; James M. Ragen, general manager of the now extinct Nationwide News service; his son, James M. Ragen Jr., and William Molasky, head of the Consensus Publishing company of St. Louis.

They are scheduled to be tried on what is known as the Consensus case. This involves an alleged evasion of $137,720 in taxes for the years 1933 to 1936, inclusive. All have entered pleas of not guilty. If the government fails to obtain a conviction five remaining indictments will be pressed, the justice department said.

Agree on Other Dismissals.

In addition to young Annenberg, the others who will be dismissed on the income tax charges are: Annenberg's brother-in-law, Ernest Fischer; his former son-in-law, L. Stanley Kahn; Charles Bidwill, head of the Bentley Murray Publishing company and president of the Chicago Cardinals Professional Football club; Aaron Trosch, Annenberg's financial representative in Milwaukee; Harry Friedman, Attorney Herbert S. Kamin, Frederick W. Minicus, Julius J. Smith, and Jules Taylor.

Two of this group, however, remain with Annenberg as co-defendants on three other indictments. Bidwill is named in two lottery indictments, involving the dissemination of racing news, and Smith is defendant is a perjury indictment.

PLANS ON EARLY TRIAL.

United States Attorney William J. Campbell, when notified that a civil settlement had been reached in Washington, said he would press for an early trial of the five other major defendants, after Judge Wilkerson has imposed sentence on Annenberg and Hafner Wednesday. Campbell said he would carry out the instructions from Washington regarding the other defendants.

DAN CUPID WINS BY 3½ TO 1 OVER DIVORCE COURTS

Marriage Licenses Put Decrees in Shade.

Chicago divorce courts ground out an average of 36 divorces each working day during the last court year and 121 couples obtained marriage licenses daily in the county clerk's office.

John E. Conroy and Victor L. Schlaeger, clerks of the Circuit and Superior courts, respectively, said 9,207 divorces were granted in both courts in the 12 months ending yesterday. A total of 36,791 marriage licenses were issued during the same period, according to County Clerk Michael Flynn.

The number of divorces increased 5.2 per cent over the 8,753 granted in the previous court year.

Superior Court Leads.

The divorce figures show also that the Superior court granted more than twice as many decrees as the Circuit court. In Superior court, however, two judges hear divorce cases, and in Circuit court only one judge normally is assigned to such cases.

Figures for both courts follow:

Superior	6,071	5,661	7,104
Circuit	2,084	3,092	2,103
Total	8,155	8,753	9,207

Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk in the marriage license bureau, reported that 36,791 marriage licenses were issued last year, compared with 32,143 during the previous year. Closing of the Gretna Greens in the Chicago area has kept Chicago's marriage business at home, he said:

Further Increase Expected.

Summerfield predicted the number of marriage licenses issued here soon would return to the normal average of 40,000 a year prior to the enactment of Illinois' marriage laws in 1937.

Under the new laws couples marrying in Illinois must file a three day notice of intention to wed and must present a physician's certificate attesting freedom from venereal disease.

Clerks in the marriage license bureau were busy yesterday receiving marriage applications from prospective June brides. Among those who received licenses yesterday were J. Gaillard Frey of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Caroline Pope of Evanston. They plan to be married in the First Baptist church of Evanston today. Miss Pope is a daughter of Mrs. Jessie Trowbridge Pope of the Orrington hotel in the suburb and is a former Northwestern university student. Summerfield said there would be a rush today for June licenses.

CHICAGO'S RED CROSS FUND HITS $350,000 MARK

The Red Cross war relief fund drive in Chicago went over the $350,000 mark yesterday, James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago drive, announced.

Forgan made his announcement as he left for Washington to attend a special meeting of the central committee of the American Red Cross. Norman H. Davis, national chairman, called the meeting in connection with the nationwide $20,000,000 campaign. He will outline the work now being done for war refugees and the wounded and will discuss plans for future relief.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, chairman of the women's special gifts division, reported that the Lake Forest women's unit, under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Hixon and Mrs. James Cathcart, collected $2,242 yesterday. The division has raised $50,245, one-seventh of the total amount subscribed in Chicago.

2 Robbers Get $3,750 Pay Roll from Factory

Two robbers wearing dark glasses compelled two officials of the Gerrard company, makers of wire tying machinery, to surrender a pay roll of $3,750 yesterday. The officials are Alex Nelson, treasurer, and Arthur Vogt, auditor. They had drawn the money from a loop bank and were entering the company plant at 2915 West 47th street when the bandits held them up. The men fled in an automobile.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR DECORATING FATHER'S GRAVE!

Uniontown, Pa., May 31 (AP).—Charles Bryner doesn't understand what it's all about, but he's in jail for invading a state game preserve to decorate the grave of his father who fought in the civil war.

William T. Bryner was buried in the preserve several years ago on a tract once owned by the family. The 52 year old son and his cousin, Gibson Bryner, were at the grave when arrested by a deputy game warden for trespassing. A justice of the peace sent Bryner to jail for 28 days and fined the cousin $25.

"We go to the grave every year and nobody ever bothered us before," declared the bewildered Bryner from behind bars. "We tried to tell the warden we hadn't done nothin' but decorate my father's grave, but he took us to the squire's office."

Assurances of help came from District Attorney H. Vance Cottom, who asserted, "I've never heard anything like this before in my life." He ordered his office to assist in an appeal if necessary.

GRUNERT TAKES OVER COMMAND IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, May 31 (AP).—Maj. Gen. George Grunert took over command of the Philippine department of the United States army today, succeeding Maj. Gen. Walter S. Grant, who sailed immediately for San Francisco aboard the United States transport Grant.

Mass air flights featured a military demonstration marking the change of commands.

Gen. Grant is en route to Baltimore to assume command of the 3d corps area. He is a veteran of the Philippine service, coming here first in 1901, in the early days of American occupation.

URGES NOBODY VOTE FOR HIM IN BENCH CONTEST

Elder Charges Election Will Be Illegal.

Edgar B. Elder, Republican nominee for the only place vacant on the Municipal court, urged yesterday that no one vote for him in the judicial election on Monday.

He took this stand after Judge John C. Lewe of the Superior court denied an application to restrain the election commissioners from holding the election with only 648 of the city's 3,648 polling places open.

In all six Superior court judges, one Circuit judge, and one Municipal judge are to be chosen. The Municipal seat is the only one contested, with George L. Quillici being the Democratic nominee. For the other places there is a coalition slate of candidates.

Claims Saving of $290,000.

The election board reduced the number of polling places as a matter of economy, claiming that $290,000 would be saved. Where there is no contest, its action is legal, but Elder contends that even a single contest requires that the voters have all the usual facilities for casting their ballots.

"Harry A. Lipsky of the election board has stated that this election for Municipal judge is illegal," he said. "But he says it will be held anyhow. I condemn this unhesitatingly. I continue as a candidate, but have requested the Republican county central committee not to make any effort on my behalf. Neither will I impose on my many friends by asking them to travel long distances to polling places.

"The election will be illegal in any event and the winner will not get a valid certificate of election. I am planning to start proceedings to determine the legality of such elections."

Suit Filed by Taxpayer.

The petition ruled on by Judge Lewe was filed by Frank P. Taubeler of 2626 South Tripp avenue as a taxpayer, and contended that all polling places should be opened to decide who shall have the Municipal seat made vacant by the resignation of Judge Joseph A. Graber.

Taubeler's attorneys, D. Ellwood Davis and Maurice L. Davis, suggested a delay in the Municipal court election until November. Benjamin S. Adamowski, attorney for the board, pointed out that this would be a violation of the Municipal court act.

A RECORD OF EXECUTIVE INCOMPETENCE.

Mr. Roosevelt is asking still another billion dollars for the army and navy. The estimate of military needs which he made as recently as last January has now been doubled.

We call our President the chief executive. As such, it is his duty to foresee the nation's requirements, to lay them before congress, and, when congress has acted, to enforce the laws and direct the spending of the appropriations.

Good executives are a rarity. They must have the capacity to think clearly and to choose and organize their subordinates for prompt and effective action. An executive who wastes his energies on private hates, and feuds, and grandiose dreams of reform is not likely to be of much value, particularly in a period when events are moving rapidly.

It would be interesting, if space permitted, to examine Mr. Roosevelt's career as chief executive of New York state and of the United States in detail. Such an examination would reveal that he has one sovereign remedy for all ills: the appropriation of immense sums of money. He campaigned in 1932 as the economy candidate and for fully three months after he took office was faithful to his promise. From that day to this he has spent something like 60 billion dollars and added 20 billions to the national debt.

Two great problems have confronted him. One was the depression and the other was the growing tension in Europe and Asia. The depression is still with us and is now by long odds the most protracted period of economic distress in the nation's history. The sovereign remedy hasn't cured the disease and there is every reason to believe that the squandering of so many billions only made matters worse.

All thru his administration Mr. Roosevelt has had congress in his pocket. In view of the growing strain in Europe he obtained unexampled peacetime appropriations for the army and navy. During that period he had an opportunity to learn the military lessons of the wars in Ethiopia, China, Spain, and later in Poland and Norway. If, at any moment, he had desired to apply these lessons to the military necessities of this country he could have done so and he could have carried congress with him. He did spend nearly 7 billion dollars on the army and navy, but once more the country has discovered that foresight and practical sense on the part of the executive are quite as important as the mere spending of money.

When congress convened this year, with the war in Europe already in progress, Mr. Roosevelt submitted his routine request for defense in the amount of about 2 billion dollars. A little later the American people began to learn the state of their unpreparedness. Seven billion dollars had been spent but, in the opinion of Maj. Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, we had only 52 planes fit for modern war and of the remaining 2,700 perhaps half a dozen could be rendered fit. Our deficiency in tanks, antiaircraft guns, artillery, and the other tools of war was no less startling.

Faced with this record of executive incompetence, Mr. Roosevelt staged a dramatic appearance before congress on May 16. Between the first week of January and May 16 he had discovered a 50 per cent error in his estimate. He asked for another 1,182 million dollars. He proposed, among other things, to build almost overnight, 50,000 airplanes and an airplane industry capable of turning out 50,000 planes a year.

Congress cheered in a frenzy but when the proposals were examined soberly in the next few days their grandiose absurdity was revealed. The same Mr. Roosevelt who had discouraged industrial expansion with restrictive laws and regulation was now calling upon industry to save the country. Once more Mr. Roosevelt was beguiling himself with the notion that the appropriation of a colossal sum of money was all that was needed to render the country safe from attack.

On May 26 Mr. Roosevelt spoke again, this time to the nation. His radio address was intended to quiet the doubts which had meanwhile arisen. He said that production of military necessities would be increased rapidly, tho he opposed any alteration of the 40 hour week in the munitions industries, as if the two policies were compatible. He would appoint able men from industry to handle the job.

A few days later he did appoint a commission of seven, itself an awkward administrative device, and at the same time made it clear that the commission was merely advisory. Perhaps Mr. Knudsen and his associates will succeed, but if they do it will be in spite of the inept organization the President has set up.

And now Mr. Roosevelt has come back for more money. His January estimate, revised on May 16, was again revised on May 30. Between May 16 and May 30 Mr. Roosevelt discovered that he had made another billion dollar mistake. Two billions have become 3 billions and 3 billions have become 4. Mr. Roosevelt's executive foresight may be measured by the fact that his January estimate was almost exactly 100 per cent in error.

The record discloses all too plainly the lack of that foresight and managerial competence which are required of an executive. Mr. Roosevelt's talents are histrionic, not administrative. He is a speech-maker, not a doer. He can exhort but he cannot accomplish. His presence in the White House is a grave liability. He has succeeded in antagonizing potential enemies across the Atlantic and Pacific but lacks the executive ability to prepare the country to meet the danger he has aggravated.

THE FIFTH COLUMN FIGHTS THE WALTER BILL.

The New Dealers have descended to playing politics with defense in their desperate effort to kill the Walter bill, which grants citizens protection by the courts against Nazified administration of the law.

The Walter bill has already passed the house by a 3 to 1 majority. Senator Barkley, President Roosevelt's floor leader, led the fight on Thursday to block senate consideration of the measure.

"Certainly," Senator Barkley asserted, "the American people are not so much concerned with the legalistic, technical situation in the departments of our government as they are now with our domestic and international situation growing out of the world war."

Senator Barkley was following the Roosevelt party line. That line is to beat the war drums so loudly that the country will be induced to forget that our defenses are in such deplorable state because of the extravagance and incompetence of the Roosevelt administration.

To make up the deficiencies for which President Roosevelt is to blame the country needs above all healthy, active industry. Industry is crippled. It is crippled in large measure by the very tyrannies that the Walter bill seeks to end—the license granted the fifth columnists in the New Deal bureaus and administrative agencies to enforce their personal prejudices as the law of the land.

The vote on the bill in the house reflected the temper of the country. The New Dealers do not dare bring the measure to a vote in the senate. Therefore, to avoid that vote, Senator Barkley made his shameful plea. He was effectively answered by Senator Ashurst.

"The senator says we are going to prepare," said Senator Ashurst. "I am with him on that—prepare to take care of the liberty of the American people. But of what purpose is it on the one hand to expend billions in taking care of the liberty of the American people and then, by silent attrition, by secrecy, by processes of which the citizen has no knowledge, take away the very liberties we are going to try to save?"

Senator Ashurst posed the issue properly. We have in the United States today not one defense crisis, but two. We have first to repair the damage our armed forces have suffered thru New Deal incompetence and indifference. We have at the same time to defend ourselves against further encroachments on our liberties, by the Washington fifth columnists, under the pretense of repairing the damage for which they are responsible.

The Walter bill is the country's defense against a Nazified state. If congress adjourns without passing it little will stand in the way of the New Dealers attaining that objective toward which they have been working for seven years.

THE LONG RANGE BOMBER.

Capt. Rickenbacker, our leading war ace and air line operator, and Col. Lindbergh, our leading civilian flyer, have both told the United States recently that the long range bomber is our No. 1 defense weapon.

The reasons for their statements were the same that prompted Rear Admiral Yarnell to tell the graduating class of the navy war college:

"The Atlantic ocean still remains a large body of water, and the probability of plane attack from overseas on this country will remain remote for some time to come. Furthermore, planes alone cannot win a war. The foot soldier is still needed for invasion and he must come to us in transports over the ocean."

We can thank the United States army for the development of this weapon that can prevent enemy troopships approaching this continent. It was the army that saw the value of the big Douglas passenger plane and had Boeing adapt the design for military use, producing the flying fortress. It is these planes and similar long range bombers that today constitute the few in our air force not obsolete by European standards. Neither the Nazis nor the allies have been able to produce planes equal to them.

It is disturbing, in retrospect, that the purchase of the long range bombers should have been opposed, almost bitterly, by the navy. The admirals at one time even went to the ridiculous extreme of obtaining an order that the army should not fly more than 100 miles from land, altho bombers can meet ships 1,000 miles from our coast. This attitude is a symptom of an unhealthy rivalry between our two defense forces that should be composed, and if it cannot be composed must be suppressed.

It is welcome news that the navy has abandoned the view once held that airplanes may be used at sea only for observation and spotting, while the shooting has to be done from ships, and has purchased or ordered a variety of bombers of its own. We need a fleet for protection, but we also need airplanes capable of operating long distances from shore independent of naval support if necessary.

With all its power the fleet has a limited range. Its speed is equal only to that of the enemy fleet, so that if it is feinted out of position it may have difficulty in recovering in time. Bombers cannot be so tricked. They can speed out to meet an invader off Halifax one day and transfer their attack to Caribbean waters the next.

Editorial of the Day

END THE SILVER FOLLY.

[New York Sun.]

President Roosevelt attributed his veto of the rivers and harbors bill to a commendable motive—to save money for national defense. Every expenditure ought to be questioned, every waste ought to be stopped. One opportunity for husbanding the national resources lies ready at hand. The senate passed the Townsend silver purchase bill to put an end to the purchase of foreign silver. That bill now seems lost in the house ways and means committee's pigeonholes. It ought to be brought to the floor of the house and passed without delay. There is no excuse for continuing a policy which would be a folly under ordinary conditions and which is even worse under conditions facing the country today.

"A day in June?" is the rest of the quotation. And since this is the first day of a month that may bring pleasant compensations, in climate, for the chills of April and the fogs of May, let's chatter a little about its lore.

The prevalence of marriages in June is not based on weather conditions. The custom harks back to the ancient Romans, who believed that June marriages would be lucky affairs, because the month was favored by the goddess Juno, protector of the marital virtues.

In the calendar of the French revolution, this was Prairial, the meadow month. It extended from May 20 to June 18. Therefore today may be called Prairial 13th.

The most popular, and perhaps the finest, poem in praise of June was written by James Russell Lowell. It's the source of the "What is so rare as" quotation. If you want to refresh your memory, look up the Prelude to "The Vision of Sir Launfal."

The American song writers' addiction to sentimental verses about June was satirized in Ring Lardner's play, "June Moon."

The quaintest song about June is the old English ditty which starts off with:

Sumer is icumen in,
Lhude sing cuccu!

This is "The Cuckoo Song," called the oldest song in English. It was probably written in 1226 by a monk. The original music survives.

The most famous June battle was Waterloo, fought on the 18th, 1815.

Maybe June Provines can tell you more.

PUTTING IT IN A NUTSHELL.

Our statesmen state we're short of planes and guns,
And our soldiers are untrained;
And if that's a fact, some one must have been so remiss it stuns
To write note after note
With nothing to back him up
But a forty-five billion dollar debt;
And some one else must be delirious to suggest
That we postpone an election
Because nobody can do as well as this man has done;
And in the face of all we are asked to believe,
A certain gentleman must be suicidal or deranged
To want to sell all the aircraft we own.

Aw nuts, let's go out in the back yard
And look for a fifth column.

Tom Chekouras.

The Edgar Allan Poe Hoax.

In his younger days James Whitcomb Riley decided to "find" a "lost" poem written by Edgar Allan Poe. Accordingly, J. O. Henderson of the Kokomo Dispatch was brought into the plot with several others.

Riley then wrote the "Leonainie" and his friends carefully forged it, in an imitation of Poe's writing, upon the fly leaf of an old book. On Aug. 2, 1877, the work was printed in the Dispatch. The climax or anticlimax was supposed to come in the following lines:

And they made her hair of gloomy
Midnight, and her eyes of bloom;
Moonshine, and they brought her to me
In the solemn night.

The New York World, Tribune, Post, Herald, Sun, the Brooklyn Eagle, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Inter Ocean, the Louisville Courier Journal, the Nashville American, the Indianapolis News, the Baltimore American, and the Philadelphia Commonwealth commented on "Leonainie." Of these the Commonwealth gave the best criticism:

"A poem is going the rounds of the press, having been discovered among the rubbish of a Hoosier literary club by a lunatic of Kokomo. The gin mills of Maryland and the Old Dominion never turned out liquor bad enough to debase the genius of Poe to the level of that verse." S. Nosakcid.

Maybe It's Interned.

Every day for two years, except at week-ends, I have seen a small yacht docked in the river directly south of the Franklin street bridge. Not once have I seen a sign of life aboard. This begins to puzzle me. It's like that 20 year old automobile in a yard in Evanston. Somebody is going to start a myth about this yacht pretty soon. L. Styles.

I THINK I MISS SOMETHING.

you say my hair is black as night
my eyes as blue as sky
the color of my nails is right
I'm pretty when I cry

you say my disposition's great to me you never lie for when you say that you'll be late
I never ask you why

you're proud to tell how bright I am
I have a facile brain with compliments my ears you jam exult that I'm not vain

now, dear, I like to hear this stuff
I like to believe it's true but words of praise are not enough can't you say—I love you?

When a Man Marries a Song Writer.

"Hon", composes songs, lyric, smooth and soothing. Not a scream in a carload. I read my paper scarcely conscious of her work at the piano. The other day she wins a 50 buck award on her songs and is bursting with pep, vinegar, and new ideas.

I come home dog tired to find her on the couch giving the ceiling the creative eye. At the piano for hours, she's tired, too. Politely I offer a part of the paper. She says no, let her alone, she's thinking. Sighing like an air brake exhaust, I sink into the ancient easy to drowse.

"Hon" suddenly leaps from the couch, skitters over to the piano and hits the old horse teeth with everything she's got. I go up so high I see my long lost pipe among other things behind the radiator. As I come down gasping, she peers at me over the music rack in her funny nearsighted way and exclaims jubilantly: "That's the effect I wanted!" Chiggers, the Guinea Pig.

["Hon's" award was on her setting for Marjorie F. W.'s "October Love," out of the Linebook.]

The Fourth of July comes on Thursday, too. And holiday or not, Thursday is our busiest of the week.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A CURIOUS CHILDHOOD MALADY.

EVERY now and then children encounter a peculiar affliction known as "pink disease." The condition no doubt has existed for a long time but it was not identified as a separate ailment until about a generation ago. Numbered among its numerous aliases are the terms "Swift's disease" and "infantile acrodynia"—meaning pain in the extremities. Cases have been reported from many parts of the world including Australia and New Zealand. Infants about one year of age are attacked more often, altho youngsters as old as five or six are not immune.

As a rule, the onset is characterized by a slight cold which may grow worse gradually—the fever reaching 101 degrees Fahrenheit. Within a few days improvement takes place but about two weeks later the physical reserve begins to fail, the little one becoming perfectly miserable. Nothing that is done proves comforting. Food is distasteful and all habits of good behavior—which have been acquired—are thrown to the winds. While the mind is not affected in the slightest degree, nevertheless the sufferer takes no interest in his surroundings. In addition, insomnia [sleeplessness] is pronounced—so much so that the parents may become completely exhausted with the strain. Because meals are refused consistently, wasting of the muscles—which may be excessive—ensues.

Toward the end of the first month a rash is noted on the trunk with marked reddening of the hands and feet. This boiled lobster appearance of the extremities may be typical. Both manifestations come and go and victims describe the sensation as tho they were on fire. Yet the parts are cold and somewhat swollen. At times the outer skin tends to peel.

Once in a while the diagnosis can be made from the position which the patient assumes in bed. He will lie on his face and elbows with the knees drawn upward. There is usually almost constant movement in an effort to allay irritation. The eyes are extremely sensitive to light. Hence the room should be darkened.

Because of the drop in resistance brought on by inadequate nutriment, ulcers may form on the tongue and inside the cheeks. Occasionally teeth will become loosened and bald patches may appear on the scalp. Once the malady has settled down for a long siege the temperature decreases altho should a boil [infection] develop it may again mount to a high level. A regular feature is a rapid heart and the rate may continue day and night between 120 and 140 beats per minute. The blood pressure is increased and sweating will be exhibited periodically.

Inasmuch as the difficulty seems to break out almost in epidemic form, the suggestion has been offered that an infection—probably a virus—is responsible. Apparently the disease can spread from one child to another. Furthermore, a nose cold precedes the protracted bout in practically every instance. It is not uncommon, however, to make a mistake and think that the boy or girl is spoiled or peevish. But when the rash comes recognition is certain.

There is probably no childhood disorder that calls for more patience, more careful nursing, and more critical supervision on the part of both parents and the physician. On the whole, home care is preferred. Recovery is the rule altho malnutrition presents a real battle and every effort must be made to maintain strength. Frequent feedings of small quantities of food are in order and sedatives may be required for rest.

Excellent results have followed sun baths or the employment of the ultraviolet lamp. In proper doses light rays will toughen the skin and enhance well being. This plan of treatment with extra amounts of vitamin B1 may be helpful and five thousand units per week may be added to a well balanced diet. The preparation is best given in powdered form two to three times daily, mixed with other food.

A strange illness is this tedious infection. It calls for "time out" because mother and dad must make many sacrifices for the comfort of Johnny or Sue who are so utterly unhappy.

CRYING BABY.

Mrs. W. B. A. writes: Is it true that boy babies rupture themselves easily by crying? My neighbors tell me I should not let my infant cry, as he may develop a hernia. I only let him cry when he is trying to get his own way.

REPLY.

Not unless there is some congenital defect. A minimum period of temper or disposition crying may be allowed for exercise and the development of the lungs. Are your neighbors concerned about your baby—or themselves?

CALCIUM SURPLUS.

A. J. writes: Is it possible to take too much calcium?

REPLY.

As a rule, the body will excrete any excess. On the other hand, there is no need to take more than can be utilized. Follow the instructions of your physician.

ALCOHOL RUB.

A. L. T. writes: Will the free use of rubbing alcohol on the body tend to cause hardening of the arteries?

REPLY.

No danger.

3. Who was the founder of the American Baseball league?

REGISTERING ALIENS.

La Salle, Ill., May 28.—Would it not be a good idea for every village and city in our country to follow the example of Ketchikan, Alaska, of Bucharest, Rumania, and the state of Georgia?

Alaska is requiring all aliens to register within 30 days—a precaution against "fifth column" activities.

Every Rumanian is required by law to carry an official card showing who he is and where he lives. Slander against the government is punished.

In Georgia the governor in an unprecedented move aimed at "fifth columnists" has directed that occupational and professional licenses of all Georgia aliens be canceled June 1; all aliens to register with police units and be fingerprinted. Some of these precautions taken over the United States would put an end to outbreaks similar to the one at Pekin, Ill.

KEEP DOGS OFF THE STREET.

Chicago, May 27.—It happened in Austin, but can easily happen on any busy street anywhere. A 7 month old puppy unwatched for a moment ran up an alley and romped across the street with another dog. A truck driver tried to stop in time to avoid the pup, but the effort was in vain. He stopped, picked up the broken body and placed it gently beside a private garage. A call to a local veterinarian found him not in the office. Another to the Anticruelty society brought the response that the ambulances were out, and under any circumstances it would take at least 45 minutes for one to reach the injured puppy, now moaning in pain, but despite a broken leg and back feebly wagging his tail. The police were called, and an officer's mercifully efficient shot ended a small dog's agony. The heartbreak of the child who had to be told at lunch time that Nip was dead is another part of the story.

Readers! If you care enough for animals to undertake the responsibility of one in your home, WON'T YOU PLEASE KEEP IT OFF THE STREETS?

Humane Education Chairman.

CIVIC ALERTNESS NEEDED.

Chicago, May 24.—The city officials may be surprised to hear that there are other city departments besides the House of Correction which are, under the municipal code, ordered to submit annual reports. The board of health has not published a report since 1933; the fire department not since 1936. In the last 10 years three reports were filed for the department of buildings. Mayor Kelly is quoted as saying: "If that's the law, it will be complied with in the future."

These reports tell us what the particular agency has accomplished; they create interest in city affairs.

We need more civic alertness and concern in Chicago. Why can't we have it?

H. G.

ADJOURNING POLITICS.

Chicago, May 24.—Your editorial "Yes, Let Us Adjourn Politics," is in my opinion the essence of good sense and sound public procedure. I also endorse Mr. Landon's recommendation for the President to announce that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for a third term. Unfortunately none of this can be expected from any of the New Deal leaders.

E. J. DAVIS.

THE WAR MONGER'S SONS.

Chicago, May 27.—It would be interesting to many mothers and fathers to know how many of the war mongers have sons liable to be drafted into actual trench warfare.

C. E. ROBERTSON.

RED CROSS OVERHEAD.

Chicago, May 30.—Your article about the cost of running the American Red Cross answered a question raised in my mind several weeks ago as to why it should cost about $430,000 for general management and supervision to distribute approximately $5,000,000 for disaster relief and other Red Cross activities as stated in a circular for the year ending June 30, 1939. This organization has thousands of volunteer workers in local chapters who meet in their town libraries or village halls, etc., thus reducing the overhead expenses. The pleasure in contributing my small bit last week has been reduced somewhat now that I know of the large salaries the executives receive in comparison with former years. During world war No. 1 I made bandages and knit khaki sweaters and scarfs, like every one did then, and will do so again if the occasion arises.

MRS. D. B.

WOULD CUT OUT "DEADHEADS."

Chicago, May 27.—Citizens of Chicago who have put up with unbearable street car and "L" service for many years will hope for some improvement in the so-called reorganization plan. Let us hope it will not be similar to the "shell game" that Mr. Insull and his gang put over at the polls some years back. Another thing: The deadhead privileges now permitted should be stopped. The free transportation of letter carriers [in uniform] on or off duty should be eliminated. The government can well afford to pay the fares of letter carriers going on their routes.

BONDHOLDER.

A GOOD GUESS: "THE LATTER."

Chicago, May 31.—In his speech Sunday evening the President assumed to give an accounting of the seven billion dollars appropriated for defense during his administration. He repeatedly used the phrases "on hand" and "on order" without saying how much material was covered by each category. He also failed to state whether that portion which is "on order" is to be paid for out of the seven billions or if further appropriations will be necessary to pay for it.

THE COUNT.

SAFETY ON THE SIDEWALK.

Chicago, May 28.—Sunday evening my 2½ year old daughter rode her bicycle onto Wabansia avenue at Ridgeway about 6 o'clock. As I came running down Ridgeway to see where she had gone I saw a car suddenly stop; a man got out and placed her safely on the sidewalk. She told me the man said to stay on the sidewalk. Last night I was happy to look into her sweet face and couldn't think of a better way to thank this thoughtful gentleman than thru your column.

MRS. V.

DISCOMBOBOLATING.

Chicago, May 30.—The President says the government is not going to discombobolate the normal habits of the country. Nevertheless, it is fervently hoped a Republican President will discombobolate the abnormal habits of the New Deal.

L. J. K.

DOESN'T LIKE "JASSEPHANT."

Clinton, Ia., May 28.—If Alf Landon actually made the statement attributed to him—that the middle west is no longer isolationist—he does not know what he is talking about.

I question whether Mr. Landon can call by their first names any more midwesterners than some of the rest of us, and it is my observation that just the reverse of what he says is true.

Alf Landon should try to act like the private citizen he is. The New Dealers are "kidding" him. True Republicans do not like the new hybrid that has appeared among us, the Jassephant [half elephant-half jackass].

HARRY W. ANDREWS,
A Republican.

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE TENSES.

Chicago, May 26.—A vote for the Republicans is a vote for life as it was; a vote for the Democrats is a vote for life as it is; a vote for the Socialists is a vote for life as it should be.

ADMINISTRATION FEES.

Chicago, May 29 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. In Illinois is there any fee set by statute regarding payment to administrator?

2. If so, what percentage?

3. In event there is a legal fee set by statute or Probate court, does this fee apply on total value at time of decedent's death?

4. Or does legal fee or Probate court fee adjusting fees of administrator apply on estate after all taxes, etc., are paid?

5. In the event there are two co-administrators must this administrators' fee be divided between both equally?

6. In general, is administrator's fee prorated at the value of the gross estate or net estate residue to heir after all bills, taxes, etc., are paid?

E. T.

1. The new probate act which went into effect this year specifies a "reasonable" fee. The previous statute said 6 per cent of the personal property.

2. See 1.

3. and 4. In general, the court would consider the total value, since the presence of claims would increase the difficulty of probate rather than decrease it.

5. In general, yes.

6. See preceding answers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VALIDITY OF MARRIAGE.

Chicago, May 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—A friend of mine was married in Crown Point about three years ago. There were no witnesses at the marriage or none were shown on marriage licenses.

1. Would a marriage like that be legal?

2. What steps, if any, must be taken to be legally free to marry again?

H. H.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.

2. Employ an attorney for divorce proceedings.

TODAY IN HISTORY

June 1, 1813

Engagement between the American frigate Chesapeake and the British ship Shannon, off Boston. As the Chesapeake approached under full sail the Shannon fired a broadside that killed 100 men at the outset. A few minutes later the English, led by Sir Philip Broke, a naval hero, boarded and quickly took control. Capt. James Lawrence, the American commander, was fatally wounded. The fight was witnessed from crowds of pleasure boats that accompanied the Chesapeake out of Boston Harbor.

PAT O'BRIEN DUE TOMORROW FOR W-G-N BROADCAST

Legion Buddies to Greet Film Star.

Members of the Chicago Police post of the American Legion will welcome Pat O'Brien, Warner Brothers' dynamic movie star Legionnaire, when he arrives at the Polk street station at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow from Hollywood for a special appearance on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system tomorrow night.

O'Brien is to be the narrator for "The Pageant of America," a musical and dramatic presentation recreating historical highlights of the nation. The pageant will be a feature of the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Notables Head Greeters.

The welcoming delegation will be headed by Matt Murphy, national vice commander of the legion; William J. Collins, Cook county commander; Gordon Quinn, first district commander; James Fanning, junior vice commander, first district; Terry Collins, commander of the police post, and Lieut. Harry Penzin, past commander of this post.

Capt. Thomas Duffy of the First Police District, who directs Boys clubs' activities in the police department, and Lieut. John F. O'Malley, past commander of the police post, both personal friends of O'Brien, also expect to be on hand.

The welcoming delegation will escort O'Brien to the W-G-N studios where they will witness the rehearsal for the evening's broadcast.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, is to speak briefly during the broadcast which will be presented before an audience of specially invited guests. Honorees will include veterans of the 1st division of the American Expeditionary force, who fought at Cantigny, France, during the world war; members of the Sons of the American Revolution, and of the Western Society of Engineers. Col. McCormick is a veteran of the 1st division.

The musical portion of the broadcast will be presented by Marion Claire, soprano, and the W-G-N Symphonic orchestra and chorus, directed by Henry Weber. O'Brien will be assisted by a cast of outstanding actors in the presentation of the patriotic pageant.

William A. Bacher, who wrote the pageant, is the producer-director of the Symphonic hour.

QUAKE LASTING 15 SECONDS HITS PADUCAH AREA

Paducah, Ky., May 31 (AP).—A severe earth shock was felt here and as far west as Metropolis, Ill., 12 miles away, at 1:02 p. m. today. Telephone offices were jammed with calls following the quake, which lasted about 15 seconds. Buildings were shaken but the only damage reported was one broken window pane. Residents reported there was a sound like an explosion, followed by a "roar."

Radio Drama Stars

(Story in adjoining column.)

Anna Neagle, feminine star in "Irene," presented as Fifth Row Center program on W-G-N, as she appeared during the broadcast.

Burgess Meredith, photographed while before the microphone.

ANNA NEAGLE'S 'IRENE' HAILED IN RADIO DEBUT

W-G-N Musical Co-Stars Burgess Meredith.

Ripples of O's and ah's swept thru W-G-N's blue and silver auditorium last night as golden haired Anna Neagle made her radio bow in the Cinderella story of "Irene."

The occasion was the world radio première of the musical comedy favorite, "Irene," with Miss Neagle as the star. It was a rôle already familiar to her, since she is the star of the dim version, shown for the first time in Chicago yesterday. The première of "Irene" was presented as the season's most ambitious production of W-G-N's Fifth Row Center and aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Star Captivates Audience.

For an hour the distinguished British actress, widely known for her interpretations of Queen Victoria and Nurse Edith Cavell, captivated an audience of 600 guests with her vivid and sprightly portrayal of Irish Irene O'Dare, the mannequin, who became the toast of Manhattan.

Among the studio guests were notables of the entertainment world: Lillian Gish and Percy Waram, stars of "Life With Father," who themselves had performed on Fifth Row Center; Herbert Wilcox, the British producer-director who directs Miss Neagle's pictures; Marion Claire and Michael Bartlett, who starred in "Blossom Time" on W-G-N Thursday night; Harry Richman, night club entertainer, and Frank Conroy of the cast of "The Little Foxes," also a veteran of Fifth Row Center.

Burgess Meredith, the noted American actor, was costarred with Miss Neagle. He gave an incisive performance as Don Lawrence, the lad who almost loses "Irene" but then wins her. Meredith came from his ranch in Idaho for this performance.

Other Performances Hailed.

Ken Griffin portrayed Bob Vincent, who won "Irene" only to give her up when he found he loved another. Ethel Owen gave a notable performance as Mrs. Vincent. Miss Owen came from New York City for the show. John Goldsworthy handled the butler's rôle neatly, and others contributed fine bits.

The story of "Irene" was presented with a continuous musical backdrop featuring the W-G-N orchestra, expanded into a symphonic dance orchestra of 40 pieces directed by Harold Stokes. The orchestra was supplemented by a chorus of 14 selected voices under the direction of Robert Trendler.

The highlight of the music was a kaleidoscopic treatment of "Alice Blue Gown," sung first sweetly and simply by Miss Neagle, then taken up by the chorus, then moving into interpretations of many nations, and winding up in a searing, sizzling rendition by Betty Barrett, a young Chicago singer.

The production was directed by Blair Walliser, the producer of the Fifth Row Center series. Noel B. Gerson assisted.

NEWARK AIRPORT CLOSES; BOWS TO N. Y.'S NEW FIELD

New York, May 31 [Special].—As Newark airport, known only a few months ago as the world's busiest airport, was shut down and barred to airliners today, dock department officials of New York City completed arrangements to make Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn an alternate landing field in case of bad weather or other emergencies at the New York City airport.

In coöperation with the civil aeronautics authority, the dock department has established a temporary radio marker—a radio transmission set on a truck—on the southwest side of the Brooklyn field. Installation of a permanent radio marker will require from four to five weeks.

SENATE AGREES TO IMMIGRATION SERVICE CHANGE

Washington, May 31 (AP).—President Roosevelt's reorganization plan designed to "deal quickly" with fifth columns was approved today by the senate, which passed a resolution to put it into effect swiftly. The vote was 55 to 4.

The resolution provides that 10 days after it becomes law the Roosevelt program to transfer the immigration service from the labor department to the justice department shall become effective. Under existing law reorganization programs cannot take effect until they have been before congress for 60 days or unless congress acts to put them into operation earlier.

The resolution approved today had already passed the house, but it must now go back to that chamber for action on a senate amendment which would put into effect on June 30 the trtansfer of the Civil Aeronautics authority and the weather bureau to the commerce department. The CAA is now independent, and the weather bureau is in the agriculture department.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Here is the first instalment of a series of tests for sweethearts; so save them for your scrapbook. The specific likes and dislikes of 1,144 men were obtained by private interviews. The men talked very frankly, and revealed things they often would never have told their girl friends. Under DEMERITS are listed their 50 commonest criticisms, not of women in general, but of their own fiancées. Under MERITS are the 50 commonest virtues which they mentioned. Subtract your DEMERIT total from your MERIT total to obtain your net score, and interpret it according to the norms below.

DEMERITS.	MERITS.
1. More than 15 pounds overweight. [6]	1. Considerate of boy's pocketbook. [30]
2. Fussy about her food at restaurants. Makes trouble for the waitress. [6]	2. Musically trained so she can sing or play a musical instrument. [6]
3. Talks aloud during the movie, play or concert. [6]	3. Prompt for appointments. Rarely late for a date. [6]
4. Wears bright red nail polish. [6]	4. Has attractive teeth. Uses her toothbrush regularly. [6]
5. A wallflower. Excessively shy. [6]	5. Is fond of flowers. [6]
6. Wears a mannish hair bob. [30]	6. Good sense of humor. Jolly. [30]
7. Gets her feelings hurt too easily. Thinks people are deliberately trying to affront or insult her. [30]	7. Acts her age! Doesn't use baby talk or try to be cute and kittenish when her age or size make her appear ridiculous. [6]
8. The seams in her stockings are often crooked. [6]	8. Has spunk. Will defend her ideals and religion. [6]
9. Uses profanity. [30]	9. Is a good cook. [6]
10. Is a "peacock personality" or show-off type. Always plays to the galleries. [6]	10. Is a "cheer leader" instead of a "wet blanket" regarding her boy friend's ideas and ambitions. [30]

Score yourself as follows; 0-27, very poor; 28-43, poor; 44-61, average; 62-80, superior; 81 and up, very superior.

WISCONSIN G. O. P. RANKS UNITED ON NATIONAL ISSUES

State Convention Is Under Way.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., May 31.—Republicans of Wisconsin, opening the best attended state convention in the memory of most of the delegates, today dedicated themselves to the perpetuation of the republican form of government in America.

Politics now is the most important business of every business man, declared the keynote speaker, Delbert J. Kenny, a West Bend, Wis., business man, in summarizing the task America faces between now and the general election of November.

More than 3,000 delegates and alternates pledged themselves to make politics their business at any personal cost or inconvenience and to work continuously for a Republican victory in the nation and the state.

United Against New Deal.

The delegates, who are divided to a still unknown extent on such purely state questions as the indorsement of the administration of Gov. Julius P. Heil and the choice of national committee members, apparently are united on two definite programs to oust the New Deal from government and to be ready for war and to have the strength to keep out of it.

The competitions over state questions will come tomorrow. Today accomplished little more than the organization of the convention and the delivery of a speech of welcome by State Chairman F. L. Gullickson and the keynote speech by Kenny.

Kenny cataloged the accomplishments of Heil, the economies in government, and the further savings to be effected by the reorganization of state departments under his administration. The address apparently was paving the way for an indorsement of the governor tomorrow.

Big Day Ahead.

This afternoon, while committees labored over rules and platforms, the delegates argued themselves into a higher key over the contests expected tomorrow, the question of indorsing Heil or his opponent for governor, Robert K. Henry, former state treasurer, and a projected fight over the way of choosing national committee members.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, the speaker at a meeting at Packer stadium tonight, predicted a national Republican victory this fall. The trend against radicalism started in Wisconsin and Ohio two years ago has spread thru the nation, he declared. "The majorities will be greater than two years ago," he said. "This means both nationally and in the states."

He described a New Deal smoke screen of war as a Democratic strategy to keep Americans from talking and thinking about the failures of the domestic programs.

RUNS DOWN BANDIT SUSPECTS.

Joseph Smith, 18 years old, and Ralph Thornton, 33, were arrested early yesterday, an hour after they allegedly stole $15 from a filling station attendant at 4335 Cermak road. The attendant, Robert Widmann, rode for an hour in a police squad car until he saw the men and identified them. They gave fictitious addresses.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

It's "Purple Week."

May 31, 1940.

THE appearance of the wild geranium in the farm woods continues the idea of "purple week" on the farm. There are hundreds of these beautiful wild flowers now in blossom.

The heavy rains of the last month have given the geraniums tall sturdy stems, so the splashes of purple stand well above the solid green of the forest floor. With the purple phlox, one of the most attractive species of wild flowers that grows in the farm woods, and now the lavender blossoms of the geranium on display, the flower parade on the farm has attained a new richness in color and beauty.

Shooting Stars Near.

Within a few days the shooting stars will open their blossoms to add more color to the wild flower display. There is just one corner of a wood lot which can boast of a display of shooting stars, to us one of the most distinctive wild flowers on the entire acreage of the Du Page county farm.

A small school of goldfish now is busy fighting mosquito larvae on the farm. These handsome fish have an efficient system against mosquitoes. They swim around in a big pool and fight the mosquito by eating the larvae of this pestiferous, biting insect. Thus their fight is one of prevention.

Walter H. Chute, director of the Shedd aquarium, says that landowners, suburbanites, and others who have decorative pools in their yards have a choice of three different kinds of fishes which may be used to exterminate mosquito larvae. The cheapest and most common species is the goldfish. It does a pretty good job of keeping a pool free of larvae.

Two species of tropical fish, the Swordtail and the Molly, also may be placed in pools for a campaign against mosquito larvae. But, as Mr. Chute points out, these tropical fish should not be put into outdoor pools until the weather and the water are warm. These fish can't stand cool water and will die if they are kept in water that hasn't been warmed by a summer sun. A little later, advises Mr. Chute, it will be possible to stock pools with these two tropical species, but right now the goldfish, being hardier, is the species to use for mosquito control.

New Mallards Arrive.

When six new mallard hens were brought from a game farm several weeks ago and freed on the farm's big pond we wondered what their reception would be from the mallards that are old residents on the farm.

The boys were saying this week that we didn't have to worry about how these new ducks are getting along. Several of them have mated with the farm ducks and now are nesting, so the boys expect to see some fuzzy little ducklings swimming around on the ponds before long.

Ten Gallon Hat, Blue Jeans and Sage Calling

BY JUDITH CASS.

As the summer holiday time comes near ranching enthusiasts become nostalgic for the odor of sage and yearn for the comfort of blue jeans, soft boots, and ten gallon hats. Because of conditions abroad, the numbers going west for a part of the summer undoubtedly will be greater than ever.

The Edward J. Berminghams, the R. Douglas Stuarts, Mr. and Mrs. Kingman Douglas, the Walter P. Paepckes, and the Gratiot Washburnes are some of the Chicago families who have western homes. Two other families who recently have become interested in ranching are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields III. of Glencoe, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Rose of Hinsdale.

Mrs. Shields and her two young sons, George and Johnnie, and Mrs. Rose departed yesterday for the Skyline ranch, near Moose, Wyo., in the Jackson Hole country. The ranch has a three mile frontage on the Snake river at the foot of the Teton mountains, of which Strothers Burt has written: "They are the only mountains that look as mountains should." Jagged peaks rise abruptly from the plain not far from the ranch buildings. Also near by is a famed little Episcopal church that cost $300 and which has a $3,000,000 view from an enormous plate glass window, brag natives and visitors alike.

It's a Great Place for Big Game Hunters.

Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Rose have purchased an interest in the ranch and plan to enjoy hunting there in future years. Some of the best big game hunting in the country is available in that area. Mountain sheep, antelope, grizzly and black bear, are plentiful in season, and so is trout, for those who enjoy fishing. Mr. and Mrs. Firmin Desloge IV. of St. Louis—she was Durie Malcolm of Lake Forest—are considering joining a hunting group that will go out to the Skyline next fall. Mr. Shields, Mr. Rose and his two children, will go to the ranch later this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bermingham, who raise cattle in Wyoming, are on their ranch now. The Washburnes recently returned to their ranch in the Big Horn country in Wyoming. The Douglass ranch is at Rancho Santa Fé in California. Mr. and Mrs. Douglass, Kingman Jr., James and Angus, will go west at the end of June to be away until Sept. 5. The Stuart ranch is in Montana; the Paepckes' in Colorado.

A ranching honeymoon has been planned by Miss Pauline Dorothea Wyman and Edward Foss Wilson, who are being married today. They are great riding enthusiasts, and will spend the next month in the High Sierras in New Mexico.

Wedding Small Affair This Afternoon.

Because of the illness of the bride's mother, Mrs. Paul Wyman of Germantown, Pa., the wedding will be small. It is taking place at 3 o'clock in the gardens of the Hinsdale home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. John Allbright, and Mr. Allbright, weather permitting. A large reception will follow at 5 o'clock at the Casino club.

Mrs. Wyman is not able to be here for the ceremony, at which the Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson, pastor of the Kenwood church, will officiate. He is an old friend of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson. Dr. Donald Wyman of Harvard university will give his sister in marriage.

Mrs. Allbright will be matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Katharine George of Northwestern university, and Miss Norma Lee of Shorewood, Milwaukee. Edward Hall Taylor is to be Mr. Wilson's best man. Ushering will be Robert McDougal Jr., David Corbett, Anthony Howe Whitaker of Philadelphia, F. Coulter Deacon of Toronto, Canada, and Dr. Harwell Wilson of Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Wilson and his bride will be at home for the summer in Lake Forest.

Suzanne Budge Becomes Bride This Evening.

A second wedding in Hinsdale will take place at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Charles Budge. Their daughter, Miss Suzanne Budge, will become the bride of Frederick L. Baker Jr. in a quiet family ceremony, the Rev. Wilfred Rowell officiating. A few young people have been invited for a reception at 9 o'clock.

Miss Budge, who is to wear an old family gown, will have her future sister-in-law, Mrs. John Norman, for matron of honor. Miss Denise Root will be the maid of honor. Herbert Bruckner is to be best man and Mr. Norman and Mark J. Mourn will usher.

Mr. Baker and his bride are going to California, Banff, and Lake Louise on a month's wedding trip. They will reside in Hinsdale.

Miss Virginia Hays and Gene Prochnow will have a small wedding at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde T. Hays of Wilmette. The Rev. Martin D. McNamara will read the service and a reception will follow.

Mrs. Alan M. Ferguson, the bride's sister, has come from her home in Washington, D. C., to be matron of honor. Her little 2½ year old daughter, Margay, will be flower girl. Leonard Wolff of Joliet will be best man for Mr. Prochnow, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Prochnow, also of Wilmette. The bride's grandmother and aunt, Mrs. James E. Hays and Miss Mabel Hays of Lincoln, Neb., have come for the wedding. Mr. Prochnow and his bride will spend about a month in California and will live on the north shore.

Graham-Duncombe Wedding Takes Place Tonight.

Miss Mary Ellen Graham, daughter of the Richard Morrill Grahams of Winnetka, and Henry Lyon Duncombe Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncombe of Chicago, will be married at 8:30

On Their Honeymoon

[White Sulphur Newsphoto.]

Enjoying a honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., are Mr. and Mrs. W. McNeil Kennedy, who were married last Saturday. Mrs. Kennedy is the former Dot Behan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Behan of the Windermere East hotel.

Cuff Notes.

Bob Allen, singer with Hal Kemp's orchestra, will marry an Indianapolis, Ind., girl, Margaret Lee Riddell, today. The last tune Allen recorded with the band was Can't Get Indiana Off My Mind. . . . Paul Post, violinist, played in a concert of the Cosmopolitan School of Music at Kimball hall this week, accompanied, according to the program, by Emily Post. . . . Probably the most fashionable lapel ornament you can wear these days is one of the metal tricolor rosettes with white metal streamers embossed in gold Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité that the Friends of France are selling, the profits going to French war sufferers. . . . Big city sight: Man in the dime store weighing himself, his overcoat held at arm's length away from the scale. . . . Add stage mothers: Cobina Wright, who is here with her daughter, Cobina Wright Jr., for the duration of Miss Wright's Chez Paree engagement. . . . Burgess Meredith and the Raymond Masseys caught up with each other at luncheon in the Pump room the other day; Meredith was in town for the W-G-N production of Irene last night and the Masseys were on their way back to New York from the Abe Lincoln in Illinois tour.

Play Title.

A mother and her 10 year old son left the Selwyn theater the other night shortly after the curtain had gone up on The Little Foxes.

"Perhaps she thought The Little Foxes was a Walt Disney," commented a bystander.

The recently published brochure, The History of the American Derby, got out by the Washington Park Jockey club, of which Walter Gregory is president, offers some nice historic pictures to the reader: Lieut. Gen. Phil Sheridan and his group of founders in 1883. The opening day and the equipages on their way to the grounds of the racing association—sulkys, teams, four in hands, broughams, dog carts, and tallyhos with their elegant occupants. In 1885 Lucky Baldwin in his long black coat, black sombrero, black tie, and handle bar mustaches, and his winning bay, Volante, Ted Williams, author of the brochure, tells the stories of the winning horses and their owners year by year: In 1902 there were 50,000 in attendance at Washington Park, a considerable increase over previous years. John A. Drake, owner of Wyeth, the winning horse, drove his odds down from 15-1 to 5-1. John W. (Betcha-a-Million) Gates played havoc in the betting ring with Col. Isaac Elwood. "They want thru the betting ring scattering thousands in five and ten thousand dollar chunks." California winning again in 1887 when *C. H. He now lies under a huge Maltese cross, within a stone's throw of the old foaling barn where he was born. The History of the American Derby carries on the story thru 1937 when Dawn Play, from the King ranch, carried off the honors for Texas and a net purse of $25,400.

Good Morning!

Lillian Russell was beautiful. She was charming. She was gracious. And she was not much of an actress. . . . So says history. . . . And Alice Faye, impersonating the gorgeous Lillian, lives up to all these reports.

This new screen biography, in an era of screen biographies, is interesting, sentimental, gently evasive, and not particularly accurate. But it DOES possess a definite nostalgic appeal and, in a general way, gives the observer a fair idea of the life and loves of this stage toast of the horse and buggy days. . . .

The movie picks up Helen Leonard on the day of her birth in Clinton, Ia., follows her thru the period when, after having been discovered and renamed by Tony Pastor, who gave so many celebrities to the stage, she charmed folks en masse and put her indelible stamp on the hearts of many rich and important men, among whom were Diamond Jim Brady, Jesse Lewisohn, and Alexander Moore—whom later she married. . . . She was wedded four times, but the film touches on only two of her marriages—to Composer Solomon and Publisher Alexander Moore.

The latter she is supposed to have adored from her girlhood. In reality, I understand, she met him when a mature woman and became Mrs. Moore at the age of 51.

You are briefly introduced to the heroine's four sisters and to her small daughter. No mention is made of them later in the picture.

To me the great charm of the piece lay in its presentation of beloved old songs and stage characters of an earlier era. For instance, Weber and Fields themselves were garnered and appear in one of their funniest sketches. [O, for some GOOD vaudeville again! AND minstrel shows! If any theater ever has the nerve to show vaudeville once more—REAL vaudeville!—I'm willing to bet on its success.]

You will see some striking stage ensembles. The piece is expensively turned out.

Don Ameche is more colorful as Solomon than Mr. Fonda is as Moore. Best support I thought to be Dorothy Peterson as Lillian's suffragette mother, Helen Westley as her grandmother, and Leo Carrillo as Tony Pastor. Mr. Arnold overdoes that great big laugh of his. Too bad! It IS such an asset in its place.

From all I hear Lillian Russell was a much more human person than this film would show her to be. There are stretches when the film Lillian goes positively Elsie Dinsmore-ish.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Niven of England.

Hollywood, Cal., June 1.—No young actor in this movie colony had such a brilliant career directly ahead of him as David Niven, and Niven chucked it all to serve with his old regiment in England. . . . I don't know any person who so enjoyed the life of a movie star, or the physical and social comforts that go with it, as young Niven. . . . He loved California. . . . He was a welcome guest at any party out here. . . . His success was assured because he had gained enormously in popularity with movie fans, and expereince was teaching him to be a pretty good actor. . . . "Dawn Patrol," "Wuthering Heights," and then "Bachelor Mother" had solidified his position.

Niven knew all of these things because experience had made him practical. . . . The practical Niven, however, was overruled by the impractical side of him. . . . He sailed for England to rejoin his old comrades at arms. . . . I think he found himself in the position posed by Maxwell Anderson in the moving portions of "Key Largo." . . . The practical side of Niven was stormed and overwhelmed by his ideals, not without a struggle. . . . The voice that he heard, I think, knowing him pretty well, was something he remembered from the days when he was a schoolboy and read of Lord Nelson. . . . It was the call of England.

"England is unbelievably lovely in the spring," he wrote on May 5 to Nigel Bruce, "and we shan't give up an inch of it." . . . Men at one time or another have waxed lyrical about their homeland. . . . You have said it yourself, no matter in what county or what state you live, and the beauty of the land which is your own native land is accented at those times when it is imperiled. . . . "We are in for a perfectly appalling succession of defeats this year," he prophesied, "and then another bloody awful winter. But in the spring the tide will turn in our favor and then, perhaps next autumn, still intact, I will be back in California."

Something of this same sort of spirit comes thru in "Key Largo." . . . It is entirely possible that Niven, like the boys in the play, will be killed, but death is inevitable and a splendid death is to be preferred to all others. . . . Niven could have won a great success in pictures had he remained here, but I think that his greatest success was achieved when he rejected the comforts of Hollywood for the discomforts of aiding in his defense of England. . . . There are certain rules in life that can be broken or upheld. . . . He is playing according to the old time rules and I think they are the best.

"Key Largo" itself is far too talky. . . . Author Anderson has succumbed to the common temptation to use the stage as a rostrum for his own nostrums and, while his thinking always is interesting, he blunts the point of his sword by sheathing it in too many words. . . . He forgets that Patrick Henry said the same thing in exactly seven words. . . . "Give me liberty or give me death." . . . He forgets, too, that boys like David Niven, and the kids who went to the Spanish war, expressed the same thought tersely by writing their names on an enlistment blank. . . . Playwright Anderson spreads it out to a prolog and two acts, and his verbosity defeats him.

"I think we should print Niven's letter," said Nigel Bruce, "because in the present atmosphere of doubt and vexation it should be spread upon the records for all to see that the people in England who amount to something, like David, feel this way about it. They know that this is no afternoon tea, but they've made up their minds to muddle thru." . . . Bruce himself was one of those who muddled thru from 1914 to 1918, and his permanently stiff leg is a tribute to a German sharpshooter. . . . Yet I imagine that Bruce and every other Briton in Hollywood too old for eligibility is suffering more now than they suffered years ago. . . . The hour by hour ordeal of waiting for news to learn the position of troops is sufficient to upset nervous systems. . . . In the confusion the letter from Niven acts as a shot in the arm to his fellow Britishers out here.

Death already has struck in the Niven family. . . . A cousin of David was killed in the Norway adventure, about the same age. . . . Relatives of other British actors have been killed. . . . Four of Jimmy McLarnin's brothers are under arms at Vancouver because, altho McLarnin is an American citizen, his family is Canadian. . . . The war has direct circuits into Hollywood.

Ordination Anniversary of Cardinal Is Observed

Philadelphia, Pa., May 31 (AP).—Cardinal Dennis Dougherty observed today the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest of the Catholic church. He was ordained in 1890 at the Church of St. John Lateran, Rome, by Cardinal Parocchi. Ceremonies honoring the 74 year old archbishop, piritual leader of 800,000 Catholics in Philadelphia and eight eastern Pennsylvania counties, opened with a special mass in the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul yesterday and will culminate Sunday in a huge open air mass in Philadelphia's municipal stadium. More than 100,000 persons are expected to attend.

Want to keep your silk hosiery looking new? Try a specially made preparation for washing them. This rinse, as it is called, comes in a bottle that holds enough for three months' use. You simply put a little on your finger and douse it in the lukewarm water you use for washing your hosiery. You don't add any soap flakes or soap. Simply squeeze thru the silk, then rinse in clear water. This preparation is said to contain oils that are good for the fragile silk threads.

Augustana Synod Proposes Lutheran Seminary in Canada

Rock Island, Ill., May 31 (AP).—The council of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana Synod of North America has instructed a special committee to submit to the delegates at next week's meeting a plan for the establishment of an intersynodical Lutheran seminary, somewhere in Canada, to train natives of the dominion for the synodical ministry. The plan also would include ministerial candidates from the Norwegian Lutheran church and the American Lutheran conference.

The Rev. J. A. Vikman of Edmonton, Alta., Canada, president of the synod's Canadian conference, said there already are seven or eight vacant charges in the conference which can call native Canadians who are Lutherans after they complete their theological studies.

At present the conference, like all other areas of the synod, must seek its pastors from the Augustana seminary.

Lest You Forget, May Was Wet, Cold, and Dark

The weather bureau yesterday confirmed what you already know: that May was wet, cloudy, chilly and eccentric. What is more, the month came to a drizzly end, and the forecast by G. E. Dunn is that June will start off today with partly cloudy and continued cool. Tomorrow is expected to be fair and warmer.

The average temperature for May was 54.1 degrees 3.3 below normal. The coldest temperature was 31 degrees May 2 and the warmest 85 on May 14. Total precipitation was 5.16 inches, 1.62 inches above the normal of 3.54, which was exceeded last year by .22 of an inch.

The chief eccentricity was 2.2 inches of snow on May 1, 2, and 3, a record for the month. The greatest previous May snowfall was 1.3 inches in 1907. The month was the fourth cloudiest May in the history of the weather bureau.

The Fate of the Darmenys

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Knowing she has only a few months to live, Madre Darmeny gathers her family around her to select an heir. Geoffry is her favorite nephew on her husband's side, as he gets around her with his charm. Theo there is Frank, another of her husband's nephews, who is unhappily married to her own niece, Leda. Frank has an 8 year old daughter, Betsy, by a former marriage. Shirley Westall is her secretary, and Amelia Pennyfather, an eavesdropping dependent relative, lives with Madre, but the others are invited for a visit. Alfred Barnes, a lifelong friend and solicitor, tells her of Geoffry's latest scrape. He has given a bad check for a diamond bracelet. Madre notices Leda with a diamond bracelet, and Leda claims it is a gift from a girl friend. Frank is furious that Leda should accept such an expensive gift, but does not suspect Geoffry. Madge tells her family that she is going to have to retrench on her allowance to each of them, and suggests that they all come and live with her, as it will save money and the house is large enough for all of them.

INSTALMENT VI.

EAVESDROPPER.

Leda swung angrily thru the French window leading to the terrace and when Geoffry caught her up she was lighting a cigaret, making the sparks fly.

"There no need for you to get in such a rage," he said lazily.

She rounded on him.

"But for the love of Mike, what are we going to do?"

"Grin and bear it—as long as we have to."

"Do you believe she's hard up?"

"I don't know. Not as hard up as all that, anyway."

"I'll bet it's just plain stinginess. How am I going to live?"

"Aunt Madge has just told you—here, using your husband for pin money."

"She has no right to spring it on us like that, out of the blue. And don't pretend to me you're going to like it!"

"Like it—ye gods! I'm liking it like the very devil."

"And we shan't be able to see anything at all of each other," Leda said in a husky whisper. "I wonder if she suspects . . . about us? I wonder if that's what she did it for?"

"She's deeper than she looks," said Geoffry, "but I don't think she's got wind of anything yet. What about Frank?"

"He hasn't an idea. He's too 'plain dumb.'"

Geoffry laughed sarcastically.

Shirley and Betsy were coming out now, ready for their walk, and Geoffry's eyes narrowed as they traveled over the slender but rounded lines of the young girl's figure. There was a flicker of admiration in his glance, and his nostrils dilated slightly.

"Mummy, we're going down to the postoffice," said Betsy. "Would you and Uncle Geoffry like to come?"

"No, thank you," Leda replied. "What I want most of all at this moment, is a good stiff drink. What's about it, Geoff?"

"O, I don't know," Geoffry said vaguely. "Not for me, I think. . . . All right, Bettikins, I'd be glad to go for a walk if you and Miss Westall will have me."

Betsy giggled.

"You'd better call her Shirley. Daddy does. He knew her when she was a little girl, not much older'n me."

"Did he, by jove!" Geoffry exclaimed. "Old Frank always seemed to get ahead of me—in one way or another."

Boldly his gaze sought Shirley's and she flushed delicately.

Watching the three of them walking away together toward the woodland short cut, Leda's expression was dark with apprehension.

Women fell easily for Geoffry Darmeny. The haunts of London's night life were strewn with his victims. He could be as cruel as hell to a woman when he was thru with her, altho het on the chase while it lasted.

A horrible sense of foreboding clutched at Leda's heart when she saw him pick Shirley Westall up bodily and lift her over the stile, while Betsy danced and shrieked with laughter.

Damn him, damn him. . . . If he played any tricks on her, she'd make him wish he'd never been born. . . . Frank would kill him. She could do anything with Frank, who was still madly in love with her.

Impatiently, Leda gave herself a shake. What nonsense she was letting herself think.

Shirley Westall was a pretty creature, but she wasn't in the very least Geoffry's sort. He'd be bored stiff with her in less than no time.

Nevertheless, then and there Leda Darmeny made up her mind to cut Dieppe and Scotland and all the rest of it, and remain at Beechbourne Park if Geoffry was really serious about staying.

She went into the house to get the drink she craved and ran into Amelia Pennyfather who whisked out of the shadows like a demon fairy, with a finger held ominously to her pursed lips.

"Good heavens—how you startled me!" Leda exclaimed crossly.

"Ssh—could I have a word with you?" hissed Miss Pennyfather.

"As many as you like, but I want a drink."

"About her—your auntie."

"O! What about her?"

"We'd better come up to my room," said Amelia in a tone of dark conspiracy. "It'll be safer. I wouldn't trust Gibson. He pretends he's deaf, but he isn't."

"Let me get my drink first," said Leda.

Amelia Pennyfather's room, as befitted her position in this household, was betwixt and between, neither in the servants' quarters nor quite out of them, being part of the nurseries of bygone days and assigned to the current governess.

It was not a very big room and it was untidy and overcrowded with odds and ends, for Amelia had the acquisitive instinct of a jackdaw and no trifle jettisoned from Beechbourne was too small for her to retrieve. Even the parcels made up for sweet charity's sake always went out considerably smaller than originally packed, and because of this there was friction between Miss Pennyfather and the servants, who feared it would come to Mrs. Darmeny's notice and they be blamed for Miss Pennyfather's petty larceny. None of the maids were ever allowed to enter her room and she always kept the door locked and the key in her pocket.

"Phew, what have you got here, Amelia? An old clothes shop?" Leda said, wrinkling her nose with distaste.

Amelia swept an armful of garments off a chair and made a place for her to sit.

"We've been so busy today, I haven't had a chance to tidy my room properly," she whined. "I daren't let the servants in. They steal things."

Leda looked incredulous.

Amelia opened a window two inches.

"Now what's this so mysterious about Aunt Madge?"

"That's just what it is—it's all most mysterious," whispered Amelia. "You'll notice, if you stay long enough, that she's got something queer on her mind."

"Probably money," said Leda. "You heard what she told us."

"And I don't believe a word of it, unless that Mr. Barnes has been up to something crooked. She was ever so cheerful after he left this morning."

Alfred Barnes was Leda's bugbear no less than he was Geoffry's. Both of them had to go to him if they wanted financial favors, for that was the one rule Mrs. Darmeny had made. She knew herself to be too vulnerable. However, it was a rule that occasionally had been broken.

"Was Mr. Barnes here today?" Leda asked suspiciously.

"Yes. He visited with Madge and left just as you arrived, I couldn't hear anything of what they said until when he went to go, I happened to be dusting around after Hilda, who scamps something scandalous, in one of the bedrooms just above the terrace, and they were sitting with their heads together over some papers he'd brought. Almost whispering, they were—as tho they thought somebody might be listening."

"Dear me!" Leda murmured with a sarcasm that was entirely lost on Amelia.

"But when he went to go—and as I told you, she was most cheerful—Madge said distinctly, 'Perhaps it's a little unkind, a sort of trick, Alfred, but there's something I've got to find out before it's too late.'

"And then he shook both her hands. I thought he was going to kiss her, really. And he said, 'You've got all the time in the world, my dear, but whatever you do, stick by your guns.'

"And she said, 'Alfred, you've known me many years, but you've still got something to learn about me. I'm the "iron hand in the velvet glove."'

"And he laughed and said, 'You thought I didn't know that, did you!' . . . And that was all. He went thru to the front and got into his car and drove away."

Leda looked thoughtful.

"But that isn't really the whole of it," Amelia went on. "Twice this last month she's made a mysterious appointment over the telephone. I wondered whether it wasn't a detective agency."

Do your muffins have tunnels in them?

If they do perhaps you'd like to use a slightly different method of mixing, one designed to overcome just this little difficulty. Instead of adding melted shortening to milk for your batter, leave the butter solid, and cut it into the dry ingredients as you would for baking powder biscuits. In this way you get the full shortening value of the fat.

Another suggestion, if you use the regular muffin method, is to have the milk slightly warm, or the melted fat somewhat cool, so that it does not solidify when added to the milk. For if it does harden on contact with cold milk, you're going to lose much of the value of the shortening.

Now, would you like a "different" recipe for muffins? Then try this recipe for buttermilk molasses muffins.

Molasses Muffins.
[1½ Dozen Rather Small.]
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
½ cup molasses
½ cup buttermilk or sour milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt, and sugar together. Beat egg, add milk, molasses, and shortening. Or, following the alternative method of mixing, cut the hard shortening into the dry ingredients until it seems almost to disappear. Add liquids to flour mixture, stirring only enough to moisten the flour. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 400 degrees, for 25 minutes, or until done.

Here's an idea for rich, flaky shortcake to hold up these ripe red strawberries. Make the biscuit dough as usual. Measure out two tablespoonfuls of cold water in addition to the amount used in the biscuits. Turn the dough onto a lightly floured board and roll to one-half inch in thickness. Place small dots of this extra butter on the dough, fold the dough over the butter, and roll out again. Repeat this process until butter is used. Cut out the biscuits and bake them as usual. They should be more flaky and tender than usual.

Something really unusual in shortcakes is a waffle-baked batter which really is "short," for it contains a whole cupful of melted butter and other shortening. Use all butter if you feel extravagant, but substitute vegetable shortening or margarine for half the amount if you don't. The waffle is more cookie than waffle you'll find.

Waffle Shortcakes.
[Makes Five.]
2 eggs
¾ cup water
1 cup sugar
1 cup melted butter, or butter and other shortening
1½ cups sifted flour

Beat eggs and water slightly. Add sugar and blend thoroly. Add melted butter or butter and other shortening. Add flour and mix well. Bake in a moderately hot waffle iron. Serve topped with sweetened crushed strawberries or other fruit, or with ice cream.

Daylight Saving Time Is Rejected in Decatur

Decatur, Ill., May 31 (AP).—Daylight saving time for Decatur was rejected unanimously by the city council today. Mayor Charles E. Lee voted with four commissioners against the motion, which he introduced to obtain formal action on the question.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

From the note book:

"Remote Control" is the trick name for a new kind of permanent that is beloved by women who prefer the waving process to be short and snappy—and cool—during spring and summer. It's the pride and joy of one of the local salons, which has been having great success with it. The wave is free of the sensation of a lot of wires hanging over the head like the sword of Damocles.

Something you shouldn't miss if there's a child in your house are the soap models of the Pinocchio characters. Even if there isn't a child, but there is a broad streak of childisness in yourself, it's worth more than a passing glance. Jiminy Cricket, J. Worthington Foulfellow, Pinocchio, and Cleo, the goldfish, are packaged in a book type of container. All are wondrously wrought and decorated with vegetable coloring. Cleo steals the show, as far as we're concerned. She comes swinging on a light wool rope so she can't get away in the bath or shower. The set is extremely inexpensive.

Father's day is June 16 and if the toilet goods people have their way papa will be spruced up like everything. Come to think of it, shaving lotion, men's cologne, and super shaving soaps are a good gift idea for that day. You might begin now to sound father out on his preferences. Elegant imported soaps, which he'd never buy for himself, are one suggestion. You'd be surprised at how many men love them but don't dare admit it.

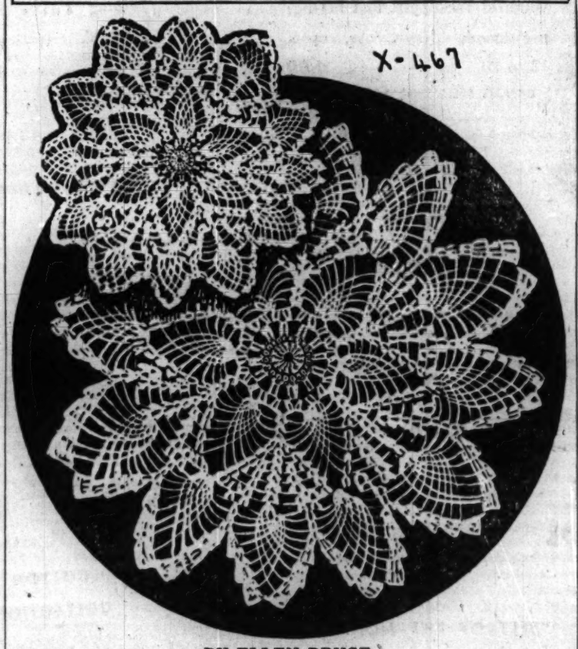
Pineapple Crochet Design



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

For those whose favorite crochet design is the pineapple pattern, this lovely circular luncheon doily is the ideal way in which to carry out this theme from beginning to end. Ivory mercerized crochet cotton is used, and six skeins are required for a set of eight luncheon doilies.

For instructions in crocheting the pineapple luncheon doily, No. X-467, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

o'clock tonight in the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth, the Rev. Leland H. Danforth officiating, assisted by the Rev. R. Everett Carr of St. Peter's church, Chicago. A reception for the families and close friends will follow at the Graham home. Mr. Duncombe and his bride will be at home in Evanston for the summer. They will go to Hanover, N. Maps showing the way to their new home in Miami road, Wilmette, illustrate the invitations Mr. and Mrs. Louis Scherer sent out to a housewarming this afternoon. They will be at home from 4 until 7 o'clock.

The Arlindo Sanders Cates are entertaining at cocktails from 4 until 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at their home in Evanston. Mrs. Cate is the former Nancy Knode.

William E. Clows Are Observing Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow of Wyndwold, Lake Forest, are having a small family party tonight to observe their 58th wedding anniversary. Missing from the family gathering will be their son, William E. Jr., who still is in the east, and his two daughters, Mrs. Mario Braggiotto and Mrs. Clow Laflin. The former lives in Westport, Conn., and Mrs. Laflin has gone east for the summer.

The women who attended this week's opera tea yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Richard T. Crane's home on Lake Shore drive heard Michael Bartlett, who recently sang in "Blossom Time" in the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, in a program of songs.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter reported the sale of a box to Mrs. George Rasmussen, a half box each to Mrs. Leon Mandel, and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, and a $200 donation from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars. Randolph Bohrer of Lake Forest has taken a box and Grant Pick has made a donation of $100.

Lingerie Shops Put Romance in Gifts for Bride

BY REA SEEGER.

Last minute trousseau finds for the flurried bride-to-be or the swarm of sentimental friends and doting relatives include such timely fashion tips as flattering new shades of hosiery to wear with gleaming white bridal gowns. One is called "atmosphere," another "blossom," and, shopping realistically, the smart trick is to buy two pairs of the same shade so that the supply is sufficient even tho a snag appears the last minute.

Shower gifts new and interesting . . . snowy white slips and matching nightgowns of clinging glove silk with deep bands of white net around the hemlines, the vee lines of the gown, and the fitted bra top of the slip. Other models come in dainty flesh tints and pastels for summer wardrobes.

A new white wave of cotton lingerie is around, gowns and matching negligees both laced with satin ribbon in either pink or blue. For modest sums you will find some luscious white satin gowns teamed with white negligees in sheer chiffon. Lots of flattering lace frills and satin ribbon make these ideal shower gifts and nearly all models can be duplicated in pastel colors if you demand.

Romantic white house gowns come in clinging crêpes. Some of jersey have wide belts trimmed with cutouts of gold kidskin; the crêpe gowns shine with twinkling rhinestones. The old heart breakers, pleated gowns and housecoats, are still irresistible finds. Sometimes the pleats are in the housecoat top with a simple nightgown. Others feature the sunburst pleats in the nightgowns and use the yards of chiffon in a long full guardsman like outer coat.

Long angel sleeves are used for both the unpleated and the gathered coats. Ribbons, lace, bands of satin applique, make them alluringly feminine. Summer prices are unexpectedly moderate for so much romance and beauty.

Mezzo-Soprano Gives Promise of Excellence

BY CECIL SMITH.

Anna Zaretsky Elvove, mezzo-soprano, presented a song recital in Kimball hall last night in Italian, Russian, German, French, and Yiddish. It is also possible that she knows English, tho the program offered no evidence to support such a conclusion.

Miss Elvove's voice is attractively warm in timbre. Her use of it is puzzling, however, for it does not submit naturally to the somewhat heavy mezzo-soprano type of delivery she uses.

Some of her best and most telling moments were in lighter passages, in which she allowed herself to sound like a lyric soprano. The page's air, "Lieti Signor," from Meyerbeer's "The Huguenots," requiring brisk, agile coloratura delivery, was distinctly good. Yet often her sustained singing, even when no higher than F, was effortful and too dark.

Without meaning to be too oracular upon the subject, I am at least partially convinced that Miss Elvove will be happier and will improve both the quality and the ease of her singing if she works to achieve a soprano's ease in the upper register and lightens the texture of her middle voice.

Edward Epstien, an intelligent young chap still in his teens, played a Chopin group with all the marks of outstanding talent. His technical equipment is clearly on the way toward ultimate excellence, and perhaps virtuosity. He has not always thought all his musical problems clear thru, but a dependable musical instinct informs all his playing.

Julia Le Vine provided coöperative and understanding accompaniments for Miss Elvove.

June 1, 1940.

Universal Day: In spite of the lack of cheerful news in this topsy-tur y world, try being a pollyanna today. It will help.

This Month: June ushers in a hectic, unpredictable month of swift moves that keep changing the picture. Some partnerships will blow up and others be formed with devastating surprise in the circle of leaders. There will be a lot of talk about idealistic theories and inspirational slogans will be coined and tossed about.

Year Ahead: Seek to express yourself this year if this is your birthday. While one-half of the world is destroying beauty, your duty is to create as much beauty as possible this year, and enjoy doing it fully.

Simple and Informal Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

There's style aplenty in this simple dress for informal social wear or for your hours at home. It's really a coat dress, with buttons arranged in any way you wish down the front. There's an interesting shoulder yoke, and cuffed short sleeves or long, full ones, if you prefer. On the pockets may be more buttons to match.

Still another scheme dispenses with buttons on shoulders and pockets, and instead trims the entire model with inexpensive and easy-to-use rickrack braid to contrast. All the budget-wise cottons, plain, checked, striped or figured, are ace high for this practical model.

Style No. 3318 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 36 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for either short-sleeved version.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Posture Has a Direct Bearing on Face Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Yes, we do harangue a great deal about posture, but as we look upon and study women, it still remains the world unconquered to many of them. Stand on any busy street corner and watch the parade of women. They're universally well dressed. They've become particularly skilled in color assembling. Their hats may be funny, or they may be chic, but altho funny they are in style, at least.

You spend considerable money on that nice face of yours. You spend time getting the right makeup tones. You do much creaming and line erasing or prevention. You look over that face critically each day, but we'll wager you never associate posture—rather, posture effects—with it. But Dr. Armitage Whitman tells us in "From Head to Foot" [Farrar & Rhinehart] that facial expression is closely related to posture.

Look at that woman whose attitude is one of intense seriousness, or look at the one who always is in a hurry, a nervous hurry. What do you see in their faces? Frowning eyebrows with vertical wrinkles between them; lips pressed firmly together, along with bodies inclining forward in eagerness to reach a destination. "All this," points out our authority, "in spite of the fact that an unhurried, unruffled serenity is an indispensable attribute of charm."

Age Difference Need Not Be Love Barrier

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Dear Miss Blake:

"Will you please help me to solve my problem? I have a daughter of 19 who has been going 'steady' three months with a young man of 27. She always has been older than her years in her ways, and enjoyed the company of friends a little older than herself.

"This young man has had home responsibilities since an early age, and missed quite a little of the fun of life, and now that he is in a position to do so, admits he enjoys everything my daughter enjoys. In fact, she is very happy going out with him and misses him when he isn't here. There has been a young man her age living nearby who has been trying to 'date' her, but she says she is a one-man girl and refuses to go out with two at a time. Now, do you think eight years too great a difference between them?—Mrs. K.

Under the circumstances, we do not think the age difference would create any conflict. The girl must care more for him than for any one else she has met. And a young woman of 19, especially one who is serious-minded, steady and reliable, is in full possession of her senses. She is the one with whom the decision should rest.

Don't Expect Too Little or Much of Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"All of a piece" with yesterday's article on the importance of understanding the fundamental needs of your son's or daughter's nature, is today's. A lack of this basic knowledge leads to some of the mistakes we listed yesterday, and to two we're going to mention today.

Those two are:

[1] Expecting too much of your child.

[2] Expecting too little of your child.

And some mothers can make both mistakes! That is, a mother can expect too much in some ways, and too little in others. Do many examples of what I mean occur to you? Here are some that occur to me:

It's expecting too much of young children to demand that they keep a promise about something that is to happen in the distant future, or that is to cover a long period of time, like promising not to disobey, or never to push Billy again, or never to snatch a dolly from Priscilla, or never to run out in the street for a ball.

It's expecting too much of teen-age sons and daughters to require them always to be home from a party on the dot of 10:30 [or whatever your curfew is], regardless of where they are, whom they're with, or what has happened.

It's expecting too much of a 3 year old to look for him to know right from wrong.

It's expecting too much of a little boy or girl just at the "touching age" to keep hands off delicate, interesting objects that are left within reach.

On the other hand, you're expecting too little:

If you don't require a young driver, newly licensed, to 'phone you if he's much delayed. You should go thru no unnecessary agony due to inconsiderateness, and those first nights out with the car turn many parents' hair gray.

If you don't expect your child to be intelligent and to understand explanations.

If you permit your child to be impudent.

If you allow your boy and girl to be rude to your maid.

If you don't expect them to learn, from the beginning, altho little by little, to be generous and considerate of others; not to make fun of those who are handicapped; and to conform to [or obey] those who have a right to ask it of them and who do so with courtesy and reason.

Harvey's Population Gains; Chicago Heights Stationary

Complete figures showing the 1940 population of two Chicago suburbs, Harvey and Chicago Heights, were issued yesterday by George W. Schreech, area census manager. Harvey has 17,863 inhabitants, compared with 16,374 in 1930. Chicago Heights was almost stationary, with 22,522 now and 22,321 10 years ago. Schreech said Chicago figures are now being computed.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

There are times when the declarer should pay no attention to the fact that there is one outstanding high trump in a defender's possession. It may well be that the declarer can go merrily about his business of running off side suit cards with the statement that the high trump can make whenever the holder chooses. At other times, however, it is vital to force a defender to take his high trump, not when he wants to, but when the declarer wants him to. The distinction is worth studying.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart king, and declarer won with the ace. He then took three rounds of trumps and, when they failed to break, made a wild rush for discards on dummy's diamond suit. He expected to discard one heart on the third round, and one on the fourth, even tho East should trump this latter with his high trump. If that plan were to succeed, he would lose only two clubs and the high trump. He reckoned badly, however.

East had a different theory about the matter. He could have ruffed the second lead of diamonds, but this would have been a bad play. He waited until he could be fairly sure that the declarer's diamond communication cards were exhausted, and ruffed the third round. This cost the defenders a trick, but an unimportant one, and was worth while as insurance.

Declarer got rid of only one heart and still had to lose the two clubs, in addition to the high trump and the heart that he had left.

The hand was an elementary one, and there was no excuse for any player past the novice stage to go wrong. After seeing that the trumps did not break, declarer should have led a fourth round to insure that the high trump, which might easily interfere with the running of the diamond suit, was taken at a stage convenient to himself. The enemy could have cashed two hearts in addition to the high spade, but could not have taken any other trick.

‡Woolford farm entry.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Mucho Gusto, 8 year old winner of the $5,000 Peabody Memorial handicap on Thursday, will wake up this morning and guess by the stable routine that he's going to run again today. And he'll be right, too, unless Trainer Kirby Ramsey alters his plans. Mucho Gusto's name is filed with the overnight entries for the $5,000 Steger handicap, which will head this afternoon's program at Lincoln Fields.

The old fellow will be confronted with a different task today, however, for he is going up against a field of fast breaking rivals in a seven furlong sprint. There is plenty of early speed distributed among the 14 entries. If no more rain falls, the track will be much firmer than it was when Mucho Gusto's aging legs carried him over a mile and a sixteenth of soft cushioning in the Peabody Memorial. So it's not going to be easy for the veteran to come right back with another victory.

Easy Mon Tries Again.

Among his rivals will be the Calumet farm's Easy Mon, which failed in muddy going in last Saturday's six furlong Crete handicap after being established the 3 to 2 favorite. Despite his unimpressive showing on that occasion, Easy Mon probably will get many backers today. He was in a bad mood last Saturday, being very unruly at the post and thoroly sluggish after the race began. He finished fifth to Dolly Val without occupying a contending position at any time.

The Woolford Farm has powerful representation in the overnight entries with Unerring, Technician and Joe Schenck. Unerring was the fastest filly on Chicago tracks last year. She scored a handy victory over Flying Lil in a match race at Washington Park last August. This event had been arranged to decide the supremacy after both of these speedy fillies had distinguished themselves in earlier stake engagements.

Technician May Surprise.

Tho Technician gave another disappointing performance in the Crete, his presence as a running mate to Unerring will draw considerable support to the Woolford entry. So far, Technician hasn't shown himself to be half the horse many thought he was at the start of last season, but sooner or later his followers expect him to hit his stride.

John Marsch's Kings Blue, whose closing rush put the finishing thrill into last Saturday's stake race, will be another strong contender in the Steger handicap. By the margin of a nose he failed to get up in the Crete handicap after he had relinquished the lead by going wide on the stretch turn.

The Lexbrook stable's Potranco and Friedberg and Axton's Montsin, both of whom gave undistinguished performances last Saturday, will try again today.

Opera Star Scores.

Morris Vehon's Opera Star and Paul Kelley's Floataway, moving as a team, came up in the last 70 yards to wear down Calumet farm's Count Morse, which had taken command during the stretch run in the Thomas Hotel purse, the feature of yesterday's program. Opera Star beat Floataway by a head, the latter holding a margin of half a length over Count Morse.

Opera Star, a consistent performer on Chicago tracks last season, was the 2 to 1 second choice in this six furlong sprint for horses of the $4,000 class. This 5 year old mare returned her backers $6.20, $3.40, and $3 in the $2 mutuels. C. H. Cleary's Jayfcee, the 9 to 5 favorite, broke fast and set the pace to the head of the stretch, then gave way rapidly and finished fifth.

Peace.

Here in the dusk of the cool, quiet evening I sit alone with my thoughts.
I try to think of the joys of the day and the lessons they have taught.
With faithful old Rover close by my side there is something here that time cannot hide.
The smoke from my pipe seems to drift right along, as the last bird of evening flies along with a song.
And the bubbling brook flows happily on, never caring for anything either evening or dawn.
It seems to me, if the world could be as peaceful and happy as I,
There would be no cause to fight and kill and no one would have to die.
But the fools cannot rest, even tho
it be best;
They must plunder and bomb and cry:
MIGHT will make right, for that we will fight
To the end, be it tragic or gay.

—B. T. E.

To the Ladies.

Come now the Briefcase Brigadiers
And put me on the spot,
Demanding that I investigate
What the women folks have got
In those various bags and reticules
They're forever toting 'round,
Some of them, à la knapsack,
To their girlish shoulders bound.

My guess would be that Pandora's box
Had simply nothing at all
On the contents of the ladies' kit—
Summer, spring, or fall;
Lipsticks and powder puffs
And polish for their nails,
And the various other come-ons
So beloved of all the males.

Bobby pins and safety pins,
Samples of silk or lace,
The gas bill, the light bill,
A pencil in its place;
An address book, a diary,
A package of cigarets,
But perhaps I'd better stop right here
And avoid a lot of regrets.

Recipes for candy,
Recipes for cake,
Which she picks up at the bridge club
But never gets 'round to bake;
Hose to be matched, a ball of yarn,
Perhaps a reducing pill,
A spare tire, a ball of yarn,
And a couple of letters from Bill.

Now I've only just begun to scratch
The surface of all the riches
Which a woman must needs drag about
Where a man can use his breeches;
But Mr. Ward, who seldom is Critical or gruff,
Might for once make reproof with a slightly aloof:
"Haven't you used about space enough?"

AL BLOZIS SETS NEW RECORDS IN SHOT PUT, DISCUS

Yale, Pennsylvania Lead in Cambridge Track.

Cambridge, Mass., May 31 (AP).—The northeast storm that usually welcomes the Intercollegiate American Amateur Athletic association track delegations to the stadium discouraged all but Al Blozis, the Georgetown giant, who broke two meet records today, as 176 entries from 28 member colleges competed in 11 trial events.

The 6 foot 4, 240 pound athlete repaid the slim crowd for its heroic attendance and attention by setting the records in the shotput and discus, while Yale and Pennsylvania each emerged from the qualifying tests with nine survivors for tomorrow's championship events.

Pittsburgh finished third on the list with eight qualifiers, Pennsylvania State retained six, Cornell, Harvard, and Manhattan five each, and Georgetown and California four each.

Shatters 1934 Record.

Four colleges retained three competitors, Princeton, Brown, Maine, and Tufts. Five others, Fordham, Boston college, Syracuse, Colgate, and Rhode Island State, had two holdovers, and Michigan State, Rutgers, and Temple each managed to get one qualifier.

As the steady rain appeared to be washing away the victory hopes of the small but highly favored University of California team, Blozis opened the 64th renewal of the intercollegiate event by heaving the shot 53 feet 6⅞ inches, to erase the meet mark, made in 1934 by John Lyman of Stanford, by 4⅛ inches.

Blozis then hastened from the stadium to the outside discus range to scale the discus 167 feet 4¾ inches, almost 4 feet farther than the previous best heave in the meet, made by Stanford's Eric Krenz 10 years ago, and about 23 feet beyond the best performance of Blozis' closest rival, Al Morro, of Boston college.

Ewell Qualifies in 3.

Penn State's great Negro star, Norwood Ewell, qualified easily in three events, as was expected, but the unfavorable conditions hampered him greatly. He led the 12 qualifiers for the 100 yard dash semi-finals by winning a :09.9 heat, and his :22.2 heat in the 220 yard dash trials was only the third fastest. Bob Owen of Yale, was clocked in :21.9 and Frank Ohl of Pittsburgh in :22.

Ewell cleared but 22 feet 5 inches in the broad jump tryouts, thereby finishing behind Anson Perina of Princeton, the defending champion, who covered 23 feet 5½ inches, and Ohl, who was runnerup with a 22 feet 6 inches leap.

California qualified Herb Michael in the shot put and discus, also Bernie Wolf in the discus, and Clarence Barnes in the quarter mile. The Golden Bears, however, lost Denzil Widel and Martin Biles in the half mile and javelin throws, and these failures appeared costly ones.

Michael Good Second.

Michael was a good second in the shot put with a heave of 53 feet 1¼ inches, only an inch and a half short of the old record. Later he was fourth in the discus, qualifying with 133 feet 11½ inches. Wolf qualified for the discus in third place with 141 feet 1¼ inches.

Barnes was not particularly impressive in the quarter mile preliminaries. He won in 49.8 seconds, slowest time of the three heats, beating Harold Bogrow of New York university.

Widel's half mile performance also was disappointing. He finished in fourth place behind Leslie MacMitchell of N. Y. U. in another slowest heat, won in 1:59.8. Three in each heat qualified.

Biles wasn't even a threat in the javelin, as Nick Vukmanik of Penn State led the six qualifiers with a throw of 200 feet 9 inches.

Illinois, N. U. Share Title as Gophers Lose

Iowa City, Ia., May 31 [Special].—The University of Minnesota baseball team watched its Western conference title chance slip from its grasp here today as Iowa whipped the Gophers, 7 to 2, behind the four hit pitching of lanky Hal Haub.

The defeat of the Gophers now leaves the Big 9½ title shared by Illinois and Northwestern, which finished their schedules with nine victories and three defeats apiece. Iowa and Minnesota will clash here again tomorrow in the final game of the conference season, with the Gophers needing a victory to take third place. Iowa moved up to third by today's victory.

Hawks Take Lead in Sixth.

Minnesota took the lead in the first inning when Groto's single scored Knox. The Hawkeyes went in front in the sixth when Prasse, Kantor and Welp scored on a walk, two singles and a double. A Minnesota rally in the eighth was limited to one run due to brilliant fielding by Prasse and Kantor.

Iowa clinched the decision by scoring four times in the last of the eighth, Smith's double with the bases filled driving in the first two.

Altho losing the same number of games as Illinois and Northwestern, Iowa and Minnesota have no further chance for the title because of canceled games which shortened their schedules.

How Co-Champions Fared.

Northwestern's only defeats during the conference season were to Illinois in a double header and to Ohio State. After losing their first two to the Illini, the Wildcats won eight straight before losing to the Buckeyes and dropping to second place, a half game behind Illinois, which already had finished its schedule. Northwestern then evened its series with Ohio State and climbed back into a tie for first place. Illinois' three defeats resulted by splitting 2 game series with Iowa, Ohio State, and Michigan.

Today's victory was Haub's 11th in 13 games this season, his sixth in eight conference games. His only defeats were administered by Northwestern on successive days, May 10 and 11. Today's game also marked the first conference defeat of the year for Bill Anderson, Minnesota pitcher, who had won three in a row. Score:

Iowa	000	003	04*	7	6	0

WHITE SOX HOPE TO DODGE RAIN IN BOSTON TODAY

Knott Will Pitch if There Is a Contest.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 31—The fifth place White Sox and the league leading Red Sox are scheduled to meet in Fenway park tomorrow in the first of a four-game series, but a downpour was soaking Boston tonight, which makes it doubtful that the full set will be played, rain sometimes being a protracted ordeal on this section of the Atlantic seaboard. The Red Sox, who were to have played the Yankees in New York today in the only major league game scheduled, were balked by rain, so arrived home in time to get a good night's rest.

It perhaps would be unfair to say the White Sox hope it keeps on raining for a week. That would imply that they don't want to play against the Red Sox in a single tomorrow, a double header Sunday and a single game Monday, followed by single games in Yankee stadium next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Whatever one may say about the Sox, they are not cowardly, and if they are praying for rain, it is only because they have heard it will help the farmers' crops.

Knott Will Pitch First.

Jack Knott is scheduled to pitch the opener here tomorrow. The boys expect to face Emerson Dickman. John Rigney and the Sox beat Dickman when they were here a month ago but in Chicago, on May 14, Dickman held Dykes' boys to one hit in the eighth, ninth, and tenth innings of a game which Jimmy Foxx won in the tenth with his second homer of the afternoon. Jimmy had tied the score after walking in the eighth inning. Others available for Boston duty are Jack Wilson, Lefty Ostermueller, and Maurice Harris.

It is certain the White Sox will see some left-handed pitching while they are here if the four games are played, altho it is doubtful that Manager Joe Cronin will start Lefty Grove, as he has in two of the three games the teams have played thus far. Cronin may be influenced in sending forth lefties as a consequence of the double licking the Sox took from Cleveland southpaws yesterday.

Southpaws Cause Trouble.

No use talking too much about that Cleveland stopover, but it is significant that the Sox, never considered weaklings against lefties, yesterday made only six hits off Al Smith in the first game and five off Al Milnar in the second. The scores of the two games, in which four southpaws did all the pitching for both sides, in case you've forgotten, were 3 to 1 and 3 to 1 in favor of Cleveland.

Knott pitched two great games on the last road trip, but has been pretty unhappy his last two times out, against the Tigers in Chicago and in the second game of the double header which the Sox dropped to the Browns in St. Louis last Tuesday. He has no physical handicaps, however, and is considered due for one of his good games.

Jimmy Is Perturbed.

Manager Jim Dykes, who seldom allows himself to become morose or angry when he is away from ball parks and doesn't have to associate with umpires, has had quite a time controling his admirable poise since the team lost its first two double headers, with only one last minute victory sandwiched between the two double losses.

Dykes is philosophical when he loses games because his lads aren't hitting. He knows that hitting is something that mysteriously comes and goes. But when his charges do silly things the little man is irritated no end. He is not a silly man himself and when his boys look foolish, they usually haven't been doing things he has instructed them to. No doubt this aggravation over stupors is emphasized by the fact there really isn't a dumb player on the team.

RAFFENSBERGER NAMED TO HALT LOSING STREAK

Hugh Casey to Pitch for Visitors.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, thanks to the schedule makers, are drawing all the tough ones in a bunch. First it was the St. Louis Cardinals who grabbed two-thirds of the homecoming series ending Wednesday. Then the titleholding Cincinnati Reds dropped in for the Memorial day activities, the outcome of which was doubly disastrous. Now the guest enemies are the Brooklyn Dodgers who thus far have done a surprising job of kidding themselves into the idea that they are the budding National league champions.

Ken Raffensberger, young left hander, will do the pitching for the Cubs, with Hugh Casey opposing him.

The Dodgers, and the Cubs as well, will have to put in a few extra hours before concluding their current series. They'll play the customary one game today, but will double up tomorrow at 1:30 p. m., because of a washout during Brooklyn's previous visit here. A single game on Monday will close the set, after which the Philadelphia Phillies are here for three days, Boston for three days [one a double bill], and lastly the Giants for a three day meeting.

Ken Raffensberger. Hugh Casey.
Raffensberger and Casey will be starting pitchers in today's Cub-Dodger game.

Scatter Gun Hitters.

While the Cubs would dearly love to hoist themselves into the status of a pennant contender their desires appear to exceed their ability. Their hitting, most of the time, is of the scatter gun variety. In hopes of finding a solution, Manager Gabby Hartnett has juggled his lineup repeatedly. One combination has proved no better than another so he'll just have to keep on juggling.

A sample of the lack of pitching is furnished by the number of nine inning jobs to date. Bill Lee has started 10 games and completed only four. Claude Passeau in nine starts has gone the distance on five occasions. Larry French has survived five of his nine starts. He has been knocked out of his last three games. Diz Dean, who was started five times before being abandoned, was given the bounce on four occasions. Charley Root and Vern Olsen have had two starts apiece, none of which proved full time jobs.

Galan's Slump Hurts.

One of the big disappointments from a hitting standpoint is Augie Galan who is far behind his 1939 pace of .304. So far behind, in fact, that there is a difference of almost 100 points. He has been rested repeatedly, each time on a hunch that a few days of loafing might move him out of the bad luck class. Some of the other outfielders have fairly imposing averages, but they haven't much to show in the runs batted in column. Hank Leiber is the sole exception.

The club officials keep on hinting of their desire to make a deal before ivory swapping becomes taboo two weeks hence, but just where they are looking is their own secret. There is little chance to get either a real hitter or a seasoned pitcher unless something of value is given in return and the Cubs have nothing to give. At least not unless they weaken one spot to strengthen another.

FIGHTING FOX TO SEEK REVENGE IN ROSEBEN TODAY

The Chief Is in Field, Too, So It's Grudge Race.

New York, May 31 (AP).—Fighting Fox, owned by William Woodward, comes back to the races tomorrow looking for revenge in the $5,000 added Roseben handicap at Belmont Park.

In the co-headliner, Starmount stable's Damaged Goods, which turned in a smashing victory in the Acorn 10 days ago, will try to prove that triumph was not a fluke by taking a crack at the 24th running of the mile and three-eighths Coaching Club American Oaks for 3 year old fillies.

Fighting Fox, a 5 year old, has been in his three years of racing just about as unpredictable a runner as you'll find around. Despite his hot and cold performances, however, he collected $75,625 last year.

Disqualified in Excelsior.

So far this season he wound up first in the six furlong Paumonok handicap, packing 130 pounds, and the mile and a sixteenth Excelsior handicap, carrying 128. He finished a clear length in front in the latter, but was disqualified because of a foul, and Maxwell Howard's The Chief took the winner's pot.

Naturally this didn't sit well in Woodward's stable. So Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons has the Fox rarin' to go in tomorrow's three-quarter affair, despite the load of 132 pounds the horse has been asked to tote. The Chief also is in the field of seven, but Fitzsimmons isn't so worried about him as he is about the mud runners, unless the threat of rain leaves and the track dries out over night.

Cape Cod Wins Bouquet.

Cape Cod, a speedy 2 year old, won the Bouquet claiming stakes and $2,825 for the Millsdale stable of Tony Pelleteri and M. L. Emmerich. But Millsdale lost the colt to Victor Emanuel by the claiming route for $4,500. The 1 mile Black Heleh handicap went to another favorite, Forfend, which numbered among its victims William Ziegler Jr.'s veteran handicap performer Esposa.

The 8 year old Esposa made her first appearance since January, 1939, and finished fourth in the field of five as Forfend, a $4.40 for $2 choice, romped home by six lengths in 1:39 4-5. Hasty Wedding was second by five lengths and Rust third.

Cape Cod shot to the front in the first furlong of the juvenile sprint and had no trouble beating H. P. Headley's Not Yet by four lengths. Paul Codd's Camp Sortie was third.

HALCYON BOY WINS.

Boston, Mass., May 31 (AP).—Benjamin Kane's Halcyon Boy, who won the Commonwealth handicap last Saturday, turned in its third straight triumph at Suffolk Downs today by galloping home in the 6 furlong grade B handicap. Clocked in 1:15 3-5 over the muddy track and thru a driving rain, Halcyon Boy won by five lengths from C. H. Trotter's Silent Witness, which beat out J. W. Y. Martin's Abrasion in the stretch run. The winner was a $3.80 favorite in a field of four.

AMSTEL TO DAY OFF.

Stanton, Del., May 31 (AP).—Day Off, Mrs. Payne Whitney's good mudder, outran H. H. Temple Jr.'s Cutlas over a mile and one-sixteenth route at Delaware Park today to take the Amstel purse. The muddy track reduced the field to four and only two were in the running. Christiana stable's Foxshade took third money, 15 lengths behind the leader. Day Off was a 1 to 2 favorite.

NINE TEAMS TO BID FOR TITLE IN INDIANA CARNIVAL

Purdue and Notre Dame Threaten Hoosiers.

Lafayette, Ind., May 31 [Special].—One of the keenest three way fights in recent years is expected tomorrow in the annual Indiana Intercollegiate conference track meet, with Indiana's title defenders picked to repeat in the face of strong bids by Purdue and Notre Dame. In addition to the big three, the field will include Butler, recently crowned Little State champion, Earlham, DePauw, Ball State, Rose Poly, and Taylor university.

Given favorable weather conditions at least four state records are expected to be endangered—the shot put, discus throw, quarter mile run, and two mile run. Defending champions in 10 of 14 individual events are included among the 129 athletes from 9 schools. Returning titleholders include Cochran of Indiana in the low hurdles, quarter mile dash, and broad jump; Harris of Indiana in the shot put and discus; Dean, Notre Dame, pole vault; Leonas, Notre Dame, high jump; Poorman, Indiana, javelin; Saggau, Notre Dame, 100 yard dash, and Southworth, Butler, half mile run.

Holderman Meets Rivals.

In the track events the middle distance and distance runs are expected to provide the feature. Ed Holderman, Purdue's ace, will renew his duels with Tolliver and Kane of Indiana for two mile and mile supremacy, respectively, while Kane may be pushed to the limit by Southworth in the half mile run.

In the Big 9½ meet last Saturday Holderman nosed out Tolliver for two mile honors and finished second to Kane in a great mile race, while Kane also finished second in the half mile.

The three-way battle in the shot put among Harris of Indiana, Weber of Purdue, and Brosey, of Notre Dame, all of whom have been hitting around the 50 foot mark consistently all year, is expected to take the spotlight in the field.

Cochran Is Ready.

A great deal of Indiana's hope of defending its title successfully revolves around the condition of Roy Cochran, all-around star, who was forced to drop out of the Big 9½ meet after injuring his leg in the 100 yard dash. Advices from Bloomington indicate that Cochran is back in form and will forego the dashes in order to concentrate on the quarter-mile run, low hurdles, and broad jump.

Purdue's hopes in the fight for the team title depend upon the scoring ability of Ted Tykocki in the sprints and broad jump; Dave Rankin in the hurdles; Capt. Shackleton in the 440, and Joe Edwards in the pole vault, as well as the mile relay combination.

In addition to its trio of defending champions—Saggau, Dean and Leonas—Notre Dame is counting on Brosey in the weights; Archer, in the javelin; Hester in the middle distances, and Roy, in the quarter-mile. The Irish also feel that their mile relay team might win.

MILLS DEFEAT KOCHS, 2 TO 1, IN GIRLS' SOFTBALL

Juanita Laberdee, righthanded hurler whom the Mills team imported from Cleveland, limited the Koch Furniture's of Cleveland to six hits and won a 2 to 1 decision at Mills stadium last night. Mary Skorich pitched for the Koch's.

Caroline Olirich tripled with the bases loaded in the eighth to clinch a 7 to 1 victory for the Hydrox team over the Erin Brew's of Cleveland at Shewbridge field. Miss Olirich held the visitors to 5 hits while the Hydrox totaled 11 off Pitcher Marge Woods.

Alice Ruhnke's double with two on base featured Rockola's 3 to 0 victory over the Rivals in Spencer field. Renee Sweet of the Rivals allowed only two hits.

Tonight's games:

Koch Furniture, Cleveland vs. Rivals, Spencer field, 4200 N. Central avenue.

Tomboy Grocers, St. Louis vs. Rockola's, Harlem and North avenues.

Farrow Chix, Peoria vs. Parichy Bloomer Girl's, Harlem and Harrison streets.

Nationals, St. Louis vs. Mills, Kilpatrick and Lake streets.

Erin Brew's, Cleveland vs. Hydrox, Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

SHAW COLLECTS HIS $31,875 FOR 3D RACE VICTORY

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31 (AP).—Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis rang the cash register tonight for $31,875 in prize money, won yesterday as he roared to victory for the third time in the Indianapolis motor speedway 500 mile race.

Raul Riganti.

Shaw collected $20,000 from the speedway as first prize. He won $5,000 in lap money and the remainder of his winnings came in prizes awarded from various automobile accessory concerns.

In addition, he won an electric refrigerator, an automobile, a statue, an Indianapolis restaurant concern meal ticket good for a year, and the checkered flag which signalled victory to him yesterday.

The sportsmanship award, a stop watch, went to Raul Riganti, the South American champion, whose car crashed thru a fence early in the race. The award—presented for the first time in several years—goes to the driver showing the greatest sportsmanship and general mental attitude.

Raul Is Grateful.

Riganti, who was able to be present tonight, expressed thanks thru his interpreter for the award and drew a laugh when he said: "The committee which awarded the first place prize to Wilbur Shaw made a mistake. The race was won by Riganti since I was the first one to get out."

Rex Mays of Glendale, Cal., who finished second, collected $15,950 and in addition won a gold belt buckle presented by Joel Thorne of Tucson, Ariz., for turning the fastest qualifying lap.

RAINY WEATHER HITS COFFERS OF MICHIGAN LEAGUE

Muskegon, Mich., May 31 [Special].—With half of the games during the first two weeks postponed because of rain and many others played under unfavorable weather conditions, the newly organized Michigan State league is taking a terrific financial beating, and some worry is expressed over Saginaw and Lansing which are operating without major league support. For example, Saginaw has had eight of its first ten games rained out. St. Joseph, smallest city in the league, also is owned locally, but has strong financial support.

The other three clubs are major league farms, the Muskegon Reds being owned by the Detroit Tigers; the Grand Rapids Colts by the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Flint by the Cleveland Indians. St. Joseph has a working agreement with the Chicago White Sox, the Lancers of Lansing with the St. Louis Cardinals and Saginaw with the Philadelphia Athletics, but all the clubs are owned locally.

Not only have more than half the games been rained out, but last Sunday, when crowds might have been expected, every game was washed out. Grand Rapids and St. Joseph suffered especially heavy losses as at least 3,000 fans were expected in Grand Rapids to see Ted Coffey, local high school boy, make his professional debut, while St. Joseph expected a sell out for the double header with Muskegon.

Crowds have been small in all cities except Muskegon. The Muskegon Reds have averaged around 800 a game, despite the weather.

Don Griffin May Enroll at Illinois, Fenger Coach Says

Donald Griffin, Fenger High school's brilliant quarter back, may enroll at the University of Illinois next September, it was learned last night. There were no definite statements from sources in Chicago and Champaign, but it was indicated that Illinois is the choice of the star ball carrier, who in 1938 succeeded Bill De Correvont as the city's outstanding prep football hero.

Don Griffin.

Charles [Chuck] Palmer, Fenger coach and former Northwestern athlete, said Griffin had failed in his attempt to enter the United States Naval academy, the only other institution given serious consideration. Griffin a few weeks ago took entrance examinations for the navy, but Palmer said Griffin, one of Fenger's brightest students, did not have sufficient time to prepare for such a test.

Offer Legislative Scholarship.

"Griffin has been named as one of the Illinois prep students to receive a legislative scholarship at the University of Illinois, and I believe he favors enrolling there next fall," Palmer said.

In Champaign athletic officials said they understood Griffin was very much interested in attending Illinois. There is an excellent possibility that Illinois will be his choice, they added. Reports that Griffin was a prospective Illinois student were first heard last fall after it was learned that the football star had spent the summer of 1939 in a boys' camp conducted by Wendell S. Wilson, Illinois athletic director, at the Teton Valley ranch in the Jackson Hole region of Wyoming.

Back Again to Wyoming Camp.

Griffin, it was said in Champaign last night, plans to return to the Wyoming camp immediately after his graduation from Fenger this month. The scholarship offered Griffin entitles him to free tuition, approximately $70 a year.

It also was learned last night that John Genis, Fenger guard, has made definite plans to enroll at Illinois. Jack Kilroy, Fenger's 6 foot center, has decided on the University of Iowa, according to his father, Arthur Kilroy, Acme Steel company official.

Griffin, one of the greatest ball carriers in Fenger's history, brought the school its first Public School league championship in 1938. Griffin later led Fenger to the All-City title, defeating Mount Carmel, 13 to 0. Last fall Griffin again was the leader in Fenger's second successive league championship, but the south siders' string of 22 victories finally was halted by Mount Carmel, which held the champions to a 13 to 13 tie in Mayor Kelly's game.

Babe Ruth Due Today to Head School's Staff

Babe Ruth, one time home run king of baseball, will arrive today to be chief instructor of the Doan Baseball school, which will operate for 10 days at Mills stadium and Shrewbridge field, starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Ruth will be welcomed to Chicago tomorrow when he appears at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick and Lake streets, during a double header between the Mills and the Michigan City Wonders. Judge Frank M. Padden, who was designated yesterday as Mayor Edward J. Kelly's representative, will give an address of welcome. Between games—around 3 p. m.—Ruth will give a batting exhibition.

Ruth is bringing his favorite bat to Chicago for use in the exhibition and also in the Doan school.

Rogers Hornsby, former big league second baseman and manager, who will be Ruth's chief aid in the school, was detained in St. Louis yesterday because of the illness of his wife, but may arrive sometime today to join Ruth in the first sessions of the school.

HOPE TO START DELAYED MIDGET RACES TONIGHT

There also will be a consolation at 15 laps for nonqualifiers and a handicap at 12 laps for the fastest eight cars in the time trials.

Another midget program is scheduled for tomorrow night on Riverview speedway. Addison street near Western avenue.

W-G-N WINS, 15-12.

ST. GEORGE BIDS FOR 3D TITLE IN CATHOLIC MEET

St. George will seek its third consecutive Catholic High school league track title today and tomorrow on Stagg field where 10 schools and more than 200 individuals will compete in the annual event.

This year the Evanston athletes won the first annual prep relays at Loyola university with 42½ points, but that meet included only half of the standard events.

St. Ignatius Threatens.

St. Ignatius, which registered 34 points in the Loyola meet, is expected to give St. George its sternest competition with De La Salle not to be overlooked.

Tommy Wood of St. George, who vaulted 11 feet 7 inches, may crack the meet record. He was the only member of that team to win a first in the individual events at Loyola.

Hold Preliminaries Today.

Preliminaries will be held today at 1:30 o'clock. The finals will start at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Rut Walter will be the referee and starter.

Teams entered are St. George, St. Ignatius, De La Salle, Mt. Carmel, St. Rita, Loyola, Fenwick, Leo, De Paul, and Catholic High of Joliet.

Seeded stars face a threat in four of the leading juniors—Gardner Larned, James Evert, Robert Smidl, and William Baumann—who have had considerable tournament experience.

Play in women's singles will open Monday with Katherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., seeded No. 1. She holds the city title as well as the western.

MICHIGAN FACES STRONG RIVALS IN A. A. U. TRACK

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 31 [Special].—Track fans of the state are picking Michigan to win the team championship and Bill Watson, former Wolverine star, as the individual standout in the Michigan A. A. U. track meet here tomorrow. However, with considerable strength distributed among the other 12 teams on the list, the Wolverines may have trouble.

Michigan Normal, winner of the state intercollegiate meet; Michigan State college, with 33 men entered, Detroit police and perhaps the Hamtramck club, are possibilities for the team title.

Alan Smith, Big 9½ 220 yard champion and A. A. U. record holder, is entered in the 100 yard dash also, but will face a brilliant field and might finish as low as fourth. Captain Elect Don Canham, Big 9½ high jump champion, undefeated this season, will be opposed by Stan Simmons, Hamtramck, and Floyd Bates, Flint, both capable of bettering the record of 6 feet 5¾ inches.

SPEED UP PLANS FOR OPENING OF SUBWAY IN 1941

Prompt O. K. on Unified Ordinance Needed.

Chicago's eight mile subway system can be placed in operation before the close of 1941 if the proposed unified traction ordinance is approved promptly by securities holders of the transit lines and then by the public at a referendum, Philip Harrington, city traction and subway commissioner, said yesterday.

The $46,000,000 city owned subway tunnel, begun in December, 1938, is now 65 per cent completed and will be substantially finished by the end of this year, Harrington said.

450 New Cars Planned.

The city's plan for hastening subway service provides for an expediting ordinance to be passed by the council immediately after the referendum in August. The ordinance will direct the present Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] to order 450 new all-steel subway-elevated cars and to equip the 455 all-steel cars it now owns with multiple door controls. Engineers estimate 900 of the all-steel cars are needed for subway used and of the elevated lines that connect with the subway.

The ordinance also will direct the elevated lines to install subway track, signals, electric cables, and station turnstiles. It will direct the city, however, to build connections between the subway and elevated structures and to install station tiling and plumbing and ventilating facilities in the subway. This division of construction has been agreed to by the city and the lines.

How Costs Are Divided.

The cost of building and equipping the subway under these plans will exceed 68 million dollars, as shown in the following table:

City's Share.	Cost.
Subway structure [includes $18,000,000 PWA grant]	$46,000,000
"L" connections, station equipment	5,000,000
	$51,000,000
Transit Lines' Share.
450 new subway-elevated cars	$11,250,000
Track, signals, etc.	5,000,000
Improve 455 "L" cars for subway use	830,000
	$17,080,000
Total	$68,080,000

The city's share, amounting to $33,000,000 besides the PWA grant, is being taken from the traction fund. The lines' proposed outlay is expected to be financed, Harrington said, from an initial loan of $25,000,000 to be obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation by the unified company. The plan calls for an advance of the necessary funds from the RFC to the elevated lines after the referendum, and assumption of obligation to repay the loan by the new company as soon as it is formed.

RFC Delays Loan Decision.

RFC officials have indicated they are willing to grant the loan, but are withholding a final decision until terms of the unification ordinance are drafted and submitted to them.

Serious consideration is being given, it was learned, to a new type of lightweight aluminum alloy car that has been used experimentally in New York City subways for the last year. The car, mounted in three sections on four trucks, is 80 feet long, compared with 48 feet for present "L" cars. It has twice the power per ton of present cars and accelerates twice as fast. Use of rubber and precision gears eliminates most of the roar and rumble now produced by elevated cars.

E. T. STOTESBURY ESTATE VALUED AT NINE MILLIONS

The principal assets consisted of securities totaling $4,815,771. Stotesbury died a resident of Philadelphia, and the only property taxable in New York state was $3,101 representing equity in real estate and jewelry.

Stotesbury's partnership interests in the banking firms of J. P. Morgan and company and Drexel and company of Philadelphia, totaled $3,126,418.

The widow, Mrs. Eva R. Stotesbury of Chestnut Hill, Pa., receives $100,000 outright and the income for life from one-third of the residuary estate. Frances B. Mitchell of Bryn Mawr also receives $100,000 and a life estate in one-third of the residue. The remainder residuary share is divided among three grandchildren.

CHURCH THAT OIL BUILT WILL BE OPENED SUNDAY

Centralia, Ill., May 31 (AP).—The church that oil built will be dedicated Sunday.

The four dozen members of Young's Chapel, in the heart of the Lake Centralia-Salem oil field, henceforth will hold their religious services in a $20,000 brick edifice instead of the modest frame building which gained prominence with oil riches during the last two years.

Even after paying for the new building, the church will remain one of the wealthiest rural churches in the middle west, for its oil holdings have poured $45,000 into its coffers and the end of the new found revenue is not yet in sight. Four producing wells have been drilled on the one acre churchyard and are paying monthly royalty to the church.

INDUSTRY DUE FOR BOOM FROM ARMS PROGRAM

Federal Economists Predict Upturn.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

As the government swings into its vast rearmament program there is every indication industrial activity will pick up speed in the next few weeks. The double barreled effect of the domestic program and the expanding purchases of the allies may soon lift the level of industrial activity to the high point reached last December, in the opinion of some observers.

Already there has been a decisive rise in industrial operations. From the low point of 102 which was touched in April, the federal reserve board index of industrial production has risen to 105. Economists for the board predict that the June level will approximate 110 and a further advance is anticipated.

Index 128 in December.

At the high point last December the production index stood at 128 [the 1923-'25 average is used as 100]. It fell swiftly during the first quarter of 1940. At this season last year the production index was below 100. The rise that carried the index to the December level of 128 did not get well underway until August, shortly before the formal declarations of war by France and England.

Steel mills are setting the pace for industry. This week operations over the country approached the level where approximately 80 per cent of the producing facilities are in use. With the dependence of the allies on American industry increasingly daily there appears the prospect of further foreign orders for this country's steel mills.

Users Build Up Stocks.

Large steel users were reported yesterday to be increasing stocks on hand to avoid the rush that may develop when the armament program gets further under way. Some steel men believe that the rate of operations in the industry may reach 90 per cent or more of capacity in the present upswing. The high mark last fall was 94½ per cent, reached in the week of Nov. 27.

The quickening of industrial activity poses many questions for which business men are seeking answers.

These concern the probable trend of prices and wages and the problem of relieving bottlenecks that may develop as the result of known shortages of certain kinds of skilled labor.

Predict Check on Prices.

It is certain that the government will try to check any tendency toward a sharp run-up in prices. With the national administration indicating that it will take an active rôle in the direction of industry it appears that the machinery to check such a swift rise in prices or wages will not be lacking.

In spite of such controls, however, it is asserted, that prices of certain materials may rise and wage rates for certain kinds of labor may be advanced. Furthermore, it appears that the need to relax the present rigid limits on working hours will be increasingly apparent.

Federal Financing Expected.

Bankers do not anticipate any material expansion in private commercial loans as a result of the rearmament plans. Government agencies are preparing to lend where necessary to rehabilitate needed plants or build new plants. The government agencies in turn may go to the commercial banks for money. With ample funds available for lending the banks are expected to furnish all the capital that the government agencies may seek.

The banking and currency committee of the house earlier this week reported favorably a bill that would greatly enlarge the powers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It would permit the agency to engage in manufacturing of "equipment and supplies necessary to the national defense." Efforts to limit the financing and manufacturing powers of the RFC to arms, amunition, and implements of war were brushed aside by administration leaders.

DIVIDEND LIMIT ON PIPE LINE IS ASKED BY MOKAN

Wilmington, Del., May 31 [Special].—The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company today brought action against the Columbia Oil and Gasoline corporation in the chancery court seeking to restrain the Columbia company from receiving an annual dividend of $6 a share, plus additional participations, on $10,000,000 of $6 class a participating preferred stock of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company.

Mokan, as the company is commonly known, petitioned the court to limit the dividend on the Panhandle preferred to $4.50 a year and eliminate the participating features of the issue.

The petition declares that the terms of the outstanding Panhandle Eastern $6 preferred stock are such "as to injure the credit of Panhandle Eastern and make it difficult to raise new money for expansion and corporate purposes." Mokan is a minority stockholder.

Chicago Firm Gets World Fair Fireworks Contract

Thearle-Duffield Fireworks, Inc., of Chicago, has been awarded a $175,000 contract by the San Francisco world fair and has begun presenting the exposition's nightly fireworks program, Jack Duffield, general manager of the company, announced yesterday.

Way Cleared for Investing Company Bill

Sen. Wagner praises coöperation on bill.

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—Agreement between the Securities and Exchange commission and a large number of investment trusts cleared the way today for possible congressional action at this session on regulation of investment trusts and investment companies.

Spokesmen for the industry and SEC officials appeared before a senate banking subcommittee to present joint recommendations for a regulatory measure which they said they had agreed upon in a series of informal conferences.

They asked the committee to act as quickly as possible to make possible early senate and house consideration. They expressed the opinion that regulation would benefit the industry and enable it to play a large part in providing new capital for financing vital defense industries.

Wagner Praises Methods.

Chairman Robert Wagner [D., N. Y.] of the subcommittee called the joint proposals a "magnificent" example of how "coöperation between government and industry may achieve reasonable and sound legislation."

The SEC officials said they were still attempting to reach an agreement with minor divisions of the industry on terms of regulation affecting those groups. They said they expected to have the bill in final form in a few days.

Some of the major provisions of the compromise bill follow:

All investment trusts and investment companies would be required to register with the SEC, supplying detailed information as to the character of the business, its officers, etc.

Prohibits Short Selling.

Certain practices such as purchases on margin, short selling and trading in joint accounts would be prohibited.

Approval of a majority of stockholders would be required before an investment company could change its basic investment policy or borrow money.

Restrictions would be imposed on transactions with affiliated persons, and "self-dealing" would be prohibited.

Companies would be required to inform stockholders when dividends were paid out of funds other than earnings on investments.

POUND AND FRANC RISE; CANADIAN DOLLAR DECLINES

British and French currencies advanced at New York yesterday. The Canadian dollar, however, weakened and securities prices declined in London.

The pound rose 4 cents to $3.23½. Money dealers said short covering was an influence. The French franc finished 0.02 cent higher at 1.83 cents. A drop of ⅜ cent left the Canadian dollar at 78⅛ cents in terms of United States money. The Swiss franc eased 0.005 cent to 22.42½ cents.

Prospects of increased taxes in Britain drove industrial stocks downward in London. British government bonds were fractionally higher, however. In Paris prices on the bourse were mixed, with Belgian bonds at new low levels.

SULPHITE PULP PRICE BOOSTED $11 AS OF JULY 1

MONTREAL, May 31 (AP).—Increase of $11 a ton in the price of bleached sulphite pulp to $72.50, effective for the three months beginning July 1, was announced today by Canadian International Paper company.

The announcement said the price was for 2,000 pounds of airdry weight, based on United States Atlantic ports. An increase of $1.50 a ton had been made effective April 1.

Increased demand for pulp from the United States resulted when the war cut off supplies from Scandinavia.

Also announced was an increase of $5 per ton in the price of rayon pulp, effective during the same period. Rayon pulp prices will range from $75 a ton up.

Business Books

Capital Expansion, Employment, and Economic Stability, by Harold A. Moulton, et al. [The Brooking Institution, Washington, D. C. $3.50.]

Seeking to find the causes for the lagging movement of savings into business expansion, the Brookings institution, a private research organization, began two years ago a thoro investigation of American capital markets. The study concerned itself primarily with the relation of taxation to investment and with the obstacles which impede the flow of funds into investment and capital expansion.

The report covers results of research into predepression outlet and sources, the long term capital market since 1930, capital markets and interest rates, the problems of different investing groups, capital needs of corporations, the question of economic maturity, government policies, regulation of investment banking, and taxation.

Modification of the tax system and elimination of government deficit financing and competition from government credit agencies, the report suggests, would help to stimulate capital expansion and result in more employment and larger national income.

Price 'Floor' to Continue in Grain Market

The minimum prices on grain futures that were established May 18 by all exchanges will probably remain in force indefinitely, it was indicated yesterday.

John D. McCarthy won't comment on "support."

In Washington it was reported that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was insistent that the exchanges make no modifications in the restrictions that were adopted at his request. The government has no authority to enforce the minimum prices.

Officials of the Chicago Board of Trade and other markets conferred with Wallace in Washington on Thursday this week. It was reported that certain exchanges outside of Chicago believe that the price supports have served their purpose and should be removed as soon as possible. The Chicago exchange, however, has taken no stand on the question.

Brush Aside All Questions.

A canvass of the officials of the Chicago exchange indicated that directors of the organization have not made up their minds what policy should be adopted. To date, they have merely given assurances to the government representatives that they will coöperate to the extent necessary to stabilize the market. Beyond that there appears to be no plan of action.

John G. McCarthy, president of the board, declined yesterday to discuss the matter. Other exchange officials brushed aside questions with the statement, "We will issue a statement when we have anything to say."

Meanwhile the New York Stock exchange continues to function without any restrictions of any kind on prices. After conferring Thursday with William MacChesney Martin, president of the exchange, President Roosevelt told reporters that there was no necessity of closing the stock exchanges as was done at the beginning of the world war.

GRAIN PRICES DECLINE

Grain markets turned downward yesterday as the result of more favorable crop reports. Fear that a spreading of the war into the Mediterranean area would further curtail the European demand for wheat was also a factor in the decline.

Price weakness in the corn pit gave rise to rumors that Great Britain had canceled its recently placed order for 20 million bushels of corn under the new corn subsidy program. Department of agriculture officials, queried in Washington, D. C., denied any knowledge of such a cancellation. They said they had not heard the rumor.

Wheat closed with losses of 1⅝ to 2 cents. Corn was 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents lower. Oats finished ⅝ to 1⅛ cents lower, the July delivery reaching the minimum price established May 20.

Soy bean futures were offered at minimum prices with only a few small lots changing hands. Rye declined 1⅝ to 2⅜ cents and closed at the minimum.

Weather conditions during the last week are reported to have improved the winter wheat crop in the southwest. Crop experts are said to be revising their estimates upward.

Broker Firm Negotiates with C. I. O. Office Union

Contract negotiations between J. S. Bache & Co., New York and Chicago stock exchange firm, and the United Office and Professional Workers of America [C. I. O.] will be resumed next Wednesday, the union announced here yesterday. Henry Stefany, Chicago office manager for the commission house, said negotiations were under way.

Senator Reintroduces Ban on Foreign Silver Buying

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—Senator John G. Townsend Jr. [R., Del.] today amended and reintroduced legislation to terminate treasury purchases of foreign silver. The legislation earlier had been approved by the senate, but was returned by the house because it contained a tax provision. The house originates all revenue legislation.

ALUMINUM TRUST SUIT TRIAL TWO YEARS OLD —STILL GOING STRONG

New York, May 31 (AP).—Trial of the government's antitrust suit against the Aluminum Company of America and its subsidiaries and affiliates ended its second year in federal court today.

Since the trial, without a jury, began before Judge Francis G. Caffey on June 1, 1938, more than 150 witnesses have given 35,000 pages of testimony. The defense opened last November and is expected to continue another month.

Since the action was instituted in 1937, one individual defendant, Andrew W. Mellon, has died. Families of two defense attorneys, Edgar P. Baker and Walter K. Bennett, have been increased by two children each. Judge Caffey celebrated his 70th and 71st birthdays.

BUILDERS OFFER FASTER OUTPUT OF DESTROYERS

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—Two shipbuilders submitted proposals to the navy today to cut six months from the time now required to build destroyers. The concerns, the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Me., and the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, Kearny, N. J., bidding on four 1,630 ton destroyers, offered to complete them in 18 months, whereas 24 months is the shortest construction time under present contracts.

Their proposals were in response to the navy's efforts to speed shipbuilding to the utmost as a part of the current preparedness program.

The Bath Iron Works bid $5,387,000 on each of two destroyers, the first to be completed in 18 months and the second two months later. The concern asked $4,898,000 each if adjustments were made during construction for changes in cost of material and labor.

The Kearny yard bid $5,700,000 on each of two destroyers to be completed also in 18 and 20 months respectively, with an alternate bid of $5,277,000 allowing for adjustments.

FREIGHT TOTAL SETS NEW PEAK SINCE DECEMBER

Loadings of revenue freight during the week ended May 25 reached a new high for the year with a total of 687,490 cars, the Association of American railroads reported yesterday. A 10,000 car increase in loadings of ore and a 3,925 rise in coal shipments accounted for the gain. Coke was the only other commodity making a gain over the preceding week.

The increase was more than was seasonally expected, with loadings the largest since last Dec. 2. There were 8,519 more cars loaded than in the preceding week, 63,948 more than in the corresponding week in 1939, and 125,414 more than in the corresponding 1938 period.

Loadings of the various commodities compare as follows:

Washington, D. C., May 31 [Special].—Sam Harris, supervising attorney in charge of the opinion section of the Securities and Exchange commission, has resigned and will immediately join the trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric system as counsel, it was learned today. Harris, who is only 27 years old, joined the SEC in 1937 after graduating from Yale law school in 1936. Another SEC staff member, Albert F. Tegen, recently resigned to become a director and vice president of Utility Management corporation, an Associated Gas subsidiary.

Pennsylvania Road Hits New Haven Ruling

Asserting that "erroneous decisions" by a division of the Interstate Commerce commission would destroy stockholders' interests totaling more than $190,000,000 in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday filed a petition with the ICC asking reargument before the whole commission of the proposed reorganization of the New Haven.

The New Haven filed a petition to reorganize on Oct. 23, 1935, when it was unable to meet taxes of $4,000,000 and interest of $2,200,000.

Owns 20% of Common.

The Pennsylvania owns common stock having a par value of $31,992,500 and representing 20.36 per cent of the total common stock. Thru its interest in the New Haven, the Pennsylvania has had an entry into industrial New England.

Commenting that two of the ICC commissioners expressed views diverging in certain respects from the majority report of the commission on the reorganization, the road said:

"In view of the importance of the railroad property which is before the commission, as well as the far reaching consequences, financial and otherwise, this proceeding should have the consideration of the entire commission."

Stockholders Wiped Out.

The report of division four of the ICC to which the Pennsylvania objects, said it found that the equity of the stockholders of the New Haven had no value and therefore the holders of the stock must be denied participation in the reorganization.

The petition charged that the ICC division had used an unfair basis in estimating the earning power of the New Haven.

"Practically exclusive consideration was given to the earnings of the depression period from 1933 to 1938, altho section 77 [e] of the bankruptcy law requires that due consideration be given to the past and future earning power of the property and not merely the present," the petition said.

Declaring that the ICC division had virtually ignored "prospective" earning power, as provided in the statute, the petition recalled some of the previous financial history of the New Haven. For the years 1921, 1922, and 1923 the road incurred an average annual deficit of $7,074,000 and the future appeared gloomy, yet the road came back and for the eight year period 1924 to 1931 had a net annual income of $11,894,000.

Claims Brighter Future.

The petition cited present New Haven operating results to show that it is making financial progress. It quoted a transportation authority, C. B. Breed, to the effect that the road stands to recover annually in excess of $9,000,000 to $23,000,000 of gross revenues for freight moved by truck because of the mounting cost of truck operation. It also charged that the ICC division erred in its valuation of certain New Haven assets, including the value of property rights in the Grand Central terminal at New York, and that it failed to give weight or consideration to operating economies and the prospect of increased earnings inherent in a merger with the Boston and Maine.

The petition said that the common stock amounting to more than $190,000,000 par value is owned by more than 17,700 stockholders, of whom more than half are residents of New England and more than 90 per cent own 100 shares or less.

LETTERS

[This department prints from time to time letters of not more than 250 words addressed to the financial editor.]

Financial Editor: May 27 I read in THE TRIBUNE that the People's Gas Light and Coke company has been ordered to refund to domestic gas consumers of this city the sum of $6,377,242.

As a consumer, I should like to propose that every one entitled to a rebate shall sign a waiver, or petition, asking the gas company to turn these rebates over to the American Red Cross.

If THE TRIBUNE will publish a list of those willing to donate their rebates to this worthy cause, I believe every one will gladly sign up, and no one will miss the small amount involved. Let's go!

MIDWEST STORE SALES UP MORE THAN AVERAGE

Chicago Area Has Best Showing.

Expanding pay rolls of middle western industrial plants are being reflected by increased retail store sales in the area, the federal reserve board and other agencies reported yesterday. The middle west, with its booming steel, automobile, and other industries, currently is showing the best store sales record in the country, and Chicago is taking a leading place in the middle west.

The federal reserve board reported that department store sales for the country as a whole last week failed to show any gain over the corresponding 1939 week, altho sales for the four weeks ended May 25 showed a 4 per cent advance over the like 1939 period. Dun & Bradstreet estimated that retail volume for the entire nation was 2 to 5 per cent higher than in 1939, with the middle west making the best showing.

Chicago District Up 6 Per Cent.

The federal reserve board reported the following reserve districts as showing gains in the week ended May 27 over the 1939 week: Philadelphia, 2 per cent; Cleveland, 3 per cent; Atlanta, 1 per cent, and Chicago, 6 per cent. Losses were as follows: Boston, 1 per cent; New York, 2 per cent; Richmond, 4 per cent; St. Louis, 10 per cent; Kansas City, 5 per cent; Dallas, 13 per cent, and San Francisco, 6 per cent. Minneapolis was not given.

In a comparison of the four weeks ended May 25 with the like 1939 period, the New York, Kansas City, and Dallas districts showed no changes, but all other districts recorded gains. The gains, by reserve districts, were as follows: Boston and San Francisco, 2 per cent; Philadelphia and Minneapolis, 5 per cent; Cleveland, Richmond, and Chicago, 7 per cent; Atlanta, 9 per cent, and St. Louis, 3 per cent.

Altho it rained last week on two of the six business days in Chicago, city department store sales showed a 7.9 per cent gain over the 1939 week, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank reported. Detroit had a 4.2 per cent gain, and Milwaukee, 8.6 per cent. Indianapolis sales declined 1.5 per cent.

Blame Wat and Weather.

Commenting that bad weather and the war were blamed by merchants as being responsible for the disappointing retail trade thruout the nation, Dun & Bradstreet said "the only region to maintain its year to year increase was the middle west where industrial centers recorded gains averaging 5 to 11 per cent."

"Sales in the east," the reporting agency continued, "which have been most susceptible to stock market trends and war moves, were a little under a year ago, the total decrease being no more than 3 per cent.

"Retailers continued to buy as close to the vest as possible. For the most part the only orders placed during the week were to round out summer stocks or promotional lines.

"Wholesalers pointed out, however, that the slowing down in trading by no means signified a disruption of markets. Altho retailer sentiment is said to have been quite deeply affected by recent developments abroad, few attempts have been made to withdraw orders or put pressure on prices."

Independent Retailers Gain.

Sales during April by independent retailers in 34 states, based on reports from 22,812 companies in most lines of business except department stores, showed a gain of 5.6 per cent over April 1939, the census bureau reported yesterday. For the first four months of this year sales showed an 8 per cent gain over the same months in 1939.

Automobile dealers led in the showing for the four month period, with an increase of 21.1 per cent over the first four months of 1939. They were followed by household appliance stores, with a gain of 12.8 per cent; jewelry stores, 12.7 per cent, and heating and plumbing shops, 11.1 per cent.

Automobile dealers also made the best showing in April with a gain of 22.4 per cent over April, 1939.

BRITAIN PLACES TIGHTER CONTROL OVER PAPER USE

Washington, D. C., May 31 [Special].—The British ministry of supply has stringently restricted the use and manufacture of paper in Great Britain, the American consulate in London reported today.

The most far reaching of four new restrictive orders prohibits the issue of new periodicals or certain types of posters and circulars and the manufacture of certain types of paper goods. These include paper handkerchiefs, serviettes, table cloths, cups, plates, book wrappers, festoons, and confetti. Retailers are instructed to refuse to wrap goods for domestic consumption unless wrapping is required for their protection.

Other orders subject to license the delivery and conversion of paper, its use or disposal, and the acquisition of certain grades of waste paper, and set the maximum prices payable.

Prices of War Stocks Climb; Others Weak

New York, May 31 (AP).—Prospective war beneficiaries advanced in today's stock market, but many other issues failed to gain. In one of the slowest sessions of the month gains ran to 2 or more points for steels, aircrafts, and specialties in the forenoon. There was little follow-thru on the push, however, and closing quotations were well under the highest. Moderate losses also were fairly well distributed.

Despite the sluggish proceedings, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to hold an advance of 0.2 of a point at 38.6. Transfers of 526,760 shares were the smallest for a full day since May 6. Of the 680 individual issues traded 326 were higher and 354 unchanged or lower.

Views on Armaments.

Traders found scant inspiration in European war news, but action of the President in asking congress for a supplemental appropriation of "over a billion dollars" for emergency defense purposes brought a slight touch of inflationary psychology to boardrooms and supported the belief that numerous industries will be spurred by armament demands both from home and abroad. That the upturn was selective and quiet was believed due to belief of some that war profits may be restricted substantially by government.

The chart shows the movement of the stock market in June from 1926 thru 1939.

Many commission house customers extended their Memorial day recess to the week-end on the theory it was just as well to restrain the buying urge pending a possible spectacular turn of events abroad before Monday.

Most Rails Are Lower.

Most rails were a shade lower, despite today's figures disclosing a slightly more than seasonal increase in last week's freight loadings. Motors were a bit depressed by a drop in this week's automotive output, altho part of this was due to holiday shutdowns

Stocks ahead at the finish included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, du Pont, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, New York Shipbuilding, Electric Boat, Loew's, Texas corporation, and Sears Roebuck. Lower were Chrysler, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Kennecott, United States Gypsum, Consolidated Edison, and Montgomery ward

The stock exchange reported that 38,968,832 shares of stock were traded in May, compared with 26,695,690 in April and 12,935,210 in May, 1939. It was the heaviest trading since last September, when more than 57,000,000 shares moved.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN.

Volume leaders were steady to higher on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, and as a whole gains outnumbered declines. Trading totaled 15,000 shares.

Chicago corporation, the most active issue, and Rollins Hosiery, with the next largest turnover, finished unchanged.

Trading on the exchange totaled 1,055,000 shares in May, compared with 467,000 in May, 1939, and 762,000 last April. Average daily volume was 40,577 for May, compared with 18,000 for the 1939 month and 29,308 for April, 1940.

TODD SHIPYARDS PROFIT TRIPLED IN FISCAL YEAR

Subsidiary Building Five Cargo Ships.

Todd Shipyards corporation earned three times as much in the fiscal year ended on March 31 as in the preceding year, and is operating nearly all of its plants at capacity, John D. Reilly, president, informed stockholders yesterday in his annual report.

John D. Reilly.

The company builds and repairs ships, being one of the largest ship repair organizations in the world. Late last year the United States Maritime commission awarded a Todd subsidiary a contract to build five 12,875 ton cargo ships for $2,127,000 each.

Earns $4.05 a Share.

Net income for the fiscal year ended March 31 climbed to $832,727, equal to $4.05 a share, from $250,150, or $1.22 a share, in the preceding year.

In the second half of the fiscal year Todd acquired a 50 per cent interest in Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding corporation, recipient of the maritime commission order.

"The contract involved construction of a fully equipped shipbuilding plant which was completed in March," the report said. "The keel of the first vessel was laid April 11, and launching of the first vessel is scheduled for Aug. 1. The profit on this type of construction is limited by law to 10 per cent."

John B. Stetson company, manufacturer of hats, reported it had a profit of $49,575, equal to 82 cents a share, on the $25 par 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock. In the six months ended May 1, 1939, the company's net income was $37,090, equal to 62 cents a share on the preferred.

JASPER COUNTY 'WILDCAT' OPENS NEW OIL FIELD

Olney, Ill., May 31 (AP).—R. B. Kelly, manager of the Pure Oil company, announced here today the company's No. 1 Aldridge, a wildcat test for oil in south Jasper county, began producing today at the rate of 55 barrels an hour, opening a new pool in that area. Production was from the McClosky lime.

The new well is three miles south of Jasper county's only other producing field near Boos and about a mile north of production in the Dundas pool of north Richland county.

Wabash county also had hopes of another new oil pool today when Burr Lambert's No. 1 Seller, two and a half miles northwest of Keensburg, flowed 24 barrels of oil in an hour without acid treatment. It was also flowing from the McClosky lime at 2,617 to 2,626 feet.

WAR'S VAGARIES CAUSE STUDY OF 1914-'18 MARKET

But Conditions of Two Periods Differ.

New York, May 30 (AP).—The manifold uncertainties of war have set Wall street's students of stock market trends to studying records of price movements during the conflict of 1914-'18 for clews to the future.

There are numerous important differences between the two periods, as most analysts are quick to point out. The chief of these, most agree, is the fact that nationals of the warring powers are no longer holders of the enormous quantities of American securities they possessed in the earlier period.

Even those they did hold at the outset of this war were largely taken over by belligerent governments, who have marketed them cautiously, so as to avoid depreciating needlessly these valuable assets.

First War Brought Big Selling.

The outbreak of world war No. 1 brought a flood of selling, especially by foreigners, which made it necessary to suspend dealings in stocks from the end of July to mid-December, and to keep certain restrictions in effect until April 1, 1915.

Stock averages of that period did not show any wide change in prices when trading was resumed, altho some individual "war-babies," especially among steels, coppers, rubbers, and sugars were much higher.

In the present conflict there have been two distinct war shocks, the first in September with outbreak of hostilities, the second in May with the start of "total war." Neither of these events produced convulsions which made it necessary to stop trading or even seriously impair the market mechanism.

One Advance Is 11 Pct.

The rise in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks from Sept. 1 to the autumn peak on Oct. 25 was 11 per cent. The 30 industrials in the compilation rose 16 per cent.

When trading was resumed in December, 1914, stocks showed almost no change on the average for about three months. Then began a long climb which was scarcely interrupted until November, 1916, and which lifted general averages about 35 per cent and industrial averages about 88 per cent.

Prices generally declined thru 1917, and averages toward the end of that year were a bit below levels of December, 1914. The year 1918 was the beginning of a long inflationary period which finally ended in the collapse and bear market of 1921, when indices showed prices about 10 per cent lower than in 1914.

Analysts Are Uncertain.

Where markets stand now, in this classic pattern of war-inflation-deflation, most analysts are reluctant to guess. They say that the second war-shock, the collapse of allied forces in Belgium, and the possibility of a short war combined to cause one of the sharpest bear markets in history over a short period. Nearly 25 per cent was sheared from average values in about 10 days earlier this month.

Whether this action is comparable with periodic "peace scares" which briefly interrupted the 1914-'16 bull market, most analysts are hesitant to estimate. Like many other questions in Wall street, the answer probably depends on: "How long will the war last?"

Another complicating factor is the beginning of America's huge armament program.

HOPE OF ACTIVE FINANCING YEAR FADES RAPIDLY

Many Big Issues Delayed by Market Uncertainty.

New York, May 31 [Special].—Completion today of statistics on new security offerings covering May and the first five months of the year, banished the notion entertained at the beginning of the year that 1940 might be the second most active, in the matter of public issues, since the securities act went into effect. Present indications are that this year may be the fifth most active year of that period.

The development of a new crisis in the affairs of Europe reduced the volume of bond and stock offerings to $125,780,556 for May, whereas at the beginning of the month there was enough business in prospect to make this the best May since bankers began operating under the securities act of 1933. This total compared with $99,822,980 in May, 1939; $112,338,000 in 1938, $146,151,975 in 1937, and $225,305,750 in 1936.

Big Issues Are Delayed.

The United States Steel corporation's $75,000,000 debenture offering on May 15 was to have been followed by three other issues totaling approximately $120,000,000, but the steel financing barely passed thru before market conditions closed the door on further offerings.

Bankers deferred action on $60,000,000 of Texas corporation bonds, $47,000,000 of Indianapolis Power & Light bonds and preferred stock and $12,600,000 of Iowa Southern Utilities Financing. Market conditions caused the abandonment of a substantial volume of municipal bond offerings that might otherwise have been made.

As a result of this letdown, public offerings for the first five months of 1940 totaled only $1,116,070,038, compared with $1,424,547,050 in the like period of last year, $707,784,500 in the 1938 period; $1,382,840,345 in 1937, and $3,441,668,000 in 1936.

Week's Offerings Small.

Public offerings of new securities came to a virtual standstill this week. New offerings during the week ended yesterday, reported by Poor's Publishing company, totaled only $2,081,332, the smallest since the second week of the war. This was the second successive week in which new offerings have been extremely small. Comparisons follow:

	This week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Municipal	$1,352,600	$4,342,000	$17,459,112

FORD ASSAILS THUG CHARGE OF NLRB EXAMINER

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—The Ford Motor company, accused by a labor board trial examiner of using "thugs" to discourage unionization of its employés at Dallas, Tex., retorted today that the charge was "inflammatory" and unsupported by evidence.

The company filed formal exceptions with the board to the examiner's intermediate report, which had recommended that the Dallas Ford plant reinstate two employés, and that the company post notices in all of its plants that workers were free to join any labor organization.

It was not granted a "full and fair hearing," the company said. A finding by the examiner that the company had gathered at the Dallas plant the "most brutal, vicious, and conscienceless thugs in its employ," the company, asserted, was unsupported by any evidence that the alleged acts of violence were committed by the authority and direction of the company.

BOND LIST TURNS HIGHER; MANY UP A POINT OR MORE

New York, May 31 (AP).—Bonds showed some recovery today from the shock of the Belgian surrender which had pulled prices down Wednesday. Many corporate and foreign dollar loans were ahead 1 to 2 points at the close. United States government obligations were mixed at 10-32ds lower to 6-32ds higher.

Transactions totaled $4,329,600 face value against $4,334,550 Wednesday. The trade in bonds during May was the heaviest since last September, with transactions bearing face value of $176,485,975, compared with $165,116,000 in April. Last September's trading totaled more than $480,000,000, face value.

CREDITORS O. K. MAJESTIC PLAN, BUT OWNERS BALK

The plan of reorganization for Majestic Radio and Television corporation has been accepted by the required two-thirds of the creditors, but consent of a majority of the stockholders has not been obtained, the trustee reported yesterday to Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Judge Barnes granted an extension of the acceptance deadline to June 10 and also set that date for a hearing on insolvency. If the court holds the company insolvent, reorganization can proceed without the consent of the majority of stockholders.

James A. Sprowl, attorney for the company, said that of the $850,000 of claims outstanding, $646,000 was represented in the agreement to accept the plan.

Railroad Seeks to Fund $7,400,000 Short Term Debt

Washington, D. C., May 31 (AP).—The Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway company applied to the Interstate Commerce commission today for authority to issue $7,400,000 of 4 per cent, 5 year collateral trust notes, in order to fund its entire outstanding short term debt. Subject to I. C. C. approval, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has agreed to lend the railway $4,070,000 with a like amount of the new notes posted as collateral.
